MONIED MEN POWER BEHIND LOAN SHARKS

"Reputable" Persons Accept Their Cut in Usury Business.

STEER BORROWERS INTO LENDER'S TRAP

Silent Partners Rake In Heavy Profits Found in Transactions.

MANY "ANGELS" HAVE CRIMINAL RECORDS

Bootleggers Discover Racket Profitable Side Line to Rum Trade.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

Who are the powers behind the Washington loan sharks?

These usurious lenders only in very rare instances are their own "angels" or backers, and those who do operate independently are mostly in the class that lends such amounts as $5 for a week and collects $7.50 from the borrower on pay day.

Behind the important operators, however, who deal in sums ranging anywhere from $50 to $5,000 or more, there are in practically all cases "silent partners," who sponsor the business and rake in the real profits.

The borrower almost never gets any inkling that these "big shots" are interested in him; so far as he knows, the transaction is confined entirely to the man in the dingy little office, where he signs his note and gets his money.

"Big Shot" in Background.

If the "big shot" does enter into the picture at all, it is never in any other than an advisory capacity; he may suggest to the prospective borrower the name of a loan shark with whom business may be done.

For example, an official in one otherwise reputable institution in Washington refers prospective borrowers to a loan shark office, explaining that for some reason or other his institution in unable to finance the loan, but that the loan shark will be glad to handle the transaction.

The loan shark is not only glad, but eager, to handle the deal, because he, like others of his ilk, collects $40 profit for every $100 he loans out. It happens, however, that the man who occupies the loan office, and with whom the borrower deals, is merely a salaried employe of the first official, who diverts business away from his place and into his own pockets through his usurious loan company.

Operates Within Law.

The bad part of that situation is that under existing laws, the official is operating within the law; while his status may be illegitimate, it is not illegal. Another high executive officer of another concern in the District is operating along slightly similar lines, the difference being that he discounts the notes received from borrowers by the loan shark.

The borrower gets his $100, using that figure as a standard for easy computation, and gives in return his perfectly secured note for $140. The loan shark turns this note over to the executive, who pays $120 for it, but collects the face value of $140.

Numerous borrowers who have sought to obtain various sums from another organization in the Capital state that the president of the institution has advised them that although his concern itself is not able, for various reasons, to make the loan, he will be glad to lend the money personally, on the same basis of $40 per $100, as charged by the other loan sharks.

Some Criminal Records.

These three, it must be explained, are as far as known the only supposedly reputable persons connected with the loan-shark industry in Washington.

But the scores of other loan sharks in the District have their "angels" as well. Some of these have criminal records on various charges, while others thus far appear to have evaded the toils of the law.

Bootleggers apparently find it a profitable side line to finance loan-shark joints for which they act as silent partners, putting up the operating cash and collecting 50 per cent of the gross profits.

These financial backers, be they bootleggers, reputable business men, or strong-arm racketeers, are the persons to whom the apparent payee of the borrower's note indorses the paper. As explained in a previous article, the note is almost never made payable to the loan shark; sometimes it is made payable to the backer or silent partner, but more frequently it is made payable to some third party, who may be a stenographer or other employe of the loan shark, or who may be a purely fictitious and non-existent person.

In any event, unless the note is made payable direct to the silent part-

SHAMROCK V. LOSES AS MAINSAIL FALLS

Mishap After Start Costs Lipton Boat Third Race as It Leads.

SERIES MAY END TODAY

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

New Port, R. I., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The crowning touch to the ill-fated challenge of Shamrock V for the America's Cup was applied today when her main halyard suddenly parted, the huge mainsail slowly collapsing, and the emerald-green sloop was abruptly eliminated from the third race. She was disabled just when she had buoyed the lingering hopes of her backers and given Enterprise a real sail for the first time.

Out into a choppy sea, that sparkled in the sunlight, with a good fifteen-knot breeze kicking up the white caps, Shamrock had sailed forth with desperate determination on every move and line. Grimly the challenger fought for and won the starting advantage from Harold S. Vanderbilt's slim white defender for the first time. Heeling over as her nose smashed into the waves and straining every sail into the wind, Shamrock was making a gallant comeback and a courageous fight before yielding the advantage skillfully won at the outset.

They had covered approximately five miles on the fifteen-mile windward beat of today's thirty-mile course and were racing bow to bow, no more than 150 yards between them, on the starboard tack, when there was a sudden fluttering movement of sail at the top of the 168-foot mast. Slowly at first, then with a billowing rush that must have been heart-breaking to those on board, the huge expanse of canvas tumbled to the deck and water's edge.

It was like the last curtain falling on a stage scene poignant with dramatic tragedy. Shamrock was out of the running and the long quest of Sir Thomas Lipton was all but at an end for 1930, if not for all time.

All alone on the course, soon out of sight of her crest-fallen rival, and escorted by few boats outside of the big Coast Guard patrol, Enterprise completed the remaining 25 miles of

RITCHIE WOULD BAR PRESIDENTIAL BOOM

PUTS MARYLAND FIRST

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Gov. Ritchie tonight made an emphatic move to block any effort to indorse him by resolution for the Presidency at the Democratic State convention, which will be held tomorrow in the Maryland Theater.

Writing to Senator Millard E. Tydings, who has been designated as chairman of the convention, the governor asked that if such a resolution of indorsement is offered that the convention refrain from acting on it.

The governor gave his reason that "the proceedings of our convention tomorrow should not be diverted from the issues of the present campaign in this State by any consideration of who our next nominee for the Presidency ought to be."

It is known that the governor was moved to write the letter by reports he had received to the effect that certain of his friends were planning to present a resolution indorsing him as candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

This movement started after and was, in fact, inspired by the action of the Arkansas Democratic State convention in indorsing Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of that State, for the Presidency. Reports also have been in circulation that the New York Democratic State convention later in the month may indorse Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the Presidency.

These developments in the national political situation caused many of the governor's friends here, it is reported, to believe that unless the Democracy of Maryland put forward Mr. Ritchie's name at this time the failure might be interpreted to mean that the governor did not have the support of his State in any presidential aspirations he might have.

Gov. Ritchie's views privately expressed and reflected in his letter to Senator Tydings are that it is entirely too early to commence the con-

NEW EVIDENCE FOR CAMPBELL IS DISCOVERED

Documents to Be Shown at Baker Case Removal Hearing Saturday.

PHONE CALLS HELD SUPPORT FOR ALIBI

Man Also Will Swear He Gave Captive Check at Time of Murder.

EARLY TRIAL DESIRED, ACCUSED MAN SAYS

Explains Why He Is Fighting Removal to District; Cites Courtesies.

Documentary evidence tending to prove the innocence of Herbert M. Campbell has been uncovered by defense counsel, who will present it to Federal Judge D. Lawrence Groner at a hearing Saturday in Alexandria designed to remove the defendant to the District for trial in the murder of Mary E. Baker on April 11.

In addition to the documents, several new witnesses have been discovered who, according to Chief Defense Counsel Charles Henry Smith, will offer indisputable proof that the Arlington County real estate dealer was not in Washington at the time of the killing.

Subpenas will be issued today to the new witnesses, one of whom is C. W. Lee, of Virginia Highlands, who issued a check to Campbell about 5:30 o'clock on the night of the murder. This check is in the possession of Mr. Smith. It is dated April 11, and cancellations show it was cashed on April 12.

Telephone Calls Recorded.

Records of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. also have been subpenaed which the defense claims will show that the accused made three telephone calls between 5:37 o'clock and 6:26 o'clock from his home to persons in Alexandria and Washington. The parties with whom Campbell talked also have been summoned.

Mary Baker was last seen alive a few minutes after 6 o'clock when she was being beaten by a man in her car parked on the Ellipse. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Francis Rice, who witnessed the assault, the three of whom are regarded as Government witnesses, will be asked to testify for the defense.

Should Campbell receive a favorable ruling from Judge Groner, his counsel says that he will be immediately surrendered to the District authorities if the Government will agree to an early trial. If Judge Groner orders his removal Mr. Smith will not contest his ruling, he says.

Immediate Trial Desired.

Mr. Smith is ready for an immediate trial for his client, who also is eager for legal vindication of the charge. The accused man, interviewed yesterday at the Alexandria Jail, where he has been held since the Government took over the prosecution, expressed willingness to stand trial at any time.

"In case any one should misunderstand my fight against removal, you may tell them this: In Alexandria I am among my own people. I was born and reared here. The keepers here are very considerate and permit my family to visit me at any time. All my meals are brought to me.

"I am not afraid of standing trial for I am innocent. If I could be assured of an immediate trial I would go to Washington tomorrow. In the

Campbell Says Prohibition Is Godsend to Politicians

Service Is Loaded With Political Appointees, He Charges.

Holds Congress Inquiry Would Unfold Amazing Revelations.

Eleventh of a series of articles by the former prohibition administrator of the Eastern New York district.

ARTICLE XI.

By MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.

Prohibition was a godsend to the politicians. Never before was there such an opportunity for political machines to give favors and receive contributions.

Plenty has been said about the politicians who vote dry against their convictions because the Anti-saloon League forces them to do so. But little has been said about the drys who value prohibition as an added opportunity to hold their grip on their communities.

This United States is infested with speakeasies, stills and bootlegging permittees. These must operate under protection, and they look to politicians for protection.

The prohibition service is loaded with political appointees who are expected to afford protection in their political districts. The civil service requirements have weeded out some, but there still are plenty.

Those who are not originally political appointees are corralled into the organizations. The politicians have got you, going and coming.

My files are loaded with letters from politicians asking favors,

Hon. Seymour Lowman,
Acting Assistant,
Treasury Department,
Washington, D.C.

My dear Mr. Lowman:

I write to inquire the present status regarding Prohibition agent, Frank A. Nelson, who was attached to the New York Office.

This is a matter about which Senator Hiram Bingham and Hon. Charles D. Millen, have communicated with you. You are doubtless very familiar with it. Mr. Nelson has not heard anything for sometime. This is the reason that I am writing to inquire as to what might be expected. I presume that you are overwhelmed with matters of this kind, but this case is exceptionally meritorious. I will appreciate any word that you may be able to send me respecting the matter.

With kindest regards, and best wishes, I am

ALLEN, ELY TO FIGHT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Dempsey New York Defeat Laid to His Uncertain Stand on Liquor.

(Associated Press.)

Wisconsin boosted another La Follette into the saddle yesterday, while Delaware and Massachusetts were bestowing colors of wet-and-dry causes upon senatorial nominees who will come down the home stretch in November.

Ending a drive reminiscent of stirring political battles of his distinguished father, Philip F. La Follette was assured of the Wisconsin gubernatorial nomination by more than 110,000 votes over the Republican governor, Walter J. Kohler. This assures La Follette's election.

Republican senatorial nominees in Delaware and Massachusetts will go into the November campaign under the dry banner. Democrats in both States chose wets.

Hastings in Delaware.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings will stand for reelection in Delaware as the Republican candidate. William M. Butler, former chairman of the Depublican national committee, will seek the seat to be vacated by Senator Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, Republican.

Former Senator Thomas F. Bayard was selected by Delaware Democrats to oppose Mr. Hastings, while their brethren in Massachusetts were picking Marcus A. Coolidge to send against Butler.

At the same time, Massachusetts Democrats chose Joseph P. Ely, a modificationist, to contest the gubernatorial seat with Gov. Frank G. Allen, dry, renominated by the Republicans.

Dempsey Defeat Upset.

In New York, the only other State voting in a primary Tuesday, the principal upset of the Republican organization was defeat of Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, chairman of the House rivers and harbors committee. Voters in the Fortieth Congressional District selected Walter Gresham Andrews, a wet, because Dempsey had been charged with not having stated his prohibition stand.

Generally, however, in that State, Republicans and Democrats who had party organization support were approved by voters.

Boston, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Massachusetts voters were assured tonight of a clear cut wet and dry fight along party lines in the November general elections.

Republican voters, as a result of yesterday's State primary, had before them a ticket headed by a dry, William M. Butler, former United States senator and former chairman of the Republican national committee, as their candidate for United States senator, with a wet, Marcus A. Coolidge, of Fitchburg, manufacturer, and former mayor, as his opponent.

Allen Is Renominated.

For governor, Republicans had another dry, the present governor, Frank G. Allen, as a candidate for re-election with a wet, Joseph B. Ely, of Westfield, opposing him on the Democratic side.

Although there were few upsets in congressional fights, the prohibition issue loomed strongly in several districts. In all but two of the sixteen districts of the State present representatives were candidates for re-

Imprisoned for an hour and twenty minutes in a well, M. L. Printz, 47 years old, of Shockey Station, 3 miles east of Fairfax, Va., was rescued yesterday afternoon from what threatened to be his tomb.

Printz was working at the bottom of a 20-foot well, which had dried up during the drought, when the earth around the rim caved in and covered him completely. Two workmen, who were on the ground surface, were lowered by a bucket a few minutes later and began digging the imprisoned man out with their hands.

Within a few minutes they had dug through 2 feet of earth and freed Printz's head so that he could breathe. A short while later John Neal, colored, and neighbors joined in the digging until the man was raised to the surface.

Calls had meanwhile been sent in for the fire rescue squad at Washington and Fairfax police. They arrived, however, after Printz had been rescued by the volunteer fire departments of Vienna and Falls Church.

Aside from bruises and shock, Printz appeared none the worse for his experience. The well was owned by Ben Hughes and was being bored deeper.

DEMPSEY DEFEAT UPSET

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Tuesday's primary and convention developments further revealed the Democrats' determination to entrench themselves on the wet side of the question and increased nervousness of the Republicans on the prohibition question.

With only the New York State conventions remaining to complete the primary phase of the 1930 campaign, the full picture of what is happening comes fairly into the relief.

It is that the Democrats, guided to a large extent by a central moving hand and not hamstrung by the South, believe the prohibition turning point is just ahead and are determined to beat the Republicans to the issue, and the Republicans, on the other hand, are, in increasing numbers, wondering if the Democrats are not reading the trends right.

Not the least significant of Tuesday's developments in this connection was the statement before the Connecticut Republican convention of Senator Walcott that prohibition is intolerable, but that the present administration may be safely counted upon to work things out all right; that the administration is, indeed,

Noah Beery Asks U. S. Aid In Hunt for Missing Wife

Film Actor Appeals to Justice Agents After Learning Mate, Accompanied by Man, Was in Las Vegas, Nev., After Vanishing From Home.

Los Angeles, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marguerite Beery, wife of Noah Beery, film actor, who was reported missing since September 8 by her husband, returned to Los Angeles tonight and went to the home of friends.

Los Angeles, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Noah Beery, film actor, who yesterday instituted a police search for his missing wife, Marguerite, late today asked the Department of Justice to take action, if necessary, as the result of information that Mrs. Beery had been in Las Vegas, Nev., in company with a man.

Beery's action followed information from the Nevada town that a woman cafe operator had cashed two checks this week signed "Marguerite Beery." Mrs. Beery disappeared from her San Fernando, Calif., ranch September 8.

Las Vegas investigators learned that the woman identified as Mrs. Beery, and her expensive automobile left town yesterday.

The Bank of America, where Mrs. Beery had an account, informed the Los Angeles sheriff's office this afternoon that her checks, made out for small amounts, had been coming through from Las Vegas for a week.

Beery, appealing to Federal authorities to determine if Federal laws had been violated, advised the Justice agents he had been informed Mrs. Beery was not alone in Las Vegas. he said he understood his wife and a companion were in the Nevada town and might be expected to return here soon.

The woman was reported at Las Vegas after Beery informed Los Angeles police of her absence. Officers began a wide search, fearing Mrs. Beery had met with four play.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The business interests of the country in both the industrial and agricultural lines will find much encouragement in the appointment of Eugene Meyer, jr., as governor general of the Federal Reserve system. He is not only a banker of wide experience, but also a very successful business man with about twelve years of public service in Washington. His work as chairman of the war finance commission for agricultural and industrial rehabilitation laid the foundation for the revival which began eight years ago.

The Federal Reserve system was created to serve the business of the Nation. Without it the war could not have been financed. By providing a safe and certain source of credit to member banks it makes more stable and liquid the resources of the whole country. While individual banks may suffer from misfortune or bad management no one has any lack of confidence in the soundness of the currency system of the Government or the banking system of the people. When these are correctly used they support and encourage our productive activity. They are of great benefit to the farmer and the wage earner. We can now expect to see these great powers used for that purpose.

Man Killed When Stolen Car Crashed, Identified

Sister Says Body That of Robert Macey, of Lyonhurst, Once Held by Capital Police for Inquiry Into Drowning of Gill in Potomac.

The body of a man found in the wreckage of an overturned automobile on the Philadelphia road near Baltimore early Sunday was identified yesterday as that of Robert E. Marcey, of Lyonhurst, Va.

Marcey, who was 31 years old, was one of a pair held by the police for investigation after they reported September 7 that Wylie Gill, 49, had jumped overboard from a boat in which the three were rowing on the Potomac and been drowned.

The third man was Howard Conrad, 50, of Chevy Chase. He and Marcey were released after Gill's body was found and a coroner's verdict of accidental death rendered.

Marcey was killed when the car overturned after the driver, Robert Coombs, 19, of Littleton, Va., lost control. Coombs was only slightly injured in the crash, but broke a leg later when he attempted to leap from a second-story window at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. He is being held in the Maryland city on charges of stealing an automobile, driving while drunk, having no driver's license or registration card and reckless driving.

Identification of Marcey's body was made by a sister, Mrs. Ocie Walker, of Lyonhurst.

Coombs and George Higgins, a soldier stationed at the Aberdeen (Md.) Proving Grounds, who also was in the car at the time of the accident, were found by passing motorists and taken to the hospital. Coombs is declared to have leaped from the window when State Policeman Gilbert A. Wollenburg, having taken Marcey's body to an undertaking establish-nomination and returns today indicated that all were successful.

Former Senator Butler won the Republican senatorial nomination by defeating Eben S. Draper, of Hopedale, wealthy manufacturer, who ran as a wet, and Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, "Bad Boy," mayor of Newburyport, who was known as moist. Butler's plurality over Draper was more than 7,600 with a few scattering precincts unreported.

Vote as Tabulated.

The vote, as tabulated tonight, for 1,642 out of the 1,649 precincts in the State gave:

Butler, 161,370; Draper, 153,688; Gillis, 22,481. Coolidge won the Democratic nomination from a field of four opponents with a margin of nearly 27,000 votes over the nearest, Joseph F. O'Connell, former member of Congress. Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney of Suffolk County, ran third, more than 9,500 behind. Former Gov. Eugene N. Foss and Peter J. Joyce were the other contenders. The vote from 1,642 precincts was:

Coolidge, 81,707; O'Connell, 544,799; O'Brien, 45,212; Foss, 12,841; Joyce, 6,190.

In the gubernatorial contests Gov. Allen swamped his only opponent, former Mayor John D. Devir of Malden, with a vote in 1,642 precincts of 305,075 to Devir's 24,916.

Ely Has Safe Margin.

The Democraticfight for governor, enlivened during the closing days of the campaign by a bitter factional fight precipitated by the efforts of Mayor James M. Curley of Boston to induce voters to support John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor of this city, for the nomination after Fitzgerald had withdrawn because of ill health, was closer, but Ely had a safe margin of 32,580 votes with seven precincts missing. Fitzgerald's name, on the ballot despite his withdrawal, drew 84,622 votes compared to Ely's 117,202. John J. Cummings, of Boston, the other contestant in the three-cornered contest, received 12,770 votes.

Milwaukee, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The La Follette Brothers made twin conquests today.

Philip La Follette found himself the Republican nominee for Governor of of Wisconsin, by a majority of more than 110,000.

Robert M. La Follette, the senior senator from Wisconsin, was married to his secretary in a quiet ceremony at Madison.

Kohler Badly Beaten.

Friends brought to Philip, as he male ready to be best man for his big brother, the news of his sweeping triumph over Gov. Walter J. Kohler, the candidate of regular Republicans.

Happy in his victory, he received this afternoon the report that 2,739 precincts out of 2,824 in the election yesterday gave him 371,018 votes compared to 261,486 for Kohler.

Conceded only a "fighting chance" to win, the day before election, La Follette demonstrated that the fight he waged during the campaign provided the impetus to put him in. Like his father, he had whirled over Wisconsin, jabbing home his points with the gestures of "fighting Bob."

Carries All But Eight Counties.

He took 63 of the 71 counties in the State, carrying away 26 credited to Kohler in the primary two years ago. Rural and metropolitan Wisconsin alike gave him an over-sized vote.

The Governor, a wealthy manufacturer, said that he had no regrets at returning to private life. La Follette, in a formal statement, said: "I feel the high responsibility which has come to me to carry on the fight for the fundamental principles of democracy upon which Robert M. La Follette founded the progressive movement."

He went into seclusion after seeing brother Bob off on his honeymoon.

South Americans Visit U.S. Bull Ring

See Pure-Breds Exercise at Experiment Farm in Beltsville.

(Associated Press.)

A "bull ring," American style, was viewed with interest yesterday by agriculturists from Spanish-America visiting the United States experimental farm at Beltsville, Md. They saw instead of maddened bulls charging in a dusty arena, pure-bred sires hitched to long arms of a revolving apparatus, where they are driven four hours a day for exercise.

Only a brief stop was made at the University of Maryland in College Park, where President E. A. Pearson welcomed the Southern agricultural representatives on behalf of Gov. Richie and the University Board of Regents.

At Beltsville the agriculturists spent virtually the entire afternoon viewing the extensive animal husbandry experimental plant. The delegates were guests last night of the United States Society of Foresters at a dinner given in honor of the forestry delegates.

Maryland Posse Hunts Lone Rober

Holdup Man Walks Into Gas Station and Gets $60 From Proprietor.

County police and a posse of citizens last night were searching the woods near Forestville, Md., for a lone robber, who walked into the gasoline station of Norman Collins and demanded the day's receipts of $60.

According to the story told County Policeman Frank P. Prince and Deputy Sheriff Henry Morris, the man, pointing a pistol at Mr. Collins, said: "I want your money. If you speak I'll kill you."

Mr. Collins handed over the money without a word. The man then turned around and left the station, crossing the Marlboro pike to the other side, where he disappeared in the dusk. He is believed to have gone into nearby woods. As soon as the man had disappeared, Mr. Collins called Policeman Prince and Deputy Sheriff Morris. They hurriedly gathered together a posse and started out in search of the man, who was very well dressed, and appeared to be about 24 years old, Mr. Collins said.

NYE AGAIN REFUSES M'CORMICK DEFENSE

Senate Committee Attempts to Return to Main Line of Investigation.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Chicago, Sept. 17.—The Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today denied for the last time a plea of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, of Illinois, that he be allowed to present a statement in defense of Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for the United States Senate.

With this gesture the committee calculated to purge the remaining hearings of everything pertaining to charges of espionage, wire tapping and desk rifling and to continue strictly along the lines of its main inquiry. This policy was declared yesterday, though the reason advanced then for not hearing Mr. Carlstrom was that Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, was not present.

"Having read your statement," said a letter to Mr. Carlstrom signed by three members of the committee, "and learning therefrom that the proof you offer concerns actions of persons having no connection whatsoever, now or any other time, with this committee, or any of its employes, the committee deemed it unnecessary and irrevalent to the work it is directed to perform.

"We are prompted to stress as another reason for denying your request the fact that the statement attributed to you by the press as to past activities by the committee is false and misleading."

The signers of the letter were Chairman Gerad P. Nye, of North Dakota; Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, and Senator Wagner.

Senator Roscoe Patterson, of Missouri, did not sign. He also withheld comment on the action of the committee yesterday.

Mr. Carlstrom's statement, released to the press, had charged employes of the committee tapped wires and performed other acts of espionage upon Mrs. McCormick, whose expenditures in the April primary are under investigation. The statement offered to prove the charges and said further that a direct connection between Chairman Nye and the alleged acts of espionage was established when the committee subpenaed detectives whose names had been furnished by a man pretending to betray his trust.

The names, Mr. Carlstrom charged, were purchased by a David Groh from Kenneth Wilson, an operative for the W. C. Dannenberg Detective Agency, which was employed by Mrs. McCormick to shadow Senator Nye.

Editor Takes Stand.

Yesterday Mrs. McCormick charged the committee's refusal to hear Mr. Carlstrom was a deliberate attempt to suppress facts.

The espionage matter was mentioned again today by Barney Thompson, editor of the Rockford (Ill.) Republic, owned by Mrs. McCormick, when he took the witness stand.

Senators Nye, Dill and Wagner were on their feet at once to reaffirm their declaration that the committee had never engaged in or countenanced such practices.

"Senator Nye has built up in the public mind a deplorable idea of this committee's work," retorted Mr. Thompson.

Senator Nye replied: "Knowing that the record of this committee's hearings in every State will be presented in a complete transcription to the United States Senate, I have no fear it will not be found this committee has leaned over backwards to be honorable, fair and decent in all its dealings."

Refused Paper's Aid.

Thompson was on the stand to explain Mrs. McCormick's connection with the paper he edits. He denied she purchased the paper for political reasons and said she took it over out of friendship for him when a merger threatened the life of the publication.

He said Mrs. McCormick refused to permit the paper to aid her campaign.

Senator Nye read a statement of his position and the position of the committee.

"We have recognized the fact that serious tales have been told representing this committee as engaged in wire tapping and spying on any and everyone connected with this campaign," he said. "We have devoted ourselves, both as a committe and individually and personally, to determine directly whether any employe of this committee, a representative of it or a representative of its agents has engaged in any wire tapping or espionage.

Groh "Miracle Man."

"This committee has never countenanced any such practices in the past and it certainly will not in the future.

"Not 1 cent of the money at the disposal of this committee has been spent by any individual of it, or by the committee as a whole, for such practices.

"We have heard a great deal about this Dave Groh. It has been Dave Groh, Dave Groh, Dave Groh, everywhere. This man has assumed something of the proportions of a miracle man. In a previous hearing in Chicago person after person testified time and again how this Dave Groh had shadowed him, attempted to bribe him, and was engaged by agents of this committee to deliver information to the committee or its employes. I can not for the life of me figure out how any one man could be everywhere as this Groh appears to have been.

Not Employed by Committee.

"I want this definitely understood. Dave Groh has not been employed by this committee or any employe of this committee and not one penny at the disposal of this committee or any individual on it has been paid Mr. Groh for any such purposes as have been attributed to him by the press or the agents of Mrs. McCormick."

Tomorrow witnesses from down State will be heard in connection with Ruth Hanna McCormick's campaign, and the committee expects to end its Chicago hearing in the afternoon.

Mrs. McCormick tonight issued a statement reiterating her charge that agents of the committee have tapped wires and adding that her only conclusion is that the chairman of the committee was "afraid to hear" witnesses she said were ready to prove the charge.

Robbers Get Truckload Of Cigarettes From Firm

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Robbers entered the wholesale grocery of D. C. Winebrenner & Co. last night about midnight and succeeded in loading about $700 worth of cigarettes on a truck. The robbery was discovered shortly after the truck had been loaded, but the burglars escaped going towards Harpers Ferry and into Maryland.

The same gang is believed to have obtained a large amount of cigarettes from a Winchester wholesale firm. From indications, the thieves are supposed to have had knowledge of the inside of the building.

NEW TARIFF COMMISSION SWORN IN

TWO OATHS TAKEN BY TARIFF GROUP

Fletcher Insists on Swearing Bribery Did Not Play Part in Appointment.

GROUP LACKS MEMBER

(Associated Press.)

At the insistence of its chairman, Henry P. Fletcher, the new Tariff Commission yesterday took two oaths instead of one in assuming duties of office.

Up to the place where Fletcher took command, the occasion was according to pattern. The tariff employes gathered. The commission marched in with dignity. Everybody stood respectfully while they simultaneously raised their right hands and promised to uphold the Constitution and perform the duties of their office. Their commissions were handed to them. They started to sign and their audience began to disperse.

Suddenly, Fletcher spoke.

"Here's another oath to be taken," he said.

L. W. Moore, the notary public administering the oath, looked at what Fletcher had found, and explained it was not customary or necessary to read the second oath.

"I want to take that oath," insisted Fletcher.

His fellow Commissioners, Thomas Walker Page, Dr. John Lee Coulter, Edgar B. Brossard and Alfred P. Dennis, stood with him and solemnly swore that "neither he nor any one acting in his behalf has given, transferred, promised or paid any consideration for, or in the expectation or hope of receiving assistance in securing the appointment."

A sixth member of the committee is yet to be appointed who may, with precedence, take either one or two oaths of office.

FILM STAR'S MISSING WIFE REPORTED SEEN

Las Vegas investigators said the man with Mrs. Beery had given the name of Wells. They said he was known as a motion picture promoter.

Court files here showed that Raymond Wells, Hollywood motion picture promoter, several months ago sued Beery for $50,000 damages for alleged assault.

Wells claimed Beery injured his skull in knocking him to the street pavement. Beery made a denial and the case never was tried, it being understood it was settled out of court.

Beery today first sought the aid of the United States marshal, in locating his wife, who informed him the matter was in the jurisdiction, if any, of the Department of Justice. The actor, known on the screen for his battling, villianous roles, then went to the justice agents. He was told investigation would be made upon the return of Mrs. Beery with arrests to follow if warranted.

The Beerys were married in Boston in 1910. They have one child, Noah Beery III. Two years ago Mrs. Beery started a divorce action against the actor, but failed to press the suit.

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—A woman cafe owner here reported today Mrs. Marguerite Beery, missing wife of Noah Beery, Hollywood film actor, was in Las Vegas yesterday. The woman, who requested her name be withheld, said Mrs. Beery cashed two checks in her cafe during the past two days.

A. E. Cahlan, Las Vegas newspaper publisher, to whom the woman reported Mrs. Beery's presence, said he had notified police, and that a search of hotels was being started. He said the cafe owner intimated Mrs. Beery was accompanied.

The checks, Cahlan said he was told, were signed in the name of Marguerite Beery.

Investigation developed that Mrs. Beery left Las Vegas yesterday, motoring southward toward Searchlight, Nev. Las Vegas newspapermen, who had observed an expensive roadster in town Monday, identified it as the car in which Mrs. Beery disappeared from her San Fernando, Calif., ranch, September 8.

Baltimore to Get Courses in Cancer

Post-Graduate Work to Be Given Specialists Four Times Each Year.

Baltimore, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Announcement that postgraduate courses for surgeons and X-ray specialists will be held here four times a year to enable them to keep abreast of methods of diagnosing and treating cancer, was made today as a three-day session attended by 363 specialists from 42 States neared an end.

This plan of instruction, said to be without parallel, is to be supplemented by correspondence and a system of diagnosis at the Garvan Research Laboratory at Johns Hopkins University, from X-ray plates sent in by nonresident radiologists.

Another development in the war on cancer announced at the meeting was the creation of a corporation whose purpose will be to advance the science of radiology as it bears on the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. The corporation is the Radiological Research Institute, and it will finance research workers and research fellowships in universities, it was announced by Dr. C. Edwin Ernest, of St. Louis, a past president of the Radiological Society of North America.

Thieves in Truck Raid Chicken Farm

Even Sheep Are Stolen From Martinsburg Area by Band.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Unidentified chicken thieves took 125 chickens from the coops of Wilbur Shroades at Geraldstown, near here, last night. Tracks leading to the chicken yard indicated the thieves used a truck to haul away their loot.

The robbery is one of a long series in the rural sections near Martinsburg, during which chickens, cured meats, farm implements, and grain have been taken. Even sheep grazing in the fields have been carried away. Officers lay the depredations to an organized band of thieves.

Farmers, angered by the persistency of the gang, are keeping guns by their sides to give the thieves a warm reception if trapped.

Virginia Commissioner Of Highways Is Married

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Henry G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, and Miss Sara Anne Berkley, of Richmond, were married here at 10 o'clock this morning in St. James Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. Churchill J. Gibson performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley will sail from New York Friday night on the steamer Lancastria for a European trip. Mr. Shirley was formerly head of the Maryland Highway Department.

"The First Thing in the Morning"

EXPORT STATEMENT IS SCORED BY HUGHES

GAIN STILL UNDER 1929

The action of President Hoover in calling attention to a $38,000,000 increase in America's export trade in August was characterized yesterday by Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic Congressional committee, as an attempt to "fool the country."

The President, Mr. Byrns said, omitted to mention that while August exports did show a gain of $38,000,000 over July, they were approximately $80,000,000 under exports for August a year ago. The President also failed to point out, he said, that while August exports this year totaled $300,000,000, exports in October of last year, "when the panic first broke in the New York stock market," totaled more than $525,000,000.

"Obviously," said Mr. Byrns, "the President's seizure upon an increase in our foreign trade, which can be shown only by making comparisons with the lowest monthly figure in many years, is part of the Republican strategy to try and fool the country into believing that the Hawley-Smoot, or Grundy, tariff bill has done its worst, and that business, and especially our foreign trade is now on the up-grade."

Election of a Democratic Congress, Mr. Byrns said, would be a repudiation of the Hawley-Smoot tariff, and the President would be bound to accept it as such. It at least would cause him to think twice before using the flexible provision to increase rates that already are too high, he declared.

Concluding his statement, Mr. Byrns declared that the President, in expressing gratification over the August export trade, ignored the fact that on the same day the Department of Agriculture reported a further decline in agriculture price levels.

Morgantown to Be Host To Reunion of Elks

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Elks from all over West Virginia, together with members of the same fraternity in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland and other States are scheduled to gather at Morgantown September 22 and 23 for the twenty-second annual reunion of the West Virginia Elks Association.

Among Elks of prominence who have accepted invitations to attend are Lawrence H. Rupp, of Allentown, Pa., grand exalted ruler, and John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, former president of the National League and a past grand exalted ruler. Tener lives at Charleroi.

Hope Seen for Cut In Apple Rail Rate

I. C. C. Official Advises Growers That Petition May Be Granted.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 17.—Hope that the 25 to 33 per cent reduction in freight rates on apples shipped in car lots from Virginia and West Virginia may be granted in time to apply to this season's movement of the fruit is held out in a reply of Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to a telegram from M. W. Fulton, president of the West Virginia Horticultural Society, requesting special handling of the case.

Mr. Eastman said the case is having consideration, and "there would seem to be no reason why a final conclusion should not be reached in the near future." He added that "you may rest assured that the matter will be forwarded as fast as possible."

The commission was told that apple growers have been hard hit, not only by trade depression in America and the long drought, but also by British embargoes.

Father, Happy at Birth Of Heir, Lands in Prison

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Overenthusiastic celebration of the birth of a son at his home landed Julius Harvich in the county jail here today.

Julius, a coal miner, started off things by exploding two charges of dynamite. Houses rocked and dishes upset, and neighbors complained to officers, who sped to the Harvich domicile. As they arrived, the proud father came dashing around a corner of the house with arms laden with six quarts of home brew, pop-eyed with delight; so they gathered him up.

Heavy Rainfall Checks West Virginia Drought

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—A 1.3-inch rainfall, recorded officially here during the past 24 hours, brought effectual relief from the drought for vegetation still having possibility of growth.

The fall was the heaviest in six months. The rain was accompanied by high winds which blew off some ripe apples, upturned some fodder stands and did some damage to trees and wire services.

KELLOGG IS ELECTED TO WORLD TRIBUNAL

League Vote Is 30 to 17; Briand Union Plan Sent to Committee.

NEW MEMBERS NAMED

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 17 (A. P.).—With the naming of Frank B. Kellogg, former United States Secretary of State, to the world court, temporary disposal of the Briand European federation plan and election of new members to the council, the league of nations today concluded its spectacular phase and turned to concrete treatment of the international questions in its six standing committees.

Under the presidency of Nicholas Politis, of Greece, the third committee, which deals with the paramount problem of disarmament, began today discussion of a proposal for giving financial assistance to attacked or menaced countries, only outlining the procedure for treating this project for discouraging war.

The fourth committee, whose work lies in the humanitarian and social domain, appointed its reporters preparatory to analyzing the work of the antinarcotic, child welfare and traffic in women organizations.

Discussions to Continue.

Tomorrow these groups will continue discussions of these subjects while the economic and political committees take up resolutions which embody the policies advanced by speakers in the general debate which closed last night.

Mr. Kellogg's election was for the fragment of a term left vacant by the resignation of Charles E. Hughes to become Chief Justice of the United States.

It is hoped in the league that Mr. Kellogg will be able to participate in a special session of the World Court beginning October 20 for the consideration of an important issue between France and Switzerland concerning Swiss customs zones. It is confidently expected that Mr. Kellogg also will be named to the full term when the full bench is elected two weeks hence.

Kellogg Wins 30 to 17.

In the secret balloting by which he was chosen Mr. Kellogg got 30 votes out of the 47 cast. While the other candidates were not announced, it was recalled that more than a score of states had nominated eleven American jurists for this short term. Well-informed persons said that certain of these states felt it was proper to support their original nominees, although the American group subsequently had nominated Kellogg.

The seventeen votes were assumed to have been distributed among these other Americans.

M. Briand's project for a federation of European states was removed from the assembly agenda for one year by today's action. In adopting unanimously the French minister's resolution, the assembly decreed that this proposal should be studied by a special committee of Europeans who will report their recommendations to the assembly next year.

Commuters Fight Train Cut Plans

Prince Georges Citizens Ask Commissioners' Aid in Keeping Service.

Commuters on the Pennsylvania Railroad through Prince Georges County have appealed to the Prince Georges County Commissioners to assist in a campaign to prevent the railroad company from discontinuing a portion of its service, effective September 28.

The railroad contends that service on the line at present is too costly, the seven local trains now on the schedule being only half filled and several nearly empty. The railroad blames the automobile and bus for the cut in passenger traffic and asks that it be permitted to discontinue three trains.

The committee of commuters, which is battling the change, headed by John R. Riggles, of Seabrook, Md., contends that the commuters have been driven from the road by the high fares and suggests that the railroad place in service single gasoline engine electric cars. They ask that one of the county commissioners appear before the public service commission at the hearing which is to be held sometime prior to September 28.

Takoma College Begins New Year

Enrollment in Missionary Institution Said to Be Above Average.

The twenty-seventh year of the WWashington Missionary College began last night in the college building in Takoma Park, when President H. H. Hamilton presided at a reception program. Speakers included the president, the Rev. F. H. Robbins, chairman of the college board; Dr. A. W. Truman, Medical supervisor of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, and the Rev. J. L. McElhaney, of the general conference of Seventh-Day Adventists.

Enrollment in the college is greatly above the average this year. It is thought that the fact that the college and associated institutions provide work for 70 per cent of the students is responsible for the large number who plan to attend. More than 400 students are expected to be enrolled this term.

The enrollment each years shows an increase, in spite of the rigid regulations governing student conduct.

Search Instituted For Four Childrne

Roslyn Boy, 11, and Sister Leave Home; Capital Youths Missing.

Police yesterday were asked to search for four children who left their homes during the day and had not returned at a late hour last night.

In company with a black and white collie crippled in his hind leg, John Jennings, 11 years old, and his sister, Anna, 10 years old, left their hime near Rooslyn, Va., about noon yesterday. Their mother, Mrs. Annie Jennings, who asked police to institute the search, could give no reason for their disappearance.

A little later in the day, Herbert Botts, 13 years old, of 2560 Rhode Island avenue northeast, and Stewart Carneal, 13 years old, of 1407 Chapin street northwest, left the Botts boy's home, where the other boy had been visiting.

GAINS BY WETS IN PRIMARIES GIVE WORRY TO REPUBLICANS

prepared to act with promptness when it receives the report of the National Law Enforcement Commission.

Coming from Senator Walcott, the statement, while it may have been purely political, should not have been buried beneath the primary results of other States, because while men are frequently referred to as "close friends" of the President, Senator Walcott is really one. He is even now living in the President's S street house. He is one of those friends that the President really likes to have come to the White House. They are long-standing, personal friends. It is quite probable that the President thinks out loud before him as he does before no other senator.

Viewpoint of Drys.

The drys will say that the Connecticut Republicans named a dry gubernatorial candidate at this convention, but they also adopted a wet plank, one that would fit right in with the dry candidate, a plank calling for return of liquor control to the States. It is sort of a high-browed, New England Yankee way of being wet.

In Wisconsin the wets picked up three Progressives. A striking feature of the primary results was the overthrow by a wet of Representative Dempsey, of upstate New York. Mr. Dempsey is the veteran chairman of the House rivers and harbors committee and is the third prominent House member to be picked off by the wets in two weeks, Representatives Cramton and Hudson, of Michigan, falling before him.

Veteran Drys Defeated.

Other upstate New York Republican drys apparently weathered the gale but the drys can not rejoice over merely holding what they already have. One of the wets' greatest obstacles is dislodging drys who have been long in office and who, because of that, have a hold on their constituents irrespective of their views on prohibition. Such were Dempsey, Cramton and Hudson, but the swell got them. It makes for nervousness among other Republicans.

There is little comfort for the drys in Massachusetts over selection of former Senator Butler as the Republican senatorial candidate; indeed, the closeness of the vote does not give so much comfort to the Republicans. Butler, running as a dry, defeated his wet opponent, Eben S. Draper, by only 9,000 in a total ballot of more than 300,000. And there was a little freakish wet candidate in the race, "Bossy" Gillis, who drew 25,000 or so votes. This on the face of the fact that Massachusetts Republicans have heretofore been considered dry.

Getting away from the strictly prohibition phase for the moment, Butler is the candidate the Democrats wanted nominated. They figure that with their wet candidate, Marcus A. Coolidge, Butler will be easier to beat.

Democrats Have Task.

The Democrats have some housework to do before they make a solid front before the Massachusetts voters, however. Joseph B. Ely was named as the gubernatorial candidate. It leaves the Boston Irish without representation except that they, of course, have an Irishman, Senator David I. Walsh, now sitting.

Mayor Curley, of Boston, who is almost as turbulent as Tom Heflin politically, has made an issue of this. He fought Ely's nomination even after Ely's opponent, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, had withdrawn from the race. Ely is not a friend of the Irish, Curley said.

Fitzgerald and Frank J. Donohue, State Democratic chairman, have rebuked Curley, however, and it is reasonable to expect that the Democrats will iron out their differences as they have done so often in Massachusetts in the past.

Boston Democrats are of the type that will sock you on the nose in a fit of anger and embrace you a minute later.

Feelings of Republicans.

The feeling on the Republican side, on the other hand, is that deep-rooted, sullen bitterness that is not so quick to express itself but carrying an embittered permanence when it does. There is some of that Draper vote that Butler will never get. Draper, incidentally, was overwhelmed in the Republican primary two years ago by B. Loring Young, who in turn was defeated by Walsh. Yet Draper runs only 9,000 behind Butler. Democrats have reason to have high hopes for Massachusetts.

As regards Delaware one wonders if the situation there is so good as the Democrats pictured it a short while ago. It was with difficulty that former Senator Bayard, a wet, was put over in convention. He and his dry opponent, Thomas F. Marvel, State chairman, ran a neck-and-neck race. The wet-and-dry division in the Democratic camp, in other words, was quite sharp, and the Republican candidate, Senator Hastings, will be running in November as a straight-out dry with no primary encumbrances.

However, Bayard will have the support of John J. Raskob and Pierre and Irenee DuPont. They are quite determined to elect him.

Victory of La Follette.

Not the least important of the day's developments was young Phil La Follette's overwhelming victory over the conservative candidate, Gov. Kohler, in Wisconsin's gubernatorial race. It sets up the La Follette dynasty again under the leadership of the La Follette boys, Phil and "Bob." It was a remarkable victory for them and a slap at the administration.

The national administration was the issue. Strangely, Kohler is about as progressive actually as the La Follettes are politically. His bathtub manufacturing plant at Kohler, Wis., is a model for labor, and there was general agreement that he had given the State a good, businesslike administration. He pays high wages and began life by working with his hands. It was the political camp he was in, coupled with the popularity of the La Follettes that brought him down.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, declared that "every Democrat has reason to be satisfied." He explained that with Marcus A. Coolidge and Joseph B. Ely as the party's candidate for senator and governor in Massachusetts, Democrats "had every right to anticipate a victory over William M. Butler and Gov. Frank G. Allen."

Bayard Choice Pleases.

With respect to the nomination of Thomas F. Bayard as the Democratic candidate for senator in Delaware, Mr. Shouse said that he was delighted. He refused to comment on the Wisconsin election, which he classed as a "Republican fight."

Mr. Shouse viewed the defeat of Representative S. Wallace Dempsey (Republican), of New York, as perhaps the most interesting of the primary results. Mr. Dempsey, he explained, was "one of the recognized spokesmen of the Hoover administration."

Henry H. Curran, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in a statement said it was a "very wet day." He said also that the wets have already gained 37 seats in the House, not counting additional gains to be made in November. It is not possible to check his claim just now, but Mr. Curran is a pretty conservative statement maker.

Sneak Thief Gets $59.12 From Finnish Legation

A sneak thief yesterday robbed the legation of Finland, 1709 Massachusetts avenue northwest, of $59.12, several bankbooks and deeds to real estate holdings, it was reported to police last night by Johanna Hytonan, of the legation staff.

The loot was taken from a desk drawer. How the robber gained admittance to the offices is a mystery to attaches of the legation.

New Figures Set on Rain City Has Not Received

Comes now a letter from D. Kellio, who takes exception to the story in The Post last Monday, which said that the rain Waashington has missed this year would float more than 47,000 Leviathans. Mr. Kellio says, on the contrary, that it would float only 1,139 ships, which sounds much more reasonable.

Valuable Rings Stolen.

David W. Berry, 1525 Q street northwest, last night told police that thieves had removed two rings valued at $90 from his home some time during the day. One of the rings held an emerald, he said, and the other was a plain gold band. The thieves gained admission by jimmying the rear door.

14 HURT AS STRIKERS RIOT IN SPANISH CITY

Granada Car Operators Stone Police and Are Met With Sabers.

UPRISING IS EXPECTED

Granada, Spain, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Fourteen persons were injured today as police broke up a meeting of 300 strikers and were stoned. Two of the injured were policemen. This was the first serious disorder growing out of the street car operators' strike.

The strikers met early this afternoon and were dispersed, but later reassembled in the Plaza de Divarrabia, where they opposed the sabers of the gendarmerie with stones and other missiles.

Traffic was tied up while the windows of nearby buildings were shattered by rocks and passersby were terrified. The demonstration was not broken up until the police had fired revolvers in the air several times and then charged with their sabres. They arrested eight strikers. Order was restored by night and civil guards patrolled the streets.

Emilio Menor, one of the agitators arrested, told the authorities that radical elements had planned the strike now in progress here and in Barcelona and that others were scheduled in various other cities as a protest against the "dictatorship" of Premier Damasco Berenguer. It is estimated that 3,500 men are out in Granada.

Geneva, Sept. 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Serious political disorders are impending in Spain, according to authoritative information reaching Geneva by underground channels. Some of these reports, which come from well-informed sources, state that the disorders will culminate in revolution against King Alfonso. Even the dates on which uprisings are anticipated are mentioned—September 18 or October 10.

Recent sporadic strikes in various localities in Spain are characterized by the New York World News Service's informants as part of a process to feel out the strength of the government.

In some quarters the forecast uprisings are interpreted as a joint move by the Republicans, Socialists, and the Conservatives, led by Sanchez Guerra. Others believe that disorders are being plotted by the Royalist group to furnish a pretext for reestablishment of a military dictatorship.

The recent overthrow of some South American governments has exerted a strong psychological influence upon popular sentiment in Spain.

149,000 Veterans Ask Disability Allowance

Applications for disability allowance on nonservice contracted disabilities by World War veterans have reached a total of more than 149,000, Col. George E. Ijams, acting director of the Veterans' Bureau, announced yesterday.

These applications are being filed at the 54 regional offices. Preliminary estimates predicted that approximately 156,000 men would benefit the first year after the new veterans' act was passed.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE would seem to be a story behind the fact that on Tuesday morning several of the leading newspapers of the country carried the information that Edgar B. Brossard would not be retained as a member of the Tariff Commission and that a few hours later his reappointment was announced by the President. Now the fact that so many papers carried this story is proof of what is actually the truth and that is that the statement that Brossard would not be reappointed came from a source close enough to the President to be considered authoritative.

From this fact the conclusion is being drawn that something happened at the last minute to put Brossard across—to cause the President to continue him on the commission.

* * * *

SOME observers, who did not get hooked by the "information," contend, on the other hand, that the question of Mr. Brossard's remaining was settled some two weeks ago—that it was at this time that Senator Reed Smoot, who had been working tirelessly in Brossard's behalf, brought the intelligence to the President that Brossard could be confirmed.

The only difference of opinion on the subject is just when Mr. Brossard got fixed up. There is an unanimity of opinion that he was slated to go because it was considered futile to reappoint him and have him rejected by the Senate.

That he has been appointed attests to Senator Smoot's belief, at least, that he has got a sufficient number of votes to confirm him.

* * * *

IF HE has them the Utah Senator will prove to have been the greatest little fixer in the world.

Because Mr. Brossard's scalp, at the last reckoning, was something the Democrats and Progressives were determined upon. Brossard has been the tariff commission in the past and the coalitionists contend they can not see the need of reorganizing that agency with him remaining in it.

He is only one man on the new commission, of course. But his appointment will be the difference in the Senate accepting the new commission as a whole with very little fuss and staging such a fight as may involve the other appointees, especially Mr. Coulter, whom the coalitionists now recall since Brossard's reappointment, Brossard brought to the commission as chief economist. Without Brossard the new commission seemed to appeal to the Democrats and Progressives as a bunch of hard working unpolitical scientists.

The indications are that the scheduled fight on him was a risk the President did not want to take, but Senator Smoot is a tenacious soul.

MARYLAND DEALER VICTIM OF SLASHER

B. H. Lyons, of Owings, Is Found Dying With Throat Cut From Ear to Ear.

FINGERPRINTS ARE CLEW

Special to The Washington Post.

Prince Frederick, Md., Sept. 17.—With his throat slashed from ear to ear, Benjamin H. Lyons, 35-year-old merchant of Owings, lay in the Prince Frederick Hospital at the point of death tonight while police sought his suspected assailant. The attack occurred early today.

Lyons was found in a pool of blood at his store by Rufus Harrison, who was to have accompanied him to Baltimore to purchase supplies. The only clues discovered were finger prints on a butcher knife which the thief used to slash the storekeeper's throat.

Lyons is believed to have had about $350 on his person prior to the robbery. Harrison told police that he went to the merchant's store before daybreak, and was waiting on the porch when he heard groans from within the house. Pushing open the door and striking a match, he found Lyons on the floor behind the counter, with window cord about his slashed throat.

Sheriff M. M. Buckler is heading the investigation. No arrests had been reported last night.

Connecticut Avenue Eviction Puzzles Police

An array of household articles sitting unceremoniously on the sidewalk of fashionable Connecticut avenue last night puzzled police and caused considerable speculation until it was learned that a United States marshal had evicted a tenant at No. 1124.

Uncertain as to how the property should be disposed of, police of the Third Precinct loaded it into the patrol and took it to the precinct station, where it was learned that the owner was Robert N. Finley. The eviction order was issued on the request of Randal H. Hagner, local real estate man.

MEN OF MONEY BACK LOAN SHARKS' NOTES

"ANGELS" REAP PROFITS

ner, it is indorsed over to him by the pseudo payee. If the name of the payee is spurious and no such person exists, then the loan shark generally has some one in his employ indorse the name of the fictitious payee. This, it might be pointed out, is almost never done, for the reason that in case by some accident that note should ever be brought into court, it would be necessary for the loan shark either to produce a nonexistent payee, or to explain the obvious forgery.

The first alternative obviously would be impossible, and the second highly embarrassing.

With that array of force conspiring against him, it is quite palpably a situation where "the sucker never gets an even break." If the attempts of the loan shark himself to extort his usurious interest are defeated, the silent partner then steps in and does his stuff.

Claims of Innocence.

He claims—and who can dispute him and get away with it?—that he is an innocent third party who has bought the notes in a bona fide transaction. He has paid his money for the notes, he insists, and is collecting not one penny of interest, but having spent his hard-earned cash on what he declares he thought was an honest, responsible investment, naturally he wants what is coming to him.

The borrower may know to his own entire satisfaction that the final holder of the notes is not, as he so altruistically insists, an innocent victim of the borrower's delinquency, but as the laws of the District now are framed, for the borrower to prove what he knows to the satisfaction of the court is another matter entirely.

Not only are the so-called established loan sharks, with offices, stenographers and collectors, preying on the penurious public by charging usurious rates for the use of their money, but numerically, at least, there is another class of loan sharks preying upon the public, principally in governmental departments.

Loans to Fellow Workers.

These are employes of those departments who make it a practice to lend money to their fellow workers at rates ranging anywhere from 20 to 100 per cent per month, depending upon how serious and pressing is the borrower's need.

In one department, for instance, a colored elevator operator for years has been reaping a tremendous harvest lending employes in the department anywhere from $1 to $100 "just until pay day," at rates ranging from 25 per cent for the larger amounts down to 100 per cent for the smaller sums.

To borrow $2 from him, for instance, the borrower promises that when pay day comes around, he will pay back $4. And what is more, when pay day arrives, the elevator operator is on the job and he collects. If the borrower attempts to stall, the elevator boy threatens to inform the man's boss, and if that fails to accomplish results, he actually does report the situation.

Waits for Witnesses.

Some time when he has the department chief and plenty of other listeners in his car he addresses his chief in this wise:

"Boss, that Mr. Magadget in your office borrowed $4 (or whatever the amount with interest adds up to) last month, and now he says he won't pay me back. Boss, I need that money, and I sure would be happy could you help me get it back."

Because it is known that the elevator operator-loan shark really will go to the top to force a delinquent debtor to settle up, it is almost never that he has need to resort to that weapon.

The fact remains, however, that this elevator operator, as well as all others like him in Government departments—and it appears that practically every department has its employe who hangs on to his job for no other reason than that it enables him to function as a loan shark—are just as certainly usurers as are the other loan sharks who operate from offices of their own and lend to all comers. These departmental employes, as a matter of fact, get practically all of the governmental business which some of the loan sharks will not touch for the reason that the salary of a Government worker can not be garnisheed.

RITCHIE PLACES BAN ON MARYLAND BOOM

SENDS TYDINGS LETTER

sideration of presidential candidates for 1932, and that it is unfair at this early date to call on Maryland Democrats to commit themselves to any one candidate.

It is also understood that the governor felt an indorsement for the Presidency at this time would be more embarrassing than helpful to him, since he has not yet been reelected, an important factor in any consideration of his status as presidential timber.

The governor's letter was as follows:

"I understand that you will be the unanimous choice of the delegates for chairman of the Democratic convention, which meets tomorrow, and I am writing you in that capacity.

"I have learned that consideration is being given by some of my friends among the delegates to the introduction in the convention of a resolution indorsing me as our party's next candidate for the Presidency.

"It seems to me that the proceedings of our convention tomorrow should not be diverted from the issues of the present campaign in this State by any consideration of who our next nominee for the Presidency ought to be.

"Maryland Democrats can be relied on to back whoever they consider the best nominee for the Presidency when the proper time comes, and if any resolution referring to me in this connection should be introduced in the convention tomorrow I will appreciate it if the convention does not take any action upon it."

To Fight Administration.

This does not mean that Democrats and Gov. Ritchie will not make the national Republican administration an issue in this campaign. They fully intend doing that in the tentative platform which has been drafted for presentation to the convention resolutions committee.

The collapse of prosperity, unemployment, the Hawley-Smoot tariff, farm relief and Federal finances are dwelled on in the platform already prepared for a caucus of Democratic leaders, who will present it to the resolutions committee.

Moreover, responsibility for the breakdown in prosperity, the throwing out of work of thousands of persons, the declining foreign trade of the Nation and the condition of agriculture all are laid at the door of the Republican administration in Washington.

Prohibition Made Issue.

The tentative platform justifies this excursion into national issues and politics on the ground that six Democratic candidates for Congress are seeking the votes of the people of Maryland this year and that the election of these Democrats will be a step toward assuring relief from the conditions brought about from the Republican administration.

As drafting of the tentative platform was concluded yesterday, it appeared that the three issues the Democrats will raise in the State campaign will be Gov. Ritchie's record for the last ten years, prohibition and the Hoover administration at Washington.

The prohibtion plank reiterates Maryland "home rule" principles first put forth in the Democratic State convention of 1923.

This plank proposes that the problem of prohibition be turned back to the States. A pledge to oppose a State-wide enforcement act pursuant to the Volstead act is made in this plank, which also recognizes the rights of the counties of Maryland to have as stringent liquor laws as each desires.

Harmony Is Expected.

The convention is expected to be free from any major disagreements All the delegates elected are regarded personally and politically as friendly to Gov. Ritchie; and although many of them are drys, there was no apparent evidence last night that any will seek to change or modify the prohibition plank.

The plank originally was introduced to the Democratic party in this State in 1923 by Emery L. Coblentz, of Frederick. Mr. Coblentz, who was chairman of the resolutions committee that year, was then a dry and still is regarded as a dry. However, he did not believe that the plank was incompatible with his prohibition beliefs.

William C. Walsh, of Cumberland, former member of the Maryland Court of Appeals, will be chairman of the resolutions committee. Blair Lee, former United States senator and for years leader of the progressive wing of the Democratic party in Maryland, will leave his political retirement to place Gov. Ritchie in nomination before the convention.

To Ratify Platform.

Aside from the selection of Gov. Ritchie and the other State-wide candidates, a pure formality, and the speechmaking, the convention will do little beyond satifying the platform which will come from the resolutions committee.

In drafting the tentative platform which will be presented to the resolutions committee, Gov. Ritchie asked the other Statewide candidates and leaders of all factions of the party to assist him.

Among those who participated in the meetings which drafted this document, were Howard W. Jackson, William Curran, Robert B. Ennis, W. Mason Shehan, David C. Winebrener 3d, William S. Gordy, jr., E. Brooke Lee, Leonard Weinberg, Charles H. Knapp, J. Enos Ray, chairman of the Democratic State central committee; R. Howard Bland, Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson, Eugene H. Bur, Morton Prentiss, Stuart S. Janney and Mr. Walsh.

The meetings last night and today marked the first at which Mr. Jackson, Mr. Curran and Mr. Ennis have sat side by side at a political council table since the last primary fight. It was reported that the three leaders were in accord on most of the questions raised.

Man Goes to Gallinger After Reporting Killing

A man who claimed to be a nephew of Representative Charles L. Underhill, of Massachusetts, was committed to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation last night after he had told authorities that he had just murdered the chief of police at Hyattsville, Md. The man gave his name as George W. Underhill, of Bridgeport, Conn.

Police said that he walked into Walter Reed Hospital late in the afternoon and asked protection from gangsters. He explained that his life was in danger because he had killed one of Al Capone's men in St. Louis recently.

Pennies and Pistol Are Loot.

Entering the store at 1200 Delaware avenue southwest by forcing a side window, thieves yesterday took 32 pennies and a 38-caliber revolver. Benjamin Friedman, of the Delaware avenue address, reported the theft to police.

"Yes—we're building in Northgate this Fall—just bought a wonderful lot, sheltered by historic old trees in this artistocratic development. And next week the North Washington Realty engineers and architect are going to help us plan the kind of home WE want in a practical way."

"Of course, I, just like every other woman, have treasured many of my ideas since girlhood. I always wanted oodles of friendly book shelves and deep closets, at least three baths, an extra log fireplace in my own bedchamber. And George has always wanted his own den, a billiard and radio room—and many other things dear to a man's heart that the average home simply doesn't give. Then there are the children—but——"

"Now we're going to get exactly what we want. And, just like George said at breakfast, 'the first practical step was made when we chose our adorable homesite in Northgate.'"

"Why Northgate? Well, we've shopped around; we've burned oceans of gas in order to find out where the best fine homesite values around Washington really are. The answer was Northgate—that's why we're building there."

WISCONSIN SENATOR MARRIES SECRETARY

La Follette Weds Miss Young, Native of Capital, in Madison.

COUPLE LEAVES ON TRIP

Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, and his secretary, Miss Rachel Wilson Young, of Washington, were quietly married in Madison, Wis., yesterday, according to Associated Press dispatches received here. Miss Young lived with her parents at 1869 Mintwood place northwest.

The couple left for an unannounced destination shortly after the ceremony. They had planned to be married in Washington, but the senator's presence in Wisconsin was made necessary by his brother Philip's campaign for governor.

Mrs. L. C. Young, mother of the bride, said that the wedding came as no surprise, although she did not know what plans the couple had made.

The Youngs, members of an old Virginia family, have lived in Washington for 30 years. The bride graduated from Central High School here and has been employed in Senator La Follette's office for several years.

The young senator was born at Madison, Wis., February 6, 1895. He served for a number of years as secretary to his father, the elder Senator La Follette, and was elected to the Senate in 1925. He is chairman of the Senate committee on manufactures and holds a seat on the important foreign relations committee.

ment, went to the hospital to investigate the accident.

Higgins told the policeman that the car had upset when Coombs, driving at a high rate of sped, lost control. The soldier said he had been hitchhiking to his post when the other two men in the machine picked him up.

Coombs insisted that he knew Marcey only as "John," and that he had met him in Washington and taken him along to Baltimore for company. State police in Maryland report that the automobile was stolen early Sunday morning from James W. Ryan, 2808 Thirty-fourth place northwest.

Five Nebraska Bandits Loot Bank of $20,000

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Five unmasked men armed with pistols and submachine guns invaded the Lincoln National Bank today and obtained an undetermined number of securities and $20,000 to $30,000 in cash. First reports from employes that $1,000,000 in securities had been stolen were denied later by J. T. Shields, assistant cashier, who said the amount was small.

The bandits slugged President W. H. Barkley and Cashier Phil Hall before ordering a score of employes and customers to lie on the floor while they cleaned out tills and security boxes.

"White Smoke" Drink Kills Seven in New York

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—"White smoke," a mixture of denatured alcohol and milk, caused the death of seven men in the "Tin Mountains," a colony of tin shacks in Brooklyn, chemical analysis of the mixture indicated today. Three of the men were dead when they were found yesterday. The others died in hospitals.

The tin shacks are used by seamen. Police said the men had purchased a quart of painter's alcohol for 35 cents and mixed it with boiled milk.

DRY LAW HELD BOON TO POLITICIANS

especially patronage. And by my experience as zone supervisor I know that the same condition exists everywhere in the country.

Longs for Thorough Inquiry.

What a story the 26 prohibition administrators could unfold if called before a congressional investigating committee! But it will never be done. For every senator and representative is interested in patronage, especially if he is of the administration party.

The case I related of Senator Curtis forcing one of his men back into the service is an incident in point. There is Senator Norris, too, who opened his dry campaign before the Epworth League in Lincoln, Nebr., last July 26, with the declaration that "prohibition enforcement has been and still is honeycombed with partisan politics." He cited examples from Maj. Mills' revelations about New York. But he carefully refrained from showing up conditions among his own constituents in Omaha, which is quite as wet and corrupt as New York.

All this is quite apart from any individual bribery. Your politician doesn't see favoritism as corruption. That's the way his mind works.

And the men who campaign against prohibition and criticise the enforcement ranks, notably Representative LaGuardia, are among the most insistent in forcing their henchmen into the service.

An immense volume of this political maneuvering with prohibition goes on locally. But much of it is backed up through the Prohibition Bureau in Washington.

Reinstatements Ordered.

When I left Washington to assume the post of administrator in New York in July, 1927, I had neatly tucked under my arm the personnel folders of seven prohibition agents whom my predecessor, Maj. Mills, had dismissed. I had been instructed immediately to reinstate them.

They were Isaac Freidenburg, Emil Manzello, David Levy, John J. Kerrigan, Samuel Kupferman, Louis J. Obici and Frank A. Nelson. Most of these men were Republican political workers in New York and all were strongly backed by Representative LaGuardia and Samuel S. Koenig, Republican leader of New York County.

After their dismissal by Maj. Mills, at the insistence of Koenig and LaGuardia, Assistant Secretary Andrews ordered the circumstances of their dismissal inquired into. A board of four other agents was appointed. The result was that all seven were recommended for reinstatement. That was the situation when I took hold of things. I didn't know how much of a whitewash the inquiry had been.

Before I left Washington both Assistant Secretary Lowman and Commissioner Doran talked very candidly about the political situation in New York and were anxious that I should try to smooth it out.

I looked very carefully over the seven folders, whose contents were later to be made the subject of Maj. Mills' revelations in Colliers.

Lowman Backed Nelson.

I decided I might best be warranted in recommending the reinstatement of Nelson, but before I had taken any action I received a letter from Mr. Lowman, dated July 30, reporting that "strong pressure" was being used for Nelson and "as I understand it Nelson's record was all right. Some people tried to frame him, but he was acquitted by the courts." He inclosed a letter from Frederick Oppikofer, a member of the Republican State committee, to himself, about Nelson:

"This is the matter about which Ogden Mills and Charles D. Hilles have corresponded with you. You are doubtless very familiar with it. Mr. Nelson has not heard anything for some time. * * * I presume that you are overwhelmed with matters of this kind, but this case is exceptionally meritorious."

I decided to reinstate Nelson. Of course, I never had much confidence in him, but I knew his political connections and decided to place him where he could not do much harm.

About a year after his reinstatement Nelson was caught in his off hours shaking down a speakeasy in Mount Vernon, N. Y. He was convicted and on April 18, 1929, was sentenced to serve two to five years at hard labor in Sing Sing Prison.

Shortly after reinstating Nelson, I had the other six dismissed agents in to see me and certainly was not impressed with any of them.

The records of two of them were later summed up by The World as follows:

John J. Kerrigan.

November 2, 1921: Was one of a party which shot Joseph Morris in course of a raid.

July 3, 1922: Arrested for pointing pistol at John Devlin, director of public safety at Bayonne, N. J.

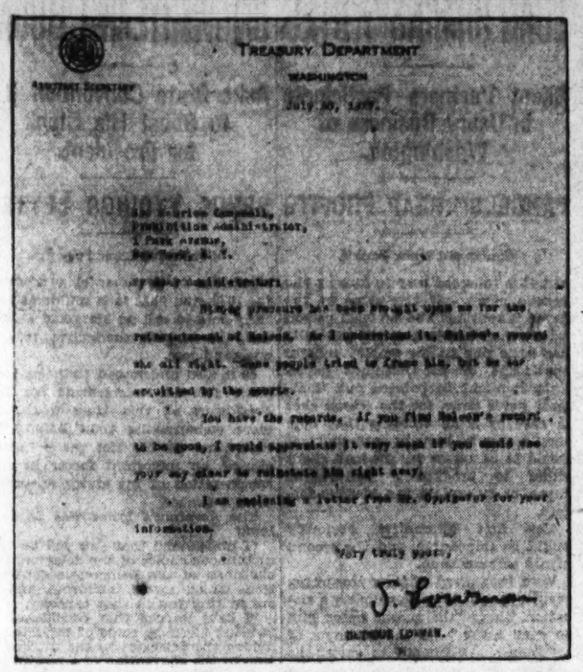
REPRESENTATIVE FIORELLO LA GUARDIA, wet critic of prohibition agents, who fights to keep his own men on dry enforcement jobs.



TREASURY DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON
July 30, 1927.

Lowman letter backing up plea for reinstatement of agent later sent to prison.

January 1, 1924: Accused of beating up Charles Goldberg and Edward T. Bellow, jr., youths, in course of raid.

October 4, 1925: Involved in quarrel which resulted in shooting and killing of Owen Boyle by Patrolman F. P. Dugan. At trial admitted he had told false story to detectives on the arrest of Dugan.

October 7, 1926: Arrested for having in his possession a set of burglars' tools. Arraigned, he said he came into possession of them in course of his official duties, and was released.

November 10, 1926: Dismissed for "inefficiency."

Samuel Kupferman.

November 8, 1921: Arrested for lending gun to man who took it and shot a boy.

November 26, 1923: Arrested for taking part in gun fight with taxi drivers.

April 18, 1924: Arrested for killing Thomas Monteforte, an alleged bootlegger. Not indicted.

November 14, 1925: Dismissed.

That was the record as a newspaper had it. Of course, there was plenty more in the personal files on their conduct and activities. Kerrigan was a protege of Koenig and Kupferman was one of LaGuardia's valued workers.

Because of particular pressure for these two, I decided to reinstate them.

After considering the records of the other four backed by Koenig and LaGuardia and passed by a Government inquiry, however, I could not accept them. I never recommended them.

Kerrigan and Kupferman came back into the service and after a short time were continually in trouble. Subsequently Kupferman was indicted for extortion but was acquitted. Kerrigan was indicted in Brooklyn on a charge of convoying a truck load of smuggled liquor over the roads of Long Island. The truck was captured by my men in Huntington and Kerrigan and another agent were found in the party. Kerrigan also was acquitted.

Both Out of Service.

But both of them have been out of the service a long time.

In commenting on the reappointment of these two men, after citing the records above, the World declared that "by reappointing them the prohibition administrator merely confirms the general belief that the whole prohibition service is manned by about as low a crew as could well be assembled anywhere."

That was not correct, for in general (especially after I had had a chance to do some weeding) my men were a fine, loyal lot. But a few black sheep, forced on the service by politicians, can do a lot of damage to the general morale as well as by their individual deeds.

During my first winter in New York an incident occurred which gave me some insight into what was then the situation. I drove my car up in front of the prohibition headquarters at 1 Park avenue on a cold, snowy day. The policeman came up to me from the corner.

"Say, give me a slug, will you?" he said. "I am cold."

I assured him I didn't have any whisky.

"Beg your pardon," he said. "I thought you were a prohibition agent."

Bribes Often Offered.

But, as I have said, my men were generally conscientious. Often my agents reported that pressure was being put upon them, that bribes had been offered. The following case is typical of several:

On November 3, 1928, the head of my investigation section reported that Agent C. A. Mullaney had been approached by a certain Republican Assembly district leader, whom I shall not name at present, and had been requested to "go easy" on a prisoner arrested in the seizure of a still near Poughkeepsie. I have Mullaney's affidavit on the matter. He was invited to the district club and there told to "lay off" in the matter of testimony when the case came to trial. When he refused he was asked how much he wanted.

I complimented the agent on his honesty and told him to go ahead as though nothing had happened and I would back him up.

Then I telephoned Koenig and told him about the incident. He promised that the district leader would be called off, and such proceedings would be stopped. The next day the district leader came to see me and said he had been sent by Koenig. I told him there would be unpleasant consequences if there were a repetition of this occurrence. He admitted everything Mullaney had told me, and I could not argue with the man because he could not see that he had done anything very terrible.

That's a politician's viewpoint, and Koenig's was just as surprising. While he condemned the action of this political leader under him, the very next day he called on me and asked me to reinstate an agent who had been dropped from the service because of his proven criminal record.

Politics Means Protection.

But do you suppose Agent Mullaney would have been so straightforward if he had been a political heeler? Politics means protection, and it is useless to expect a politically appointed agent to make a prohibition case when his political leader says "lay off." off."

Nevertheless, I knew when I came to New York that I would have to try to keep the politicians pacified. I had a $100,000 deficit, and the only way I could balance my budget was to dispense with some 40 or 50 agents, whose salaries at that time were about $2,000. Judging on merits, it would have been an easy job to weed these out, but since most of my force had political backing, it was difficult.

I handled the matter by getting lists of the men in whom politicians were interested from the Republican chairmen of the five counties comprising Greater New York: Samuel S. Koenig, of New York; Jacob A. Livingston, of Kings; Albert D. Brunner, of the Bronx; Joseph de Bragga, of Queens, and Clinton J. Sharrett, of Richmond. Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., also gave me a list of the men in whom he was interested. This proved a master stroke, as it showed the political strings on my men.

I revised my list again and again, determined to keep every good agent who lacked political backing, and at the same time tread on as few political toes as possible.

Had Criminal Records.

Investigation at this time showed that two men had criminal records and would have to go. Koenig pleaded very hard for one of them, who was high on his list, but I dropped him just the same. Later, however, I learned that the man was working in another district.

I went to Washington August 12 and Assistant Secretary Lowman instructed me to submit to him the list of men I was dropping before taking final action. He told me he was flooded with requests from New York, particularly from Koenig and Charles D. Hilles.

I told Lowman I was trying to cooperate with the political factions in New York and he said that was right.

"You know, Hilles is my boss," he added.

I made no comment to this, though it sounded strange coming from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, but it explained a lot of things.

I soon had a list of 25 for dismissal and sent it to Washington. It included a number of political appointees, but the list was approved before the politicians found it out. There was some protest, but nothing serious.

But I soon found that some of the men were working in Newark and neighboring districts. It is awfully hard to get rid of men when Washington has its ear to the political ground.

In 1927 Mr. Lowman complained to me that two of my agents, Geisler and Mannix, were involved in a brawl and shooting scrape in a speakeasy near Hudson, N. Y. After an investigation they were dropped from the service. Geisler was strongly backed by Koenig. He came to see me a number of times trying to get reinstated.

Finally Geisler was reinstated in the Albany district, and on the last day I was in office I received a telegram from the commissioner instructing me to employ Geisler in my district as a special employe. I did not do it. Whether it has been done since I retired I do not know.

Janitress, 44, Attacked And Killed in Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Jakubiak, 44-year-old janitress and mother of four children, was attacked and slain early today as she returned to her home from the downtown building where she was employed.

Her body, throat slashed and clothing torn and disheveled, was found in a path near her home. Police believe the slayer accosted the woman, dragged her into the dusty path that served as an alley and killed her. Her purse lay open near her body, her pay check untouched.

Pills Are Blamed In Death of Three

Mother Tells Officers That Poison Pellets May Have Killed Children.

Los Angeles, Sept. 7 (A.P.).—The possibility poisonous pills may have killed three children and critically stricken four others of the same family was suggested to sheriff's deputies today by Mrs. Robert Lowe, the mother. She and her husband told of pills found and eaten by the children. Questioning of the couple began after their three eldest children became ill early today.

Capt. Walter Hunter said Mrs. Lowe related some of her children had brought home a bottle of pills. She said she assumed they were harmless pellets of a kind commonly kept in homes for children suffering indigestion.

Betty, 5; Virginia, 3, and John, 18 months, died Sunday night after an illness of a few hours. Lois, 7, taken ill simultaneously, continues in a critical condition at the general hospital.

Robert, 14; Frances, 11, and Geneva, 9, were rushed to the hospital early today when they were stricken with similar symptoms. Physicians at first attributed the illness to food poisoning.

Capital Man Bequeathed $2,500.

Thomas J. Stead, of the Wardman Park Hotel, will receive approximately $2,500 from the estate of his late brother, William Potter Stead, according to terms of a will filed for probate in New York yesterday. Mr. Stead died August 24 last, leaving an estate valued at $5,000.

U. S. TO RECOGNIZE PROVISIONAL REIGNS

Envoys to Argentina, Peru and Bolivia to Present Credentials Today.

STIMSON EXPLAINS ACT

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Three provisional governments in South America, all born of bloody revolts, will be formally recognized by the United States Government today, it was announced yesterday by Secretary of State Stimson.

In Argentina, where the eccentric President Hipolito Irigoyen was driven from office ten days ago, Ambassador Bliss will present letters of credence and notify the provisional government that it has been recognized. In Peru, where President Legula was deposed in August, Ambassador Dearing will do likewise, and in Bolivia, where the existing government was overturned in June, Minister Feely will follow a similar course.

Recognition by the United States will be a boon for the three provisional governments, from both a political and an economic standpoint. As Secretary Stimson pointed out, it will help them to reestablish their "normal intercourse with the rest of the world."

In announcing the decision of the American Government to recognize the provisional governments of Argentina, Bolivia and Peru, Secretary of State Stimson said:

"In reaching the conclusion to accord recognition to these three governments, the evidence has satisfied me that these provisional governments are de facto in control of their respective countries and that there is no active resistance to their rule. Each of the present governments has also made it clear that it is its intention to fulfill its respective international obligations and to hold in due course elections to regularize its status.

"The action of the United States in thus recognizing the present Argentine, Peruvian and Bolivian governments does not represent any new policy by the United States toward the nations of South America and the rest of the world.

"I have deemed it wise to act promptly in this matter in order that in the present economic situation our delay may not embarrass the people of these friendly countries in reestablishing normal intercourse with the rest of the world."

Explanation by Stimson.

Asked to clarify his statement that this does not represent any change in policy, Secretary Stimson continued:

"In acting toward these three governments, which we are recognizing tomorrow, we are following the regular rules of international law, and the regular policy which has characterized this country ever since the first Secretary of State announced it—Mr. Jefferson, in the administration of President Washington.

"But with certain countries there are differences made by treaty either with us or between each other. For example, the five Central American countries have entered into a treaty between themselves in which they agreed not to recognize any government which came into office by virtue of a coup d'etat or a revolution. That was done in 1923, and although we were not a party to the treaty, we were in hearty accord with it and we agreed on our part that we would follow the same policy with respect to the five republics who had agreed upon it."

Recognition By Other Nations.

After quoting from a statement made by former Secretary of State Hughes in June, 1923, four months after the five Central American countries had signed the treaty of peace and amity here, Secretary Stimson pointed out that this treaty evidently was designed to discourage a revolution or a coup d'etat within the five republics. So far as those five republics was concerned, he said, the policy was one that the United States could indorse.

But, he added, it is quite different from the general policy of this country and of the general policy of international law toward the recognition of governments in the world at large.

The United States is not the first government to recognize the new government in Argentina, six others having already taken this step—Chile, Paraguay, the Vatican State, Germany, Italy and Sweden.

The MacDonald government in Great Britain is expected to accord recognition soon.

Takoma Park Lad Hurt When Struck by Auto

Seafird Mease, 7 years old, of Takoma Park, was slightly injured yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile driven by Frank P. Wilson, Upshur street near First street northwest. Mr. Wilson took the boy to the office of Dr. W. A. Shannon, who treated him for cuts and bruises on the body.

According to the report made to Sergt. Earl Burdine in charge of the Takoma Park substation of the Montgomery County Police, the boy darted from the curb and ran in front of the car. He was on his way to school at the time. No arrest was made.

Impeachment Charge Against Long Dropped

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The Louisiana House of Representatives in a special resolution today voted to wipe out the 1929 impeachment proceedings against Gov. Huey P. Long. The vote was 69 to 19.

The resolution authorized dismissal of the board of managers appointed last year to prosecute the governor before the State Senate and requested the Senate to drop indictments of "high crimes and misdemeanors," which had been voted by that body and were still pending before the Senate.

PRATT TAKES OATH OF U.S. NAVY CHIEF

Admiral Hughes Bids Farewell to Fellow Officers; Chase Fleet Commander.

HALLIGAN IN NEW DUTIES

In the presence of Secretary of the Navy Adams and as many high ranking officers of the Navy as could crowd into the room, Admiral Charles F. Hughes yesterday laid aside his duties as chief of naval operations, and Admiral William V. Pratt, fresh from the fleet, assumed the duties of that office.

Addressing his fellow officers in farewell, Admiral Hughes said:

"Gentlemen, I just want to say good-by and to thank you for your loyal and cordial assistance, and I trust it will continue."

Admiral Pratt, after a brief pause, replied:

"I have nothing to say except that I am sorry to see Freddy go."

After Admiral Pratt took the oath of office, naval officers present, many of whom had served under Admiral Hughes in the department and at sea, filed past the retiring chief and bade him farewell. In leaving the room they paid their respects to Admiral Pratt.

Preceding the ceremony in the office of the chief of naval operations, Rear Admiral John V. Chase, member of the general board, received his orders as commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, succeeding Admiral Pratt with the rank of admiral. Admiral Chase will hoist his flag on the flagship Texas at San Pedro, Calif., on October 6.

Immediately following the swearing in of Admiral Pratt in an adjacent office, Rear Admiral John Halligan, jr., "took over" as assistant to the chief of naval operations, relieving Rear Admiral William H. Standley, who next month will take over command of the destroyer squadrons of the battle fleet. Admiral Halligan comes to his new post from command of the aircraft squadrons, scouting fleet.

Admiral Pratt told newspaper men he wanted a "treay navy." He will begin work at once on the naval building program to be submitted to Congress in accordance with the terms of the LoLndon naval treaty.

President Marvin's talk will deal generally with the liberalizing of education, and specifically with the educational principles underlying the reorganization of George Washington which has just been effected.

New instructors who will be presented to their colleagues at the meeting are Dr. Edgar A. J. Johnson, associate professor of economics; Dr. Alva Curtis Wilgus, associate professor of Hispanic-American history; Dr. Frank Mark Weida, associate professor of mathematics; Henry Goddard Roberts, assistant professor of public speaking; James Forrester Davison, assistant professor of law; Albert Lett, instructor in mechanical engineering; Kathryn Mildred Towne, instructor in home economics; Ruth Mary Aubeck, instructor in physical education for women; William C. Johnstone, instructor in political science; Ralph Hoskins Hudson, lecturer in law; James Oliver Murdock, lecturer in law; John Monteith McFall, lecturer in law; William Moore Loman, lecturer in psychology; Joseph Milnor Dorey, lecturer in play production, and J. Blaine Gwin, lecturer in sociology.

President Marvin will entertain the deans and executive officers of the university at luncheon tomorrow.

Registration for the university's 110th academic year will open Saturday, continuing through Tuesday, and classes will resume Wednesday.

Meetings for freshmen will be held Wednesday at noon and at 5:10 p. m.

Woman Chases Prowler And Causes His Arrest

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Miss Freda Shapiro awoke last night to find a man prowling in her room. Unarmed she leaped upon him, but the visitor tore away and fled. She followed, overtook him a block away and seized him again with a firmer hold. Her screams attracted a passerby who summoned officers and the prowler was taken to police headquarters.

Miss Shapiro told of the chase in court today when a man who said he is Henry Henderson, of Birmingham, Ala., was arraigned. He had nothing to say and was bound over to await action of the grand jury.

Announcing the Merger

of the

Federal-American National Bank and the

Merchants Bank and Trust Company

The approval of the consolidation of the Federal-American National Bank and the Merchants Bank and Trust Company by the directors of the Federal-American National Bank was given on Tuesday, September 16th.

Final ratification will have to receive the sanction of the stockholders of the two banks at their meetings to be held October 20th, 1930.

When this is consummated immediate steps will be taken for the actual consolidation of the two institutions under the name of the FEDERAL-AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY.

It is the purpose of the consolidation to continue all directors, all officers and all employes of both banks, and to operate all five banking offices, namely—

Fourteenth and G Streets
Fifteenth and H Streets
Dupont Circle
Pennsylvania Avenue and Twentieth Street
Brookland (Twelfth and Newton Streets N.E.)

It is hoped that the consolidation with its increased resources and service will continue to bespeak the confidence and patronage heretofore enjoyed by both banks.

A HELPING HAND.

President Hoover's action in extending recognition to the revolutionary governments of Argentina, Peru and Bolivia is doubtless based upon the hope that it will help to stabilize those governments and enable them to take early steps toward reconstruction and rehabilitation. The three countries concerned are hard pressed, in common with many other countries, and the sooner they can settle their political troubles the sooner they can grapple with the real difficulty, which is economic in nature.

In answer to the criticism that the United States is taking an inconsistent position when it recognizes revolutionary governments in South America and refuses to recognize such governments in Central America it might be stated that actualities must be considered, rather than a general policy. Do the new governments of Argentina, Peru and Bolivia have the support of the people? If so, the manner in which they have come into being loses importance. A revolution that moves toward restoration of popular government is not to be condemned offhand. The United States is itself the child of revolution.

It would have been well if the provisional governments set up in South America had been immediately superseded by governments chosen by the people. But it is not always possible to bring about immediate elections. No doubt the provisional governments are trying to restore the constitutional system in each case. The United States certainly has no interest in delaying this process, and its prompt recognition of the de facto regimes may have the effect of increasing public confidence in the temporary authorities and in encouraging them to perform the patriotic duty of calling elections as soon as possible

The new governments can well afford to deal leniently with the regimes that have been ousted. Stripped of power, the former officials are not in a position to stir up counter-revolutions. The deep passions that gave rise to the revolts should not now drive the new possessors of power into excesses. They can afford to let bygones be bygones. They have a heavy enough task in reorganizing for the future, without adding to their burdens by raking over the past.

TUTTLE'S CONVERSION.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, issues a statement announcing his resignation and setting forth his views on prohibition, while at the same time declaring that he is not a candidate for governor and adding "I do not wish to be considered."

This statement is so obviously insincere that it merits the stinging comment made by Samuel Untermyer: "He will not have to be drafted. After his persistent efforts to get nominated, I wonder if he expects this last statement to be taken seriously."

Mr. Tuttle gives as a reason for his resignation the following: "I have held this office far beyond the time agreed when I accepted it on April 6, 1927, and it is necessary for me to return soon to private practice." If this statement is to be accepted at face value, and if Mr. Tuttle is in earnest in wishing to be eliminated from consideration for the governorship, the remainder of his statement is mere surplusage. He furnishes to the public an elaborate statement of his personal views on the eighteenth amendment and how he would modify it.

Why should Mr. Tuttle enter into a discussion of the eighteenth amendment if he is compelled to quit office and return to private practice of the law? Who cares what his private opinion may be on this question, if he is to become a private citizen? Every citizen has his own opinion, and plans for solving the prohibition problem are as numerous as citizens.

Mr. Tuttle does not give the date of his conversion to the wet cause, but presumably it is recent, because he is not the kind of man who would cling to an office and remain under the responsibility of enforcing a law which he believed to be wrong. If he had held the views he now expresses he would have resigned some time ago.

Naturally, the opposition will suggest that the political situation in New York State has had much to do with Mr. Tuttle's conversion. Democrats will insist that Mr. Tuttle has been compelled to declare himself on the wet side as a result of Gov. Roosevelt's recent pronunciamento to the same effect. This opposition opinion is based, of course, upon the assumption that Mr. Tuttle is to be nominated for governor by the Republicans.

The Republican situation in New York State is not very promising. Mr. Tuttle evidently hopes that the party will brush aside his feeble protestations and draft him for the governorship. If this should be done he will invite defeat at the hands of enraged drys, who rarely fail to punish a deserter. Gov. Roosevelt's wetness is not an overnight conversion. No man could have been so eloquent in nominating Gov. Al Smith for the presidential nomination if he had not shared Gov. Smith's views. The drys have expected Gov. Roosevelt to come out on the wet side. He will not be accused of backsliding. But Mr. Tuttle will be charged with becoming a wet for politics' sake. Genuine wets will probably prefer a dyed-in-the-wool wet, while genuine drys will probably select a candidate of their own. Mr. Tuttle has not helped the cause of the Republican party by the manner in which he maneuvers for the gubernatorial nomination.

NO SHOWDOWN ON PROHIBITION.

Primary campaigns for the selection of candidates to uphold party banners in the November election have been completed, and the next seven weeks will be given to intensive interparty combat. As usual the primaries have given little indication of what to expect in the final returns. But there is evidence that the electorate is not alarmed about anything, and any great change in the political make-up of Congress would be a surprise.

It is also quite evident that the ubiquitous question of prohibition will remain a thorn in the side of both parties. This issue has been mixed in the campaigns to a varying degree, but there has been no clean-cut victory for either the wets or the drys, and the line-up of candidates suggests that the returns from the November election will be equally indecisive.

Massachusetts will perhaps come nearer than any other State to testing out the actual sentiments of its people on the eighteenth amendment. The Republican party remained dry, nominating William M. Butler for the Senate and Gov. Frank G. Allen for governor. Their Democratic opponents are Marcus A. Coolidge for the Senate and Joseph B. Ely for governor, both of whom are wets. Other issues will enter into the Massachusetts campaign, however, and the personal element, which counts for much in New England, may outweigh the attitude of the candidates toward prohibition.

The Democratic party in Delaware likewise went wet, nominating Thomas F. Bayard for the Senate and declaring for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. He will oppose Senator Daniel O. Hastings, who was nominated by the Republicans on a dry platform a week ago. But economic issues and State problems also written into both platforms will make it impossible to interpret the returns on the basis of prohibition alone.

The dry laws were not an issue in Wisconsin, where young "Phil" La Follette was nominated on the Republican ticket for governor. The State is still under the spell of "Progressivism" cast by the elder La Follette many years ago, and not even the prohibition issue gets a look-in. Connecticut nominated a dry, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, for governor, on a platform that advocated control of liquor by the States.

Both the wets and drys are able to find satisfaction in the primary balloting. But neither can count any gains, and all that the two major parties reap from the agitation of this issue is further grief and new schisms. The prohibition question is so hopelessly involved in intraparty strife and so profoundly confused with a hundred other issues that both factions will have difficulty in counting noses when the balloting is over.

AMTORG REVELATIONS.

When the congressional committee investigating communism in the United States gave attention to charges that the Amtorg Trading Corporation was a political as well as a commercial representative of the Soviet government, officials of the agency threatened to divert Russian trade to other countries unless the accusations were withdrawn. A vice president of Amtorg, who for four years held an important position with the Soviet agency, has now resigned because he could not persuade his Communist associates to give American business a square deal. He substantiates, in part, the charges that were made against the trading corporation before the committee.

B. W. Delgass is under sentence of death for resigning his post and refusing to return to Russia. His name must be added to the long list of Russians who are sent abroad by the Soviet government on official missions and refuse to return. There is a certain contagion about communism in Russia, but once away from the influence of Moscow many faithful representatives turn their backs on both bolshevism and its advocates. It is easier to detect the shortcomings of the bolshevist's program in America, and it is much safer to have opinions of one's own about communism on this side of the Atlantic.

Mr. Delgass accuses Amtorg of trying to "blackmail" America. In an attempt to "squeeze American firms and get better terms" during the business depression, he says, officials of the trading corporation sent telegrams to Moscow asking that orders assigned to the United States be diverted to other countries. This was not only a business maneuver, according to Mr. Delgass, but an attempt to force the Government into recognition of the bolshevist regime. The naivety of these officials in thinking they could buy a diplomatic standing with their price-cutting trade does not diminish the seriousness of these charges.

Another very interesting statement from the former Amtorg official is that American citizens employed by the corporation were dismissed and replaced by Communists brought from Russia. Even stenographers, he says, came in under the guise of wives and relatives. "I wonder," he adds, "why the Immigration Department of the United States never paid attention to the fact that the Amtorg was not only breaking the law, but was deceiving United States consuls and immigration authorities.

Here is some interesting material for the committee investigating the activities of Communists. If Communists are being brought into the country under disguise by a commercial agency that pretends to be friendly, the people would like to know about it. The committee ought not to close its investigation until the exact status of the Soviet's "commercial agency" has been determined, and all of its activities, commercial or otherwise, are revealed.

One good thing about the radio is that it allows politicians to think that their audience is sitting spellbound.

THE VALUE OF TIME

From the London Times.

These are iconoclastic days. Good old ideas, long accepted by most of us unquestioningly, are now constantly being called in question, analyzed, broken up, and either resolved into something totally different or handed back to us almost unrecognizable in unfamiliar garb. Father Time has been a conspicuous sufferer. Not very long ago one school of philosophy set him up, under the more resounding title of Duration, as the monarch of all knowledge and all existence. The doctrine of relativity soon thrust space upon him as a consort of equal status, and a four-dimensional space-time continuum, infinitely criss-crossed by coordinates, became the eloquent expression of the whole substance of man's experience. The consort is now swelling alarmingly into the tyrant. The latest phase of doctrine threatens to make time, along with other trifles such as gravitation and magnetic fields, a mere function or appendage of an all-conquering and all-absorbing space.

In a sense this is true even for the plain man in his plain world. He can not think of time except under the spatial picture of a movement from point to point. And yet it is on time and not on space that his mind habitually dwells—fondly, regretfully or resentfully, as the case may be. He has had a good time, or a bad. Time goes too fast, and there is never enough of it; or, with even greater hurt to his happiness, too slowly, and he is bored to death. In the lowest depths of disappointment, anxiety or sorrow he is buoyed up by the hope that, somewhere and somehow, there is a good time coming. Even when he thinks of himself as a disembodied spirit, and therefore freed from the gross tyranny of space, he still conceives himself as being in eternity, which seems to him just time going on for ever and ever.

Men do not often stop to think of the uses to which they put this indispensable furniture of life and thought. When they do, the result is apt to be surprising. It is at once obvious that one-third of their whole stock of time goes in sleep, in the evening preparation for it and in the morning recovery from it. For the mass of men at least another third is spent in getting to and from and in performing the daily task. It is not quite so obvious that the modest allowance of an hour and a half a day for meals is the equivalent of eating and drinking day and night without intermission for more than three weeks in every year. The moderate golfer, who limits himself to two rounds a week, still manages to spend a sleepless fortnight of each year on his game and its accompaniments. Even the harmless, necessary morning shave consumes annually something like two and a half days and nights of the sadly diminished remnant.

When life's mechanics and life's trifles eat so large a hole in the supply of time, a man may well begin to give some thought to the use to which he puts the rest. There is no great margin left for the not uninteresting and not unimportant problems of whence he came, whither he goes, and what he is expected to make of this talent of existence, which has mysteriously been intrusted to his keeping. Most men, if they think about such questions at all, think also, with a comfortable vagueness, that there is still plenty of time left for that sort of thing. But that is just what no one knows. Every man, it is true, has a balance at the bank of time, and is under the necessity of making drafts upon it; but he can find no one to tell him what the size of his balance is. For all he knows he may be overdrawn tomorrow.

It is no wonder that moralists have argued that a man should live as if each hour were to be his last. Literally obeyed, the admonition would be simply paralyzing. No one wants to see the kindly race of men permanently on its knees in an agony of impending dissolution. What the moralist really means is that men should seek a way of life, grounded in religion or philosophy, such that even the swift dividing stroke of death can not rob it of its spiritual wholeness and consistency. To find and follow such a way is to overleap the bounds of time, and to win access here and now to an eternity which is something other and greater than mere everlastingness.

Old Stuff, Heywood.

Public Ledger: Incidentally, Mr. Broun's plan to "depose the 59 rulers of America and put in their places the 123,000,000" is nothing new. We heard Jim Allen, who was running for the Legislature on the Populist ticket, advocate the same plan in a speech at the Doane schoolhouse in 1889. We've heard dozens of other candidates indorse the idea at various times. We've read numerous newspaper editorials and a few books predicated upon the same thought. But nothing has ever been done about it. There must be something impractical about the idea.

THOSE BRITISH INITIALS.

Another difference between cricket and baseball—even amateur baseball—is the stateliness of the names of British players and their long strings of initials, says the New York Times. For example, we read that when A. P. F. Chapman was removed as England's captain he was replaced by R. E. S. Wyatt. Of course, England is a much older country than ours and has been many centuries in piling up these initials. Perhaps it will be A. D. 3,000 before our sporting pages will contain such items as the following:

The contest between the Yankees and the Athletics was featured today by the batting of G. H. B. Ruth and the pitching of R. L. S. Grove.

Then, and only then, can we be said to have achieved parity

THE BEST.

Pretty Good and Pretty Fair
Struggling side by side,
Seldom getting anywhere,
By each other tried
Which is better of the pair
Luck must oft decide.

But when Best is in the fray
Lost is Pretty Fair.
Pretty Good, try as he may,
With him can't compare,
Best will bear the prize away
Every time he's there.
Best from luck will nothing seek;
He can fight alone.
Day by day and week by week
Patience has he shown
Gaining strength to reach the peak;
Making skill his own.

Pretty Fair and Pretty Good
Falter in the test.
Never at the top they've stood,
Never reached the crest.
Lacking skill they never could
Cope with what is Best.

When Cheating Becomes Universal, It Is Accepted as Part of the Game.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

It would be hard to find a town in the United States in which there is not at least one man who has made money by defrauding his creditors with the law's assistance.

I talked with one such man, who had closed his doors without apparent reason, and he volunteered the information that he had nothing to worry about.

"I took the books to my lawyer," said he, "and he said everything was all right."

He seemed so sure of himself and so free of self-reproach that I ventured a question concerning the ethics of deliberately evading the payment of debts.

"Oh, that's all right," said he. "The wholesalers expect a certain percentage of failures and make allowance for it when they sell you the goods. It's part of their overhead."

His logic was much like that of the traveling man who collected hotel towels. "So many people do it," said he, "that the hotels make their rates high enough to cover the loss and those who don't steal towels are made to pay for something they don't get."

Bankruptcy for the deliberate purpose of defrauding creditors is not confined to merchants. It is a practice common among those who live beyond their means, and the increasing number of those who resort to it imposes an economic burden on every honest citizen in the land.

As the man who pays cash must in the long run pay the bill of the man who has it charged and never pays, so the merchant and the ultimate consumer who are honest must pay more for what they buy in order to make up the deficit caused by the bankrupts.

What is more, and worse, the mere fact that a practice is common tends to relieve it of public condemnation, and thus each additional bankruptcy, however fraudulent it may be, increases the public's indifference and serves to make fraud more respectable.

The bankruptcy law was designed to protect the man who suffered disaster and give him another chance.

While it serves this purpose and no other, it is reasonable and merciful and free of evil.

But its continued use as a cloak for rascality will in time destroy the moral standards of a nation.

You can't develop honest men in a land where poaching is respectable.

OUR OWN PUNCHLESS PUNCHES.

("The wives of administration leaders at Washington have contributed cocktail recipes to a book of kickless concoctions authored by Mrs. James Deran, wife of the prohibition enforcement chief. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt also has sent in a recipe, calling her drink 'Portia's Punch.'"—News item).

DIANA'S DELIGHT.

Take six oranges. Peel and slice carefully. Crush in a glass bowl and pour the juice into a narrow-necked jug. Add a spoonful of honey. Add carbonated water, twenty drops of vanilla extract, a tumbler of sugar and the white of one egg. Pour into kitchen sink.

WOMEN'S CLUB SPECIAL.

Mash a bowl of white grapes. Add the juice of a dozen grapefruit and one quart of sweet cider. Place in a basin with a pint of strawberry sirup and whip well. Add lemon peel, nutmeg, borax and a dash of shaving soap. Strain through a portrait of Andrew J. Volstead and throw out back window.

THE WE GIRLS COBBLER.

Take the juice of five adult watermelons, one Bartlett pear and one cup of elderberries. Add a quart of whipped cream, a lump of cottage cheese, a jigger of vinegar, equal parts of city water, ginger ale and the shells of six eggs. Beat thoroughly and serve with stuffed olives at any function which you do not desire to repeat.

HARRIET'S BACKSPIN.

Crush five pounds of cherries. Add equal parts cream soda, olive oil, ammonia and water from a condemned well. Pour in a quart of skimmed milk, one can of tomato soup and the juice of six fire-crackers. Lay in a cool, dry place, shake well before using and serve in individual paper cups with porous bottoms.

JULIA'S JULEP.

Pour a quart bottle of New Orleans molasses into a gallon can. Add two pounds of crushed plums, the juice of three apricots and equal parts of prune juice, banana oil, melted butter, distilled water and liniment. To the sum total add an equal amount of rain water. Stir rapidly for half a day and use to exterminate the Japanese corn borer.

HOT JOAN AND MARY.

Take one barrel of spring water. Add one gallon of grape juice, one jigger of white shoe cleaner, the juice of two dozen alligator pears, one quart of chili sauce, and into this drop four sliced pineapples. Mix in a bathtub autographed by the local dry agent and allow to simmer over a slow fire. Strain through an ordinary porch screen and proceed to forget it.

TO THE YOUNG LADY IN FRONT OF ME ON A TOM THUMB GOLF COURSE.

All your coy little squeals and your shrieks of delight
Are not quite, I must say, the best thing for my nerves.
Nor is it so pleasant to witness your plight
When your ball from its course toward the hole barely swerves.

I might add that the way you handle your club
Is a sight from which I would prefer to be spared,
And your ladylike curses if shoots you should dub,
Your "Ohs" and your "Darns!"—as if any one cared!

Though I'll ne'er see such tantrums as long as I live.
Though you take seven strokes and then say you had four—
Ev'ry one of these faults would I gladly forgive
If you stood off the green when you marked down your score!

Give Us Subways! — Twenty-five Million Hours Wasted Each Year for Lack of Them.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The question of bringing the subways to Washington has from time to time been discussed, particularly during the hectic days of the World War. Aside from discussing the matter, however, nothing, of course, was done. Regardless of the arguments which those whose toes subways would pinch are certain to raise against the subways proposal, there is a growing need for rapid transportation in this city.

Washington is no longer a nonindustrial, noncommercial, slow-pokey Southern town. It is a wide-awake, live, progressive city. Indeed, it is a State within itself. During all of the day, and much of the night, it gets down to strict business. Efficiency here is just as much a by-word as it is in any other big town. True, this may not have applied to the days before the World War. Up to that time the city was practically dead on its feet; only a few newcomers would dispute that.

If, then, Washington is such a wide-awake, fast-stepping town, why in the name of common sense does not a group of local and out-of-town capitalists pitch in, form a corporation, and build subways here? There are many reasons why this should be done, perhaps the chief one being that over 25,000,000 hours are wasted every year by those of this city who are delayed by slow transportation. That is an enormous waste of time. The figure is in no way exaggerated, as in arriving at it I have deducted 52 Sundays, 30 vacation days, 30 sick-leave days and 6 holidays, as well as such items as tie-ups, platform and car-stop waiting, transfer stations, and extra trips during the day or at night. Automobiles help to keep that figure, 25,000,000, from mounting, yet they have in their own turn aggravated the traffic situation.

I would not wish to see surface cars disappear—there will always be a need for them. I should, however, like to see a company formed to build subways here. No matter if the cost were $1,000,000 or more a mile, the project would be a good investment.

Two-way tubes should run up, and down, and crossways, the entire length and breadth of Washington. No local merchant would protest if these 25,000,000 hours were in large measure spent down or around town.

Senator Hawes Just the Man to Lead Movement for Increase of Game Birds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The "More Game Birds for America Commission," which is to have its headquarters at Washington and to be sponsored by Thomas W. Lamont and Joseph P. Knapp, two prominent sportsmen of New York, will be useful in helping to increase the wild life of America. Game birds are becoming fewer and fewer, and they should be preserved. Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, who is an outdoor man, a lover of nature, is to be head of this project upon his retirement from the Senate. He has sponsored quite a number of conservation movements in Congress. This $10,000,000 project involves the establishment of a permanent endowment for the purpose of protecting and increasing the wild life in America.

Senator Hawes will make the best possible head of "More Game Birds for America Commission," as he has had the experience which is necessary to conduct the movement in a successful manner. Though he gives up his seat in the Senate, he will embark upon an administrative career that will keep him in close touch with the outdoors and in the surroundings which he loves.

Rock Creek Park Dangerous to Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I beg leave to join hands with the correspondent who suggests the establishment of "motor-verboten parks for pedestrians." Until the day of the auto came, I took at least a short walk daily, during which I could "loaf and invite my soul." It was good for digestion as well as the soul.

To seek this sort of relaxation these days would, as your corerspondent says, be "foolhardy if not suicidal."

I live near Rock Creek Park, but there the walking is limited and dangerous, owing to excess of autos and lack of pathways.

There is no better character schooling for small Americans than walks and talks in the woods with dad of a Sunday, and Rock Creek Park is naturally suited for this old-time source of enjoyment.

In the letter to The Post by which this is inspired the park is spoken of as a possible "pedestrians' sanctuary." Improved by a sufficiency of footpaths it would come pretty near to being a pedestrians' paradise.

Mr. Cramton's Defeat May Bring About Square Deal for Local Taxpayers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With Representative Louis C. Cramton missing from the Seventy-second Congress, the taxpayers of the District will heave a sigh of satisfaction, hopeful that his elimination presages a fair apportionment of taxes not far ahead.

Likely there may be a few Washingtonians who think that, on account of Mr. Cramton's fruitful activity in behalf of public improvements here, we "could have better spared a better man."

But our jubilation is justifiable in so far at least as his defeat discourages any idea on the part of bunkum politicians that votes may be made by claiming credit for having guarded Uncle Sam's strong box from rapacious onslaughts by the Federal City.

HURLEY GIVES RIVER DATA TO PRESIDENT

Secretary Is Back in Capital After Long Trip Down Mississippi.

FLEW TWO MILES HIGH

(Associated Press.)

A preliminary report on the most extensive inspection of the Nation's inland waterways ever made by a member of the Cabinet was placed before President Hoover last night by Secretary of War Hurley.

Concluding his inspection of the vast waterways of the Mississippi River and a large part of its tributaries, the War Secretary landed shortly before dark at Bolling Field. The Secretary, as has been his custom through a large part of the trip, piloted his personal plane for many miles on the flight from Birmingham, Ala. A brief stop-over at Chattanooga, Tenn., and a landing for fuel at Greensboro, N. C., were the only breaks in the trip from the South.

Despite the lateness of the hour when the Secretary, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers, arrived at Bolling Field, he went immediately to the White House to confer with the President.

Satisfied With Results.

The Secretary would make no statement upon landing, indicating he desired first to confer with the Chief Executive. Before leaving New Orleans, the last point on the inspection of the river from the Twin Cities to the Gulf of Mexico, the Secretary, however, indicated he was highly satisfied with the results of his trip.

A complete report on the survey of the waterways, including rivers and harbors works, inland waterways enterprises and flood control projects will be made to the President later.

Since he left the Capital nearly three weeks ago, the Secretary has covered some 1,500 miles by river steamers and more than 3,000 miles by airplane. Nearly 1,000 miles were covered in the flights which the Secretary made with his advisers over flood control projects in the lower Mississippi River region. Although considerably fatigued by the continued day by day trek along the river, and the numerous speeches he made, the Secretary today will make plans for a contemplated inspection of projects along the Pacific coast.

Trip no Vacation.

Hurley had looked forward to the usually restful trip by boat down the river as a vacation for this year, but found that the pressure of the inspections and entertainments left him more fatigued than when he started.

It was intimated last night that the President or Secretary within a day or two may have an important announcement to make regarding the possibility of the Secretary's visiting one or more of America's insular possessions, the administration of which comes under the War Department.

Welcomed at Chattanooga by Senator Brock, Democrat, Tennessee, and local officials, the Secretary was taken for a trip through the battlefield. From Greensboro, Lieut. C. W. Cousland, the Secretary's personal pilot, put the plane more than two miles in the air to take advantage of a 60-mile-an hour tail-wind which swept it along at high speed. The Secretary and other members of the party were forced to find heavier clothing in the high altitude, in spite of the closing of all ventilators and windows aboard the huge Army transport.

Mother of Three Fire Victims Dies

Mrs. Wells Succumbs to Burns Received in Rescue Effort.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 17.—Annapolis relatives of Mrs. George Miles Wells, of Casenova, Va., three of whose children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home at Casenova early yesterday, today received word that Mrs. Wells died last night in the hospital at Fauquier, Va., of burns she received while trying to arouse members of the family.

The funeral service of Mrs. Wells and her sons, George, Francis and Stuart Wells, and Miss Mary Hall, of West River, Md., aunt of Mrs. Wells, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Episcopal Church at Owensville, this county.

Mrs. Wells was formerly Miss Lillie Brooke, of Baltimore, and is a niece of Samuel Brooke, of Murray Hill. Her father was the late William C. Brooke.

Her husband, Miles Wells, died about four years ago. He was a brother of Cornelius Lane Wells, a former business manager of the Capital-Gazette Press, and a son of Mrs. George Wells, of Park Hurst, West River, and Pennsylvania.

Naval Rites Held For Lieut. Phelps

Services at Annapolis Are Conducted by Chaplin of Academy.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 17.—The body of Lieut. Woodward Phelps, U. S. N., who was found dead in his room aboard the U. S. S. Northampton in dry dock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, September 14, with a bullet wound through his temple, was laid to rest in the Naval Cemetery here today.

Interment followed exercises marked by full naval honors in Mahan Hall at the Academy, conducted by Commander Frank H. Lash, chaplain of the reservation. Taps were sounded at the grave. Young officers acted as honorary pallbearers, including Lieut. B. S. Purves, Lieut. Neil Phillips, S. R. Burroughs, J. S. Laidlaw, W. C. Cooper, D. T. Day, R. R. Lyons and H. B. Temple.

Rear Admiral William Woodward Phelps, commander of the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard, and Mrs. Phelps, parents of the young officer, were among the funeral attendants.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Invitations were mailed today from the Virginia executive mansion to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richard E. Byrd to be house guests there on October 8, the date of the visit of Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French fliers.

Gov. Pollard had previously announced the Frenchmen would be invited to spend the night at the mansion.

American Canal Is Hope of Nicaragua; Country Without Capital or Security

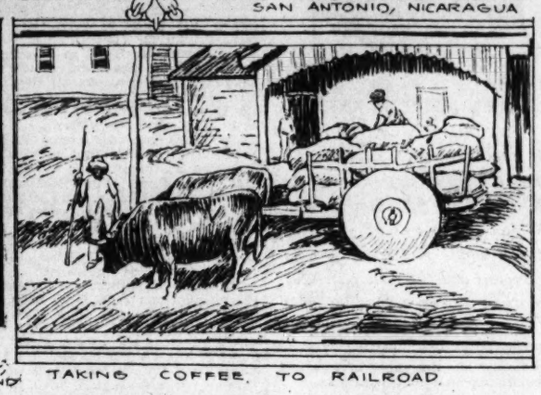
COFFEE DRYING AND POLISHING PLANT, WITH COFFEE BEANS ON CEMENT DRYING FLOOR IN FOREGROUND



TAKING COFFEE TO RAILROAD

Engineers Now Surveying Route of Canal for This Country.

This is the fifth in a series of articles depicting present conditions among our nearer Latin-American neighbors.

By EVELYN TRENT.

Corinto, chief port of Nicaragua on the Pacific seaboard, is one of the most beautiful, as well as one of the best natural harbors of Central America, and it has the added advantage of direct rail connection with Managua, capital of the republic, some six hours distant by train.

There is usually an American gunboat at anchor in a curve of the bay, close by the American consulate, and at regular intervals, American transports put in there, bringing new detachments of marines to relieve those on duty in the country. A brisk coastwise trade is carried on by regular passenger and freight liners of the Panama Mail, one of the oldest in this hemisphere, as well as by various European vessels that ply up and down the western seaboard of the isthmian republics, the bulk of whose coffee shipments go abroad in exchange for much-needed commodities from the United States and Europe.

Without this regular steamship service from port to port, there would be little communication between the nations of Central America, since railroads are relatively scarce and expensive to build, while international highways are still few and far between. Airplane service, established throughout Central America within the last year, while fairly widespread, is still in its infancy, being too expensive a mode of transportation to cater to any but the most prosperous travelers.

Like Moving Picture Scene.

The Port of Corinto offers a picture of the Nicaraguan situation in microcosm, with its mixed Indian and white population, its picturesque venders of native wares, its ragged urchins and most of their elders with a smattering of English picked up from the American Army of Occupation as well as from an increasing invasion of tourists.

There are the marines, sauntering about the town with an air of half-tolerant supervision of Nicaraguan affairs; there are apt to be naval officers and sailors in their white uniforms, lending a touch of smartness to the dusty streets, or investing the main hotel lobby and principal cafe with a dash of comic opera chic.

The whole mis-en-scene has much the atmosphere of a Hollywood moving picture set, upon which a drama of tropical life is being staged against a background of palm trees, shore line and Spanish colonial houses, made colorful by patios and balconies. Add to the caste Nicaraguan soldiers, police, immigration and customs officials, plenty of senoritas of uncertain heredity with their somewhat frowsy mammas, robed priests and a double file of tourists wandering through the plaza, poking into churches or bargaining in the market place, and you have a picture of Corinto as well as a section of Nicaraguan life.

Largest and most turbulent of the isthmian republics, as well as the poorest one today despite its wealth of natural resources, Nicaragua occupies a special category among the Central American nations because it is the only one in which the political and military intervention of the United States, invited for the most part by some section of the Nicaraguans themselves, plays a direct and unambiguous role.

In that dream of a Central American federation, to which Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador all subscribe, Nicaragua and Costa Rica play no part. The latter has more or less turned her back upon the rest of the isthmian republics to play a lone hand, secure in her sturdy progressivism, her relative peace and prosperity and her pride of racial parity, Costa Rica being the only one of the five countries with practically no Indian population.

Affairs Move in Vicious Circle.

Nicaragua's reasons for abstention from Central American unity are different from those of Costa Rica. She looks not to Latin America, but to the United States for an ally in the development of her resources and the stabilization of her political and economic life. History and geography are alike responsible for this special position assigned to the Nicaraguan people.

Her history is one of almost continuous internecine strife, leading to revolutions, internal debts and external borrowings, with foreign intervention following as a natural consequence. Her geography, like that of Panama, has fated Nicaragua to become one of the few chosen spots of the isthmus suitable for the digging of a second interoceanic canal that, if and when completed, will rival that of Panama as one of the great trade routes between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

The questions that agitate Nicaragua today are the reestablishment of internal peace, financial and economic rehabilitation, with the great hope that looms on her horizon of becoming the focal point for the projected Nicaraguan Canal. Without peace there can be no economic recovery or extrication from the load of debt that hangs upon the country like a millstone. Without a strong government there can be no hope of putting an end to foreign intervention. Thus, affairs in Nicaragua move in a somewhat vicious circle and are further complicated by the severe depression that has settled upon business and commerce there as a reflection of the world situation.

Sandino is still at large, waging guerrilla warfare in the north around Jinotega. His followers are said to number about 300. No one knows just where Sandino is; he is rumored to be in Mexico, Honduras, and close to the Costa Rican border. To Nicaragua and the rest of Central America, Sandino is variously esteemed as a patriotic liberator, a rebel or an outlawed bandit, according to the sympathies of the informant.

American Soldiers Supervise Election.

To some he has become "un simbolo"—a symbol of Central American resistance to foreign intervention. To others, he is merely a nuisance. Most people concede him a fair amount of ability and considerable powers of organization and leadership.

Whatever his true nature and historic role, guerilla warfare continues in the north, with sporadic sniping on both sides and occasional casualties. Those conversant with the internal situation assert that the Moncada government makes no serious effort to capture him, and no reward has been offered for his head. This is explained on the grounds that the government does not wish to be embarrassed by making a martyr of a man who is still a hero to a large part of the population. It prefers to follow the policy of wearing him down, until the people themselves tire of his depredations and call for peace.

Congressional elections are at hand, to be held this November, when half the Chamber of Deputies will be renewed for the ensuing term. Both Liberals and Conservatives are conducting an active campaign throughout the country on behalf of their respective candidates and an American, Capt. A. W. Johnson, U. S. A., has been named head of the National Electoral Council, with a detachment of 300 American soldiers to help supervise the elections, as in the presidential campaign of 1928.

Actual policing of the country has been given over to the newly created national guard, which has taken the place of the Nicaraguan army, and police, and which is being organized and trained with the help of American marines, many of whom hold rank as Nicaraguan officers as well. No one knows exactly how many marines are in Nicaragua today, but the number is estimated at 1,200, with several hundred more assigned to the national guard.

Hope for Canal Borders Despair.

Another American delegation, consisting of 300 Army Engineers, is now in Nicaragua conducting surveys for the proposed Nicaraguan Canal route. Their expenses were appropriated by the last United States Congress. This route, perpetual rights to which were secured to the United States Government by the Bryan-Chamorro Treaty of 1913 in return for the trifling sum of $3,000,000, will extend when built from Atlantic to Pacific, utilizing Lake Nicaragua, 92 miles long, and the San Juan River, which flows east from Lake Nicaragua to the Caribbean Sea.

Cynics see in the close relations between Nicaragua and the United States the latter's determination to protect its interests in the projected canal route, which, together with the right, also secured from Nicaragua, to establish an American naval base in the Gulf of Fonseca, constitute vital links in the strategic control of Central America from the Rio Grande to the Panama Canal.

No picture of Nicaragua today would be complete without a few words on the subject of the proposed canal. The majority of Central Americans, other than Nicaraguans, when asked what they think of the project, reply with scepticism: "Que no le hacen!" ("That it will not be done.") So long has it been a mere project without foundation.

But Nicaraguans are talking of it with hope bordering on despair, for they see in it a chance to become another Panama, cleaned up and put in order under American supervision, aided by the strong staff of American subsidies and American money that will be spent to the tune of $500,000,000 should the canal ever be built, and with their country brought to the doors of the world's trade by means of this new gateway cut across their territory from one ocean to the other.

Meanwhile, the Moncada government is carrying on with what success it may, the business of governing a country whose treasury is empty, whose business is at a standstill and in which foreign capital fears to invest on account of political uncertainty and general economic depression. There is much unemployment, considerable labor agitation, tight money and a regime of stringent economy on the part of the government, which is curtailing salaries and cutting down departmental budgets and staffs.

No one denies that Moncada is the strong man of the country, and is doing his utmost to bring order out of chaos. New roads have been pushed to completion in the unruly north; the capital has been paved and bids have been submitted for a new railroad construction and an effort is being made to inaugurate public works to help the prevailing unemployment. But in order to carry on such a program, a new loan is needed, and Nicaragua is poor security in times of general financial stringency.

In the face of such a calamitous situation, Nicaraguans still manage to carry on, a vociferous press proclaiming to the world that things are not as black as they are painted, and that a way out will somehow be found. The way, to most of them, means American help and American capital, in whatever form it may come, preferably in the form of that more than century-old dream, a Nicaraguan Canal.

Textile Workers Ballot on Strike

Danville Union Members Take Drastic Action After Wage Cut.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 17.—Members of Local 1685, United Textile Workers of America, today began voting on the question of a strike in the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills. A steady stream of members filed into union headquarters during the afternoon and early night casting their ballots. The line for more than two hours extended nearly a block. The voting is expected to last several days, according to union officials. If a strike is voted, the date will be set immediately, it was stated.

The union claims approximately 4,000 members. The strike vote decided on unanimously at two meetings of members held yesterday. Only members of the union in good standing are allowed to vote.

The ballot was authorized in a resolution approving "drastic action," adopted last week by the executive council of the National Textile Union at its convention in New York, after the local union had presented its grievances against the local mill management. This action is the culmination of a textile unionization campaign which began here last February following a 10 per cent reduction in wages. The union claims the mills have ignored representations for an amicable adjustment of the differences.

Radio Station Manager To Head Business Club

James P. McGrath, manager of Radio Station WJSV, was elected president of the American Business Club at a luncheon held yesterday in the University Club. Other officers elected include Dr. W. D. Monroe, jr., first vice president; Leroy J. McCarty, second vice president; William V. Freeman, treasurer, and Howard E. Severe, secretary. Samuel A. Syme, retiring president, was elected chairman of the board of governors.

Plans were discussed for selecting a local entrant in the national contest for the association's statesmanship scholarship, awarded annually to a high school graduate.

Annual Army Carnival Will Be Big Affair

Ladies of Military Set Are in Charge of Details.

CARNIVAL features for the great military exhibition and fete at the Army War College, which is an annual event of the early autumn season, are again in the hands of the ladies. Only under official auspices and only in Washington would it be possible to assemble such a comprehensive exhibit of the Army at work and at play, in peace and in war, as is presented for study and entertainment at this yearly event. Sham battles, aerial acrobatics, night flying and military maneuvers of all sorts contribute to a thrilling event and all this is supplemented by music, dancing, bridge and all sorts of merrymaking under the able direction of a group of Army women.

With the fete to be held earlier than usual—September 25, 26 and 27 being the chosen days—preparations are now reaching their peak. Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, wife of he chief of staff, is the moving spirit behind the whole undertaking and she has lined up a large group of women to put over the entertainment program. A brief survey of who they are and what they have up their sleeves will give some idea of what is in store at this colorful carnival.

The supper committee, captained by Mrs. William D. Connor, has requisitioned a huge mess tent, where an excellent meal, served Army fashion, may be had between afternoon and evening performances. She is assisted by Mrs. Stephen O. Fuqua and Mrs. J. W. Gulick. Mrs. H. G. Bishop, aided by Mrs. William Dryden, Mrs. D. C. McDonald and Mrs. Magruder, will dispense tea, cake and sandwiches. Mrs. Samuel Hof and Mrs. E. D. Bricker have charge of the bridge "drive," which will be a continuous feature of the carnival, with luncheon served to the players. Mrs. Lytle Brown is making arrangements for the dancing, which always brings the fete to a merry close. And there will be special entertainment for children under direction of Mrs. G. S. Gibbs, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Kreger, Mrs. William G. Eberson and Mrs. W. H. Waldron.

A whole battery of fortune tellers is being assembled by Mrs. C. H. Bridges, Mrs. Lutz Wahl, Mrs. Hugh A. Drum and Mrs. J. F. McKinley. They will serve coffee at the various booths, at which one may take—for a consideration—a peep into the future.

Mrs. James E. Fechet will have charge of "smokes," to be distributed by groups of pretty girls; Mrs. Merriette W. Ireland will dispense soft drinks, and there will be ice cream and "hot dogs" on sale, the one dispensed by Mrs. H. L. Gilchrist, Mrs. W. C. Baker and Mrs. W. N. Porter, the other by Mrs. J. L. DeWitt, Mrs. Francis H. Pope and Mrs. Louis H. Bash.

Many diplomats and dignitaries have expressed their intention of attending the carnival this year, and it is highly probable that the President and Mrs. Hoover will be present one afternoon. They attended last year, and their name heads the list of patrons and patronesses for this year's fete.

Mystery shrouds the nature of the great military spectacle, which is always the climax of the carnival, but it is heralded as guaranteed to produce quite as many thrills as the sham battles of other years. Last year it will be remembered Sergt. Yorke—in person—showed how it was possible to break up a machine-gun nest and bring in two-score German prisoners single handed.

It was Mrs. Summerall who, inspired by the famous Army garden parties at Governors Island, first brought the idea of an Army carnival to Washington. With Gen. Summerall she heads the executive committee, which also includes Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor. The proceeds as usual will go to the Army Relief Society.

The retiring Naval Attache of the Chilean Embassy, Commander Juan Polich, and Senora de Polich and their family will sail September 20 for Chile, where Commander Polich has been ordered for duty.

The engagement is announced of Miss Margaret H. Vance, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Charles T. Vance, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Gregory B. Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Heber R. Mason, of Washington.

The wedding will take place in October at the residence of Miss Vance's grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Vance, with whom she has made her home in Washington.

Miss Katherine Berry and Miss Frances Berry have rejoined their mother, Mrs. Georgia Knox Berry, in Washington, after passing the summer in Nashville, Tenn., with their grandmother, Mrs. Horatio Berry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sturtevant landed in New York on Tuesday from the liner Majestic, having spent the summer abroad.

First Lady Returns From River Lodge.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover returned to the White House yesterday afternoon from Virginia, leaving Mr. Herbert Hoover, jr., in camp on the Rapidan. This afternoon the President and Mrs. Hoover will be hosts at a garden party in honor of delegates to the Fidac convention and that of the Fidac auxiliary.

Mrs. Charles P. George, daughter of Vice President Curtis, and her children arrived in town yesterday from Siasconset, Mass., and are guests of the Vice President and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann at their home in Cleveland Park. Maj. George has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Gann while his quarters at Fort Myer, where he has been ordered to duty, were being made ready for his family.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is on a brief visit in the West, and is the guest of Mrs. E. T. Meredith, widow of the former Secretary of Agriculture, at her home in Des Moines. Mrs. Wilson will remain for a fortnight with Mrs. Meredith, who has arranged several dinners for her distinguished guest. Also making the trip to Des Moines is Mr. Randolph Bolling, brother of Mrs. Wilson, who will also pass two weeks there.

Mr. Robbins Departs For Diplomatic Post.

Mr. Warren Delano Robbins has gone to Miami Fla., whence he will travel by airplane to Central America to resume his duties as United States Minister to El Salvador. On leave from his post since midwinter, Mr. Robbins has been serving as cere-monial officer at the White House. For several months he has been "on the eve of departure" and paid his "P. P. C." calls, usually the last official act of a diplomat before leaving town, early in the summer. But he has been repeatedly detained for one reason or another. So far no successor to Mr. Robbins as White House ceremonial officer has been announced.

Mrs. Sypret W. Hendrick has taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for a short time.

Mrs. Edward S. Perot and the Misses Betty and Sally Perot, of Washington, are at the Weylin Hotel in New York.

Miss Katherine Fechet, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James E. Fechet, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton. Her guests were Miss Nina Randell, Miss Mary Jacobs, Miss Barkley, Miss Charlotte Parker, Miss Mary Arias, Miss Winnie Jacobs, Miss Rosalind Deakyne, Miss Kitty Berry, Miss Billie Carmichael, Miss Hannum, Miss Anna Randell, Miss Marttia Hickam and her sister, Miss Mary Fechet.

Mr. Walter Penfield Ends Stay at Seashore.

Mr. Walter Scott Penfield, who has been at Ventnor, N. J. since the middle of June, has returned to the Capital.

Mrs. William P. Wooten will have with her as guests at her home on Massachusetts avenue her sisters, Mrs. W. V. Judson and Miss Isabel Clay, who will arrive today.

Miss Ann Kinnaird, of St. Louis, will arrive today for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Oliver at their apartment on Connecticut avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hurtt, of 1524 P street, have returned from the North, where they have passed some time. In November Dr. and Mrs. Hurtt will occupy their new house at 1765 R street.

Capital Welcomes Diplomatic Brides

COUNTESS RONCALLI, wife of the First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, and Mrs. Thomas Archibald Stone (insert), wife of the Second Secretary of the Canadian Legation, have recently arrived in town. Mrs. Stone was Miss Eleanor Cox Ewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ewing, of New York. Countess Roncalli was Donna Antoinetta Conestabile della Staffa, of Rome.

Envoy Group Will Be Host To Fidac Unit

Other Fetes Planned in Honor of Delegates to Parley.

The Belgian Ambassador and Princess de Ligne will entertain at luncheon today in honor of the Belgian delegates to the Fidac convention, their wives, and the delegates to the conference of Fidac Auxiliary. As the luncheon hour today is practically the only time free from sessions of the double convention or official entertainments for the entire body of delegates, most of the embassies and legations, whose countries are represented at the convention, are entertaining their national groups at this time.

The Charge d'Affaires of France, M. Jules Henry, will give a cocktail party at noon today for the French delegates and some additional guests, the company numbering about 70. The Charge d'Affaires of Italy, Count Alberto Marchetti, will entertain at luncheon at his house for the Italian delegates, and the delegates from Poland will be guests at a luncheon given by Mr. Stanislaw Lepkowski, Charge d'Affaires of Poland.

The Counselor of the British Embassy, Mr. Ronald Campbell, will give a luncheon at his home, dispensing hospitality in the absence of the Ambassador, who is passing the week at Newport. The Minister of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, will give a luncheon, as will the Counselor of the Roumania Legation, Mr. Frederick C. Nano, who will come from Newport for several days. Besides members of Fidac, the guests at Mr. Nano's party will be the Chief of the Near Eastern Division of the State Department and Mrs. Murray, Col. and Mrs. Robert Foy, the assistant dean of the Georgetown Foreign Service School, Dr. Thomas Healy, and members of the staff.

The Charge d'Affaires of Jugoslavia, Mr. Bojidar Stoianovitch, will be the host to the Jugoslav delegates, also entertaining them at luncheon.

Lieut. Col. Fred W. Abbot, president of Fidac, and Mrs. Abbot will be guests at the Carlton Hotel while in Washington, as will Princess Alexandrine Cantacuzene, president of Fidac Auxiliary; Lady Edward Spencer-Churchill, many other distinguished foreign delegates and the American delegates to the two conventions.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Carroll, who have been on a tour of Canada, are now at the Hotel Traymore in Atlantic City, where they will remain until the last of the week, returning then to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. MacDonough are in Atlantic City.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred B. Campbell have gone to Atlantic City.

Mrs. Roy Neuhauser Returns to Capital.

Mrs. Roy L. Neuhauser and her children have returned to their Washington residence from Gloucester, Mass., where they spent the summer. Mrs. Neuhauser was a member of the artist colony at this picturesque resort, and the fruit of her summer's work is a charmling collection of flower paintings, ship and sea sketches. This winter, as a member of the faculty of the Abbot School, she will give courses in practical interior decorating, and she proposes to take up professionally the designing of interiors, specializing on wall decorations.

Mrs. Albert Gore Opens New Home.

Mrs. Albert Gore and her son, Mr. Philip Gore, after passing the summer in Europe, have returned to Washington and have rejoined Mr. Gore at their new home at 4422 Garfield street, in Wesley Heights. Mr. Gore recently returned from a trip to California through the Canadian Rockies. Mr. Philip Gore, who is a senior at Princeton, will return to college next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads In White Mountains.

Mr. Charles Day Rhoads, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and Mrs. Rhoads have taken a cottage at Franconia, in the White Mountains, for a short holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitney Dall, of Cedarhurst, Long Island, are guests at Wardman Park Hotel for a few days.

Mrs. James M. Haley entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, her guests numbering five.

Welcomes War Mothers

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. BESSIE PARKER BRUEGGEMAN is chairman of the committee for the entertainment of the Missouri Gold Star Mothers and Widows, who will be guests of the Missouri Representatives in Congress and the American War Mothers during a two-day visit in Washington.

Social Circle Enjoys Races Off Newport

International Cup Event Attracts Number of Capital Group.

With society staying on at Newport to witness the America's Cup races, half of its membership divided in allegiance to the Enterprise, defender in the yacht races, half of it "rooting" for Sir Thomas Lipton and his Shamrock V, entertaining goes on apace, as informal luncheons and dinners, in the harbor and colony, are added to the early schedule of events.

Last night Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador of Great Britain, was guest at a dinner Commodore Arthur Curtiss James and Mrs. James gave at Beacon Hill House. The Ambassador is the guest of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt at their home, Beaulieu. They gave a dinner in honor of the Ambassador on Tuesday. In the afternoon Gen. and Mrs. Vanderbilt had with them on the Winchester Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, of New York, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, of Washington, who entertained at dinner that night.

M. Jules Henry, First Secretary of the French Embassy, who attended the first of the races as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, left Newport on Tuesday for New York, en route to Washington.

Mr. Gene McKillip, who arrived in Washington last week from Lake Geneva, Wis., for a few days' visit, left on Tuesday night for New York and was a guest at the dinner given last night at the Casino by Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French for Miss Marjorie Talman, of Washington, who joined them after a series of visits in the North. Mr. McKillip, who spent the season here last winter, recently returned from California and will attend Cornell University this winter, where he will take some special courses. His sister, Miss Ruth McKillip, who attended school in Washington last winter, will pass the winter abroad, leaving Chicago some time in December.

Maj. French Marries Miss Evelyn Weems.

A wedding of interest to Washington resident and Army society took place Tuesday, in New York, when Miss Evelyn Sutton Weems, daughter of Mr. Sutton Weems, 3d., became the bride of Maj. William Edward Pattison French. The ceremony was performed in the Little Church Around The Corner in the presence of only members of the family and a few intimate friends.

Miss Weems, who is widely known in literary and art circles, studied at the Corcoran Art School and the National School of Fine Art and Applied Arts, later spending some time in Paris studying art.

She comes of a distinguished Maryland family being descended from the memorable historian "Parson Weems" and ancestors who gave Maryland and the East many statesmen, including Justice Kinsey, Govs. Samuel Sprigg and Chew, and the late Senator Bois Penrose. She is decended from the Caldwaller and the Whelen families, of Philadelphia.

Maj. French has seen distinguished service in the army, having medals for the Indian wars, the Spanish war and the World War.

Mrs. C. F. Harper and Miss Helen Harper, of Washington, are in Asheville, N. C., for a short stay.

Quinn—Leyendecker Betrothal Announced.

Mrs. Johanna M. Leyendecker, of the Barclay Hotel in New York, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ruth H. Leyendecker, to Lieut. Charles H. Quinn, U. S. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Quinn, also of New York.

Miss Leyendecker was graduated from Trinity College in Washington. Lieut. Quinn was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1926 and completed his training at the naval aviation school in Pensacola, Fla. He is now with the Pacific Fleet Aviation base in San Diego, Cal.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Gen. and Mrs. Fries To Fete Gold Star Group.

Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries will entertain at tea Sunday afternoon in honor of Missouri Gold Star Mothers who are returning from their pilgrimage to France. For two days the Gold Star Mothers of Missouri will visit the Capital as the guests of the Missouri representatives in Congress and the American War Mothers.

Mrs. Dottie Gallagher has returned to her home in New York after a visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Anna Barrett, of the Ethelhurst apartments.

Mr. Clarence White announces the marriage of his sister, Miss Gladys Jane White, to Mr. George C. Reaves, of Washington, which took place at Ellicott City, Md., on July 9, the Rev. Mr. Stewart, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating. The young couple kept their marriage secret and have but recently taken friends into their confidence. They will leave shortly for a trip to Florida, where they expect to remain two months, after which they will make their home in Washington.

Mr. Reaves is the son of Mrs. G. G. Reaves and the late Mr. Reaves, of Washington. The bride and her family formerly lived in Culpeper, Va., but have made their home in Washington for several years.

Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, of Washington, are visiting in New York.

Mrs. Arthur H. Tew and Mrs. Harry Miller Wheeler entertained at luncheon and bridge on Monday at the Kenwood Country Club in compliment to Mrs. Elliott Frank Brumbaugh. The guests included Mrs. Maynard Millar Hanson, Mrs. Claude Clagett, Mrs. Paul Eichhorn, Mrs. Elliott Frank Brumbaugh, Miss Dorothy West, Mrs. Horton Howard McKeever, Mrs. Arthur H. Tew and Mrs. Harry Miller Wheeler.

Mrs. Brumbaugh, who before her marriage on June 21 was Miss Margaret Virginia McKeever, recently returned from a stay of several months at Wyalusing, Pa., and is now located in her new home at 4309 Elm street, Chevy Chase.

Mr. McKendree Bayly has returned to town from Warrenton, Va., where he went to attend the horse show last week.

Miss Madigan Is Wed To Mr. Charles Wise.

A lovely fall wedding took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in the Holy Name Church when Miss Alice Madigan became the bride of Mr. Charles Wise, both of Washington. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Dowling, the bride being escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, Mr. Thomas B. Madigan. Miss Madigan, gowned in a straight-line, white satin bridal dress trimmed with pearl and carrying bridal roses and lillies of the valley, had as her maid of honor Miss Dorothy Wise, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Wise wore a princess model of peach chiffon, with hat and other accessories of the same color and carried yellow tea roses.

Mr. Thomas Madigan, brother of the bride, was Mr. Wise's best man, and Mr. Howard T. Randolph and Mr. James O. Bielaski were the ushers.

Before the ceremony Mr. Gerald L. Whelan, barytone, gave several solos, accompanied by Mrs. Hughes, organist of the Holy Name Church. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party and immediate family were entertained at breakfast at the Dodge Hotel.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Wise left on a motor tour through the Northeastern States, and will be at home at 3024 Wisconsin avenue after October 1.

Capital Bridal Parties To Tour South and West.

Two couples, who were married on Tuesday evening by the Rev. Allan F. Poore, pastor of the Waugh Methodist Episcopal Church, at his residence on A street, are leaving this week for motor trips to the South and West. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Maughan, jr., will motor to New York and then to Chicago, where they will be at home after October 15. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer M. Ethridge, the other couple married here, will leave in a day or two for Atlanta, where they will be the guests of Mr. G. T. Ethridge, father of the bridegroom. Later they will go to Cairo, Ill., as guests of Mrs. Mary A. Arbaugh, the bride's grandmother. The quartet are members of the Masters Artists Association of Chicago.

Miss Caroline Aufenthie, Mrs. Charles Ward, and Mrs. Julius Andrae, left on Wednesday for Elizabeth, N. J., to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Potter, for ten days.

Miss Dubar to Wed Mr. Arnold A. Hart.

Miss Naomie R. Dubar, daughter of Mrs. Charles L. Dubar, of East Orange, N. J., and Mr. Arnold A. Hart, son of former Representative Archibald C. Hart and Mrs. Hart, of Teaneck, N. J., will be married tonight in Christ Episcopal Church in East Orange. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Charles E. Hutchinson and the Rev. Richard Baxter.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson Sojourn in Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pearson, of Indianapolis, have been at the Dodge Hotel for several days accompanied by their daughter, Miss Peggy Pearson.

Engraving Bureau Chief Loses Dog.

Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, yesterday asked police to help him search for a black and white fox terrier which strayed from Hall's home at 1319 Kalmia street northwest.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Like all smart street frocks it favors the even hemline and shows smart preference for tweed printed crepe silk.

The molded waistline attracts attention, through shirring at either side seam which shapes the dress closely to the figure. The long straight hipline, adds considerably to the effect of slimness. The collarless Vionnet neckline has a youthful knotted tie scarf.

Style No. 432 comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Black canton crepe with tie in turquoise blue crep is chic.

MISS MYSTERIOUS - - - By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A coed called Babe by her friends receives a letter from her guardian saying he has lost all her money and is going to commit suicide. He says that she is not Thelma Townley, as she has always believed. The shock forces Babe to a sterm plan. She will earn her own way and learn her identity. This she tells to a friend, Violet Rimmel. A man, who says his name is Morgan, comes to her and proposes marriage, telling her he knows of her trouble. Babe suspects Morgan of being a crook. Pete Jones, Milwaukee, a senior, asks her to marry him. She turns him down. That night she is kidnaped by two men. Pete rescues her. They learn that the boss of the kidnapers is a man called the Duke. One is called Gus, the other "the runt." Babe sends Pete back to school, and stays in Milwaukee seeking a job. She learns that some one broke into her room at school and stole two old brooches. Weary and discouraged at her failure to get work, she is approached by a man named Mac, who offers her a mysterious job. She takes it. They go to a gambling hall, and Mac tells her to vamp a certain man. It proves to be Morgan. She goes with Morgan. He makes violent love, and Babe accidentally shoots him. Mac arrives, finds Morgan is not seriously wounded, searches his room, and finds the stolen brooches. Morgan leaves town. By comparing notes, Mac and Babe finds that they are both searching for the same man—Babe to learn her identity, Mac to get revenge. They are convinced it is Forseith, who has not committed suicide, but only used that dodge to escape enemies. To get a line on Forseith, Babe feigns amnesia, and appeals to police. She is put in a hospital, and Forseith tries to get her out of it. Pete and Violet, seeing Babe's picture in papers, come to rescue and get her out of hospital. Mac realizes that he is in love with Babe, and Pete and Mac know they are rivals. Babe is worried because she believes them both. She fears there may be a taint inherited from her unknown parents, but deep in her heart she is certain that her father was a brave man, and she fights to be like this ideal she holds of him. Mac goes to catch The Runt, who has been shadowing them, and says he will return in 10 minutes, but is gone for more than an hour. Babe is frantic with worry.

She rents a car and drives to the resort region on the hunch that Forseith was hiding nearby. On entering a saloon and restaurant where crooks hang out, a man accosts her and insists on buying her a meal. Babe permits him to do so, and while talking he speaks of "old striped pants." She realizes he means Forseith.

CHAPTER XIX.

"So you really know Scareye," Babe cooed, and put the proper amount of admiration in her voice to please her companion.

"Do I know him? Say, girl, I'm close to the boss. And there's not many guns can say that. He's harder to know than President Hoover. Lots harder."

"I could tell you were the goods," Babe admired. The man visibly swelled with pride. But in the second he got a little more wary. The girl was too young, too beautiful to be in on the know and not be "owned" by some of the boys. This man was of the type of gangster who takes orders and doesn't give them. He didn't want to tread on forbidden ground, displeasing any of the big boys in the racket.

"Say, girlie, who's your meal ticket?" he quizzed. Babe didn't get the significance at once.

"Come on, tell a pal. Who lays on the line for the mink?" The man was getting even harder to understand. He thought she was trying to evade his question, so he became more persistent. "Don't be trying to hide anything from a good guy," he said. "I want to know who has got the option on your sweetness." Now his meaning was clear. Babe shrunk from him, but her rapidly working mind saw a chance to hold him off and yet make him useful.

"You wouldn't know him!" she shot at him, trying to get time to think this angle out, see what she could make of it. It had dawned on her that this man took it for granted she must be well acquainted with gangsters to have found this place and had the nerve to walk in alone.

"Oh, I wouldn't know him, eh? I know all the big shots." Babe's expensive clothes had an elegance about them that made this cheap member of the underworld rate her high.

"No, I don't think you know him, and I'm not going to mention any names," Babe snapped. "There would be plenty trouble if he knew I had taken a ride down here. Get the idea?"

"Yeah. Oh, it's jake with me. And you're jake with me, too."

"I like your style," Babe flattered again. "You can tell when to lay off the questions, I see. But do you know you haven't told me your name yet?"

"Mike's my handle," he said.

"All right, Mike, you can call me Pat. We might as well be a couple of good Irishmen."

Mike laughed at that. He was so obviously not an Irishman that it struck him as funny. He couldn't tell what nationality Babe was, but he was willing to call her Pat if he should find it necessary to use a name.

This talk was all at a tangent from the line Babe wanted to follow. She attempted to swing it back.

"You were saying something about striped pants," she reminded Mike. "That sounds like a plug I know."

"Say, what's you game, Pat? What brought you up here?"

"Well, Mike, as long as you want to know so bad, I'll tell you. I had a little argument with the boy friend; you know what I mean?"

"Yeah, I make it. You thought you would step out on him, eh? Well, you found the right guy for the stepping, if you can keep a close face." Mike was pleased for a minute, but that was before he had started to look at the situation. As he sized it up, it was still dangerous. He figured he had better play this game carefully. But he didn't like to give up the girl, either. He knew he could get all the crowd envious with such a fresh beauty, one without the brazen looks of the rest of the women of the gang, one without blondined hair and the paint of an actress ready for the curtain to go up. He would hang onto her as long as he thought it was safe, but would watch his step. He was willing to go back to the talk about Scareye and his guest.

"I don't think you know this fancy bird," he said. "I can't make him. None of the boys who've seen him have got him doped out. He's not in the racket, as far as we can get it. He's not from Chi and he's got no influence there, as far as we know. I got it that he breezed in from the West Coast and contacted the boss right away. Figure he was a good friend of the boss at sometime, 'cause the boss took him in and he also took in a couple of boys he brought along. Don't know what he wanted to carry a couple of smokes with him for, unless he had some private job.

"It's all tighter than a job on the make. But the boss lets him plant this pair of his right out in his shack, and it's not many of the cheap smokes the boss ever lets get within a mile of that bungalow of his out here. He's got it guarded like a fort."

Babe was hanging on his words. This pleased him. He thought he was charming her with his wisdom.

"Mike, didn't you say you were going to see the Boss?"

"Sure, I did."

"Can you take me along?"

"What the——? Nothing doing. Listen. I'm the only guy in the mob that knows the road to this shack, see. Outside a couple of cannons the Boss has with him most of the time. I ain't supposed to be bringing no dames in, or nobody else."

"But I would love to get a look at the place. I hear it is wonderful."

"Yeah, it's wonderful; but you can't see nothing at night, can you? And I don't go up there in the daylight. I've got a message for the Boss. See?"

Mike's everlasting "See" was getting irksome to Babe, but she told herself to forget it and again the thought came to her that it was queer to be bothered about things of absolutely no consequence when she was trying to save the life of the man she loved—or did she love him? Her subconscious mind was off on that question that had been seething there for several days now. Seething in her subconscious mind and now and then coming to the conscious and getting her involved in that fight with herself, that worry about herself.

"Stick to the immediate job," she mentally ordered herself, pushing other thoughts back into the subconscious. "You've got enough on your hands now. This Mike person may be hard to handle."

Babe pouted a little. She was not a pouter, never had been, but it is a feminine art that seems to come easy to any girl who needs it.

"I don't think you like me at all," she said. "I ask a simple little thing, like having you take me with you up to the boss' shack, and you get hard boiled about it." Success or failure to locate the shack hung in the balance.

"I'm no chump," Mike boasted. "You can't play me for a sucker. What do you want to get up there for?" Now he was sorry he had started playing big shot with this girl.

"Mike, don't you know anything about women? I thought you were a regular fellow. I thought you could look at a girl and read her. But I guess you can't. I want to go up there just to go where women don't get to go. I've heard about it before. The boss' mansion is something. Maybe I haven't got a good reason, but I want to go; that's all. I want to go," Babe pouted again.

"Don't be a baby," Mike said. "You've got no business going up there."

"That's why I want to go. If you liked me at all you wouldn't be so important about your old message, or whatever it is, I don't want to go inside. You could hide me outside while you went in and delivered your talk."

"Well, if I take you out to the spot, see, are you going to be a little pal to me while I'm around? You know, a couple of days like I was saying. I'll be sticking around here. I don't want to be lonesome." Dangerous ground.

"Ain't I being a pal now?" Babe stalled.

"Oh, sure."

"Mike, you don't think I'd be eating with you, do you, if you didn't appeal to me?"

"Oh, I ain't so sure. All girls eat. I never knew one who couldn't eat."

Babe laughed. "Well, maybe. But Mike, I'm particular who I eat with. When are we going out to the shack?"

"Don't get in a hurry, I'm waiting, see. But we'll go yet tonight."

They had almost finished their dinner. A few couples had drifted in and were drinking beer and highballs. They all looked at Babe and buzzed. She felt that they were talking about her. She wanted to get out as quickly as possible. Every minute she waited was precious. But Mike seemed in no hurry. Another couple came into the room. The man called, "Yo, Mike." But Mike made no move to introduce her. She was glad of that. He ordered beer again and Babe was pleased that he did not insist on her drinking much. After finishing a third glass of beer Mike said, "Well, Pat, I guess it's time we took out. But before we go up to the woods, see, I've got to see a guy. He's in a shack up the road. You come along and we'll give him a buzz. He's got his girl up there."

The last statement helped Babe a little, who feared being alone with Mike but she knew it was the only way. She had to keep him in a good humor to learn the road to the Boss' hideout.

They went outside, got into Mike's car and started driving north. Babe studied the markings as best she could by night, thinking perhaps this was on the way toward the hideout. She must not fail to learn that, no matter what else happened.

Mike drove slowly. Babe had marked the speedometer in her mind to measure the distance north. Only 2 miles, she noted, and then the car swung into a rough, rutted private road. A clump of trees marked the spot. Once onto the private drive she saw there was not much use trying to mark the way but this was not very disconcerting since there were no branch roads. The path was not wide enough for two cars to pass. After driving along this lonely, desolate track for about ten minutes Mike stopped the car.

Babe's heart began to flutter. He had made no attempt to get familiar up to now. She had hoped that he spoke the truth when he said he was going to the cabin of a friend.

Babe was not of the old-fashioned type of girl. Few are nowadays. The question of petting or necking, so much discussed in the public prints, had never been a problem with her. She had her code. One very much like that of all the girls she knew in school. The code was simple and easy to live up to. If you liked the boy, considered him a gentleman, a few kisses are not going to contaminate you or make you any the less decent. But if the man is a rotter, he is not to be tolerated at all. Babe had not studied this out. She just knew it.

If she cut this man now, repulsed every advance, he would probably refuse to take her to the mansion of the Boss. He might even force her to leave the car, here in this wilderness.

She had never expected to ride with any one like Mike, either.

Babe gripped her bag tightly. If worst came, she was prepared.

CONSTITUTION TALK HEARD BY KIWANIS

Powers Are Given Federal Union by States, Judge Tells Gathering.

MANY CLUBS SEND MEN

Judge Mark Sullivan, of Jersey City, N. J., was chief speaker last night at the Constitution Day inter-club meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Washington Hotel. Representatives of Kiwanis clubs in five States and the District were present.

Judge Sullivan spoke on the Constitution, pointing out that the United States document is not only the oldest written basic law covering any government, but is also the shortest. Constitutions, he said, substitute a government of law for a government of men. He stressed the fact that all the power which the constitution possesses is given to it by the States, and that the failure of the national Government would not result in a breakdown of the State governments, while the reverse is true.

Edwin F. Hill, president of the Washington Club and lieutenant-governor of the first division, Capital district, presided at the meeting, which followed a dinner. Among other distinguished guests was Lamont Hackett, of Baltimore, superintendent of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind. Mr. Hackett, himself a blind man, told amusing stories of his experiences.

Another blind man was on the program, Morris Frank, of the Seeing Eye Association, who was accompanied by his German shepherd dog, which he has trained to act as his "living eye." Mr. Frank told of the work his association is doing in distributing these dogs to the blind.

Jesse H. Binford, of Richmond, governor of the local district, was also present and spoke, as did Dr. W. H. S. White, governor of the West Virginia district. Eugene R. Woodson, vice president of the local club, welcomed the guests to the meeting, while Robert A. Hutchinson, of Manassas, Va., responded to the welcome.

Several amusing skits were on the program. John J. Boobar and Mark Lansburgh, as a foreign speaker and a hardly more intelligible interpreter, rendered a patriotic speech. J. W. May and D. C. Givens, of the Alexandria Club, did a skit on the "immature" golf theme, while Miss Helen Howison, of Washington, sang two songs. The Kiwanis trio, Fred East, William F. Raymond and Pianist Robert S. Thomas were also present and performed.

Other out-of-town guests were Robert G. Carter, of Alexandria; Ralph D. Poynter and James M. Sweeney, of Rehoboth Beach, Del.; C. Walter Cole, of Towson, Md.; R. N. Lineweaver, of Staunton, Va.; Alexander Adams and R. W. Young, of Cumberland, Md.; A. L. Danferith, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Warren E. Cook, of Syracuse, N. Y.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND IN BAKER MYSTERY

District Jail my people could see me only once or twice a week and I could scarcely expect the courtesies which have been given me here.

Does Not Fear Questioning.

"I might also say that I have no fear of further questioning by District authorities. Inspector Shelby and Lieut. Kelly have been very fair to me."

Asked how he explained the identification of his gun as the murder gun, he emphatically stated, "It has been my contention all along that a mistake has been made in the identification of the pistol. That gun was never out of the bureau drawer in my home. I am positive of that."

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins said last night that Detective Sergeant John A. Flaherty will be the only Government witness. Sergt. Flaherty will testify that Campbell admitted that he is the man named in the warrant and that he was in the District on the day of the murder. This testimony, the Government contends, is sufficient evidence for removal.

Alibi Evidence Forbidden.

Judge Groner, on an appeal of the first hearing, ordered that the defense be permitted to rebut this testimony. At a second hearing before United States Commissioner J. Barton Phillips, in Alexandria, the defense attempted to offer alibi testimony but was forbidden by the court. On a second appeal Judge Groner decided to hear the case himself.

All the alibi witnesses who appeared at the last hearing will be summoned for Saturday.

They are Mrs. Gwendolyn Parsons, with whom Campbell spent the afternoon of the murder until 5 o'clock; Mrs. Ruth Callahan Campbell, his wife; Edwin Callahan, his stepson; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green, who say they discussed a business matter with him at 6 o'clock; Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. Smith and Mrs. Marion Stuart, with whom Campbell claims he spent part of the evening of April 11; Charles Fostnoybt, employed at Schneider's Bakery, where Campbell says he made a purchase at 9:45 on the night of the murder, and Charles King, a scoutmaster with whom Campbell spoke at 7 o'clock on April 11.

Salesman Killed In Flaming Auto

Baltimorean, Believed to Have Slept at Wheel, Dies in Crash.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 17.—William H. Purves, 42, traveling salesman of Baltimore, was pinned beneath his overturned automobile near Taneytown today and burned to death. The accident occurred on the State road between Frizzleburg and Taneytown, while Purves was on his way to Altoona.

Officers who investigated expressed the belief that Purves had fallen asleep at the wheel. Road marks showed that his car struck a rock on the right side of the highway and overturned twice. Purves' wife, who hurried to the scene, said he left home early in the morning. He had been traveling for about an hour and a half when the accident occurred.

A spot of asphalt on the highway was melted by the intense heat of the fire, which completely consumed the car. States Attorney Theodore F. Brown and Sheriff George W. Fawble, of Carroll County, assisted in the investigation. Magistrate George E. Benson, of Westminster, rendered a verdict of accidental death. Purves' remains were sent to Baltimore for burial.

HELD IN $136,000 FRAUD CHARGE

William Mayo Humphries (right) being led by Marshal John Scott to Commissioner Needham C. Turnage's office for a hearing yesterday at which a bond of $20,000 was set. He will be given a hearing Monday. Humphries is alleged to have defrauded the Royal Bank of Montreal of $136,000 through a spurious draft.

$20,000 Bond Set In Humphries Case

Alleged Swindler Enters Plea of Not Guilty to Needham.

William Mayo Humphries, 47, alleged confidence man, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday and after pleading not guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud was held under $20,000 bond for a hearing Monday morning.

Humphries, under indictment in New York City, is alleged to have issued and collected a spurious bank draft for $136,000 on the Royal Bank of Montreal.

The alleged fraud occurred in Canada but some of the mails involved entered New York and postal inspectors immediately launched a nation-wide search for Humphries which ended here Saturday night when he was arrested in a Fourteenth street hotel.

Humphries is also said to have carried on a race-track swindle, pretending that he could get premature results on horse races.

Gold Wedding Ring Stolen.

A gold wedding ring valued at $25 was stolen from Marie Little, of 1403 New Jersey avenue northwest, she told police yesterday.

Two Held in Death Of Youth on Truck

One Driver Under Bond and Another in Jail as Result of Road Accident.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 17.—Two Negroes today were under arrest, one under $1,000 bond and the other in Anne Arundel County Jail, in connection with the death of Charles Johnson, 17-year-old Negro, of Earl Heights, who died at the Emergency Hospital shortly before 7 o'clock last night.

The boy was riding on the rear of a truck driven by James L. Johnson, driver for a Baltimore firm. It is reported to State Patrolman James Shockley that another truck came too close to Johnson's truck and in doing so severed both of Johnson's legs.

William Bank, said to be the driver of the second truck, has been released under $1,000 bond, while Johnson is in jail pending an inquest before Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, acting coroner.

After the accident the lad was rushed to the Emergency Hospital, where an operation was performed in attempt to save his life, but Johnson had lost too much blood and died shortly after.

WILLIAMS ABANDONS WORLD FLIGHT PLAN

Starts for Pacific Coast; Levine's Order to Cancel Another Hop Denied.

AMMEL IS READY TO FLY

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—A threatened congestion of the Transatlantic airways which bade fair to rival that of the early Post-Lindbergh era abated today when one ocean flight project was abandoned and the status of another was made doubtful.

Roger Williams, who has piloted one plane to Rome and another to Bermuda and back without stopping, and Ted Lundgren, Hollywood aviator, gave up the idea of flying eastward around the world and started, before noon, for Los Angeles.

Just before they set out Williams announced he had a cablegram from Charles A. Levine, owner of the plane Columbia, saying Levine had cancelled the projected flight of that plane from Newfoundland to London.

Captain Errol Boyd, who had gotten as far as Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, in the Columbia on his way to Harbor Grace, N. F., to hop for London, doubted that Levine had taken any such step and said he intended to proceed to Harbor Grace as soon as weather permitted.

Later Lieut. Harry Connor, Boyd's companion on the projected flight, declared the Columbia was loaned to Boyd and himself for the flight and that under the law it need not be returned until the object for which it was loaned was accomplished. Both fliers said they intended to carry out their original plans.

One aviator clung to his plan to fly across the Atlantic from Roosevelt Field to England. He is Captain Roy W. Ammel, who has waited good weather for days. He said tonight he expects to start tomorrow.

Williams and Lundgren did not say why they called off their world flight the first European objective of which was Berlin. They planned to reach Kansas City tonight on their way West.

EXCITEMENT DIES DOWN

Berlin, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The rank and file of German citizens today turned their backs upon the problem of what sort of government Germany shall have and left politics to the politicians.

Although "politics as usual" remained the slogan of Reichstag leaders and aspirants for such role, the excitement of Sunday's election entirely subsided among the people.

Meanwhile the press continued to discuss various possibilities. Among these a suggestion that the Fascist party of Adolf Hitler and the followers of the Hugenberg banner effect a merger, thereby becoming the largest Reichstag party.

Such a coalition would have 148 seats against the Socialists' 143.

According to parliamentary traditions the Hitler-Hugenberg followers then could claim a Reichstag presidency and urge President Von Hindenburg to entrust to them the task of forming a new government.

Whether Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalists, would be willing to find himself and his extreme right followers completely swallowed up by the Hitlerites was regarded as doubtful.

The leaders of the Peoples, Economic and States parties have been approached by members favorable to a merger for Reichstag voting purposes.

Such a coalition would muster 73 seats but nothing along that line could be said to have developed.

Scribbling of Child Comes Postage Free

Officials of the Census Bureau yesterday felt like calling the handwriting experts of the Postoffice Department when a secretary of the director of the census opened an official letter of the bureau and found a tablet sheet of paper covered with unintelligible scribbling.

Apparently the work of a child who probably believed he was writing to his daddy, the letter had been inclosed in a franked envelope which bore the accustomed warning: "Penalty for private use, $300." It had been mailed on a train in the West.

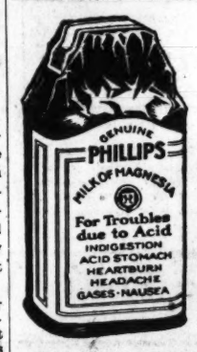
Thieves Take Cleaning Fluid.

Forty gallons of a patented cleaning fluid were taken from a filling station at 2800 Sherman avenue northwest early yesterday, according to a report made by Charles Hargett, proprietor of the station. The fluid, valued at $12, was removed by breaking a lock on the tank in which it was stored.

Colliflower to Head Merchants' Committee

James E. Colliflower was named chairman of the fuel oil division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association at a luncheon meeting yesterday in Olmsted's Grill. Mr. Colliflower will succeed D. R. Beane.

F. W. Rade was elected chairman of the gasoline division of the association, succeeding Harry G. Taylor.



Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

The First Thing in the Morning

Are You Well And Strong?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the written endorsement of half a million women.

More than 60% bought their first bottle because some friend or neighbor recommended it.

By accurate record, 98 out of every 100 women who report after taking it say, "It helped me."

OPAL COVEY
335 Bluff Street,
Excelsior Springs, Missouri

"I was always irregular until I began taking your wonderful medicine. I had tried several other remedies but none of them helped me. Lydia E. Pinkhams' Vegetable Compound has certainly straightened me out. I can go ahead with my work now, do not have to lie down and I am feeling fine. I have only taken two bottles, and I am now on the third. I believe the Vegetable Compound is a fine medicine for women and young girls. I am telling my girl friends about it for I feel that it will help them as it did me." —Opal Covey.

MRS. L. E. ALLAN
R. F. D. No. 1,
Pomona, Kansas

"I was weak, rundown and tired all the time. Some days I would get my work done, other days I did not. My husband got me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after we read an advertisement about it in Comfort. Now I get my work all done by 8.30 or 9 o'clock almost every morning and I enjoy doing it more too. My nerves are more steady and it has helped to build up my body before my baby came. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and if any woman cares to write I will try to answer her letter."—Mrs. L. E. Allan.

MRS. PAULINA PASCUZZI
316 Tremont Avenue,
East Orange, New Jersey

"I never had any appetite and I could not sleep well, and I was irregular and often suffered from headaches because of my age. I read about the Pinkham Medicines in a booklet which was left at my door, and so I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine. I feel stronger in every way now. I have gained in weight and am not nearly so nervous and can do my housework without getting too tired."—Mrs. Paulina Pascuzzi.

EDNA SLURAFF
1129 Daly Street,
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

"I was completely rundown from nursing. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I took four bottles with very good results. This medicine has helped me in every way. My nerves are better, my appetite is good, I sleep well, and am able to work every day. I have been a nurse for twenty years without losing a patient, I am proud to say. I will continue to recommend the Lydia E. Pinkham products at any time and you may use my name. I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Edna Sluraff.

—Now you can

Carry your medicine with you!

For the convenience of busy women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now sold in tablet form. These tablets are chocolate coated, easy to swallow and are just as effective as the liquid Compound. Each package contains 70 tablets or 35 doses, the same number of doses contained in a bottle of liquid medicine. Slip a package into your handbag. Take your medicine regularly, wherever you are—shopping, traveling, at the theater, or at your desk in the office.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THIS might properly be designated as "American Legion Day" on the air. During the afternoon the Columbia network will carry the plenary session of the meeting at Memorial Continental Hall here (WMAL, 3:30 p. m.). Maj. Bodenhamer, national commander, and District Commissioner Crosby will be the speakers.

The National Broadcasting Co. will be on the air (WRC, 9 p. m.) with a program dedicated to the legion by the RCA-Victor Co., linking nine American cities. Govs. Allen, of Massachusetts; Gardner, of Maine; Carlton, of Florida; Moody, of Texas; Young, of California, and Norbisd, of Oregon, will address the air audience briefly.

Crack legion bands will play regional airs from each city, and choruses of legionnaires will be heard. Mme. Schumann-Heink, Martha Attwood and Reinald Werrenrath will be soloists with Nat Shilkret's Orchestra from New York.

Later in the evening, Gen. Pershing and Col. Thad Brown, of the Federal Radio Commission, will be heard (WMAL, 10 p. m.).

THE first feminine witness during the present session of hearings being conducted by the Federal Radio Commission was Miss Bertha Brainard, Eastern program director of the National Broadcasting Co. in charge of WJZ. Miss Brainard is one of the few women executives in broadcasting. She entered the field as a dramatic critic back in the days when WJZ was just beginning and has held her present position for the past four years.

The Olmsted Trio, composed of Mrs. Amelia Olmsted, pianist; and her two sons, violinist and cellist, respectively, will return to Station WOL for the fall season this evening. This trio was a weekly feature last year.

The prediction is that the N. B. C., with new studios, claimed to be the largest and best equipped in the world, now about ready to use in Chicago, will soon distribute almost as many programs from that point as from New York. Many of the commercial programs will change over from the New York to the Chicago studios within the next few weeks.

The N. B. C. does not own a station in Chicago, but has distribution arrangements with KYW, WIBO, WENR, WLS and WGN.

WHAM, Rochester, is one of the only two stations not controlled by the N. B. C. which originates programs which are broadcast to its networks. Rochester, the seat of the famous Eastman School of Music, is a musical center of considerable importance, best known for its Philharmonic Orchestra of 90 pieces, which will resume broadcasting next month on the WJZ network.

In addition, there is the Civic Orchestra, 54 pieces; the Little Symphony, 20 pieces, and the Festival Chorus of 100 voices.

Edwin F. Hill, of the Washington Kiwanis Club, has been appointed a member of the committee on publicity for Kiwanis International for 1930-31 by Raymond M. Crossman, of Omaha, Nebr., president, it was announced yesterday.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Sept. 17.

EVERY woman is a queen this winter, now that they have come to insist upon stately lines in even their most simple dresses, an effect which can only be achieved through cut and material. Beautiful somber colors, which can not possibly be called dull, are very popular for evening wear, especially that lovely mulberry shade of which I so often speak. How well do I remember the insistent applause which greeted a beautifully cut gown of this description at Maggy Rouff's soiree! It was in this ink color, with some sort of unexplained fan-shaped godets pleated in the skirt, and with a beautiful scarf of the same color and material, which was fan-shape pleated at each end and narrowed down to almost a ribbon-like width in the center, which wrapped around the throat.

• • • •

Crystal or prystal, who cares? Well, you might care if you knew that crystal is very breakable whereas "prystal" is what has been manufactured to look just like it in the matter of transparency and brilliancy, but to be less breakable.

And this transparent medium is playing a very big part in the modern art of today's modes, a part which shows no hint of waning in favor. It is found in bag frames and handles, in umbrella tops, in jewelry, in home decorations. On bags it is used very much with marcasite, that little fine glittering steel-like stuff we used to call cut steel.

Our Fashion Note Book for Fall.

Autumn tailormades have already appeared. They have a delightful line, which traces the silhouette, allows the shape of the bust to be guessed at, marks the place of the waist and is complicated with basques more or less shaped.

• • • •

You needn't think that making a hat is such a mysterious art, because while it certainly takes a little practice, that is the best thing Clever Fingers does by way of amusement. First of all, she sends a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, which tells her how to make three smart Paris hats for her fall wardrobe, then she follows the directions, oh so carefully, practicing first with cheaper materials—then she finds that she has three new Paris hats without any of the bother, not to mention the expenses, or going to Paris for them.

Don't you think your Clever Fingers had better get busy at the writing desk right this minute?

• • • •

I really do think there should be at least one black and white combination dress in every well brought up wardrobe! No matter what fashion writers and magazines may say to the contrary, black and white will never completely go out of style, for the very simple reason that it is as flattering as it is—and lovely ladies just simply will be flattered, won't they?

Could you, for instance, resist a black and white model like Joseph Paquin's crepe de chine gown I illustrated for you today? Well not for long!

• • • •

Only in The Sunday Washington Post, in the Capital, can you find Dare's weekly fashion letter. And we known you want to read it regularly.

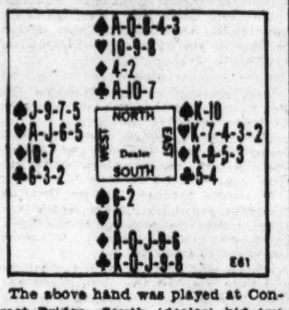
WORK ON BRIDGE

A WELL PLAYED HAND.



The above hand was played at Contract Bridge. South (dealer) bid two Diamonds, counting his hand good for six tricks with Diamonds the trumps. West passed, North bid three Spades, East passed, South bid four Clubs and North five Clubs.

Had the hand been played at Auction Bridge South would have bid one Diamond, North one Spade and South two Clubs, which would have held the contract.

In the play West opened the only suit not bid by the adversaries leading the Ace of Hearts; this was followed by a second Heart which South trumped. South now realized that the probability of making his contract was somewhat dubious and that he must utilize North's Ace and Ten of trumps as entries to lead Diamonds twice toward South. Consequently South led a trump to trick 3, dummy's Ten winning; and to trick 4 a Diamond from dummy for a finesse which won. Trick 5, dummy was put in again with the trump Ace and a second Diamond was led for a second finesse. Trick 6, instead of continuing with a high Diamond which would have been fatal because West would have ruffed and thereby forced North to trump South's winning Diamond, a small Diamond was led and ruffed by North.

After that things came more easily. A Heart was led and ruffed by South, and then South took out West's last trump and made two Diamonds. This left dummy with the Ace-Queen of Spades, and East with the King and one; so whether the finesse was taken or not was immaterial, North must win one or the last two tricks and East the other. East did not bare the King of Spades because he knew that South would not finesse if East could have one Spade and one Heart.

The point in the hand is the utilizing of two of North's trumps for entries to lead Diamonds, and the third to ruff South's losing Diamond. It would not have been safe for Declarer to play upon the basis of a 3-3 division of the adverse Diamonds as that division is comparatively infrequent.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

IF September 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 1:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

The boundaries of this date, as horoscopically revealed, inclose only ordinary events and the usual routine of your life. There will be no upheavals in your material, emotional or mental world. A more sparkling evening—awakened spirits and activities.

Children born on this September 18 will view the world with indifferent eyes, and will want its treasures to be brought to their feet. They will be pleasure loving, rather indolent and care-free. They will, however, have considerable personal pride, which will come to their rescue.

You are emotionally inert and physically sluggish, and you seem to put in and take out very little from life's coffers. You are not an invertrebrate, but you are too neutral and too passive to be awake to the wonders and possibilities around you. You seem afraid to reach out and take that which is rightfully yours. You are too secretive about your own hopes and fears and ambitions. You mark time instead of marching, and you wait for others to pull you along.

An inventory of your stock and trade would not make a bad showing. You do not have to overcome a bad temper, for you have marvelous self-control. You are never in a hurry never perturbed, so that you can be careful and methodical thinking. You have many half-revealed talents, which would be of marketable value, if you dragged them forth and polished them up. You are methodical and painstaking, so that whatever you do, should bear the standard mark of perfection. You do not suffer from "nerves," and you let the other fellow do the worrying. Because you take infinite pains to hide it, the world believes you are without sentiment. You are truthfully indifferent as to what other people think of you, and you will quietly "gang your own way," with a deaf ear and a blind eye. Prudence and steadiness are virtues well to the fore.

Successful people born September 18:

1—John S. C. Abbott, clergyman and author.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me if you know of a weigelia said to be dwarf in habit and having scarlet flowers. I understand there is such a variety, but I have been unable to locate one.
ELLA D. K.

Weigelia Eva Rathke is the variety to which you refer. This variety blooms almost all summer. If you can not find a catalogue listing this weigelia, write again and I will tell you of a number of firms who grow it.

Please tell me the time of flowering of Paul's double-flowering thorn. I purchased a plant or young tree of this variety, but so far it has not bloomed, though it is doing well. I planted it in late June.
ANNETTE J.

This variety of ornamental tree blooms in May and June. It will likely bloom profusely next spring. Be sure to stake it this fall.

Is an oxalis suitable for planting in a school hanging basket?
A PROSPECTIVE TEACHER.

Yes; plant at least six bulbs of one variety in a six-inch basket. Place the basket for about three weeks in the dark until the bulbs are thoroughly rooted. Water regularly. When rooted, hang the basket in a sunny window, because without sun there will be few blooms.

Please tell me how to care for a gloxinia after it has finished blooming.
RACHEL H. Y.

After flowering, withhold water until the plant is dry, then set away in some warm, dry place until it is time to start it into growth again.

My coreopsis are covered with rust or powdery mildew. What shall I do?
AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

Dust the foliage with powdered sulphur.

I want to increase my stock of Shasta daisies. Can I layer them or would it be better to divide the roots this fall?
MRS. GEORGE T. W.

Better lift and divide old plants this fall.

Please tell me how to get rid of red spiders, which have taken complete possession of my garden.
MISS PEGGY T. R.

The red spider, which is really a small mite, has a sucking mouth and can easily be controlled by spraying the plants with water and thoroughly wetting the under sides of the leaves. Some growers feel that they have better success if they dust the plants with powdered sulphur. Some entomologists recommend oil sprays.

Please tell whether Japanese anemones require sun or shade.
SALLIE F. L.

They should receive sun most of the day.

The foliage of several of my perennials has turned yellow this summer. What shall I do to them. Will they die?
EMILY H. A.

Plants which become yellow are diseased. Better take them up and cut away any diseased area you may find on the crowns. Set in a new situation, but before planting dust the entire root with powdered sulphur.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

RIB ROAST OF BEEF.
(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

Select a two or three rib standing roast. Wipe it off with a damp cloth, rub with salt, pepper and flour. Place the roast fat side up in an open pan without water. As the fat melts and cooks out, it will baste the meat. Make a small incision through the fat covering and insert a meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the roast. Place the roast in a hot oven. Sear the meat for 20 to 30 minutes until lightly browned, then reduce the oven temperature to about 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and continue the cooking until the thermometer in the meat reads about 140 degrees Fahrenheit for a rare roast; 160 degrees for a medium roast, or 180 degrees for a well done roast.

A rib roast will probably require 16 minutes to the pound to be rare, 22 minutes to the pound to be medium, and about 30 minutes to the pound to be well done. Higher oven temperature than 300 degrees Fahrenheit will shorten the time of cooking, but it will increase the shrinkage of the roast, and both meat and drippings may become too brown. Reducing the even temperature to 250 degrees will decrease the shrinkage markedly and will cook the meat uniformly, but longer time will be required.

When a rib roast will not stand upright, lay it on a rack in an open pan without water, and insert the meat thermometer directly into the center of the lean meat, not through the fat covering, as in the standing roast. Baste occasionally during cooking to prevent drying out.

Serve the roast on a hot platter, surrounded by browned potatoes or by squares of Yorkshire pudding.

The Goofus Phoenix

In old Egyptian vaudeville
The Goofus Phoenix had an act
Which every audience did applaud;
No critic was there to detract.

He used to burn himself to ashes
Then from his ashes he'd arise;
In those days there were no tabloids.
So this trick would cause surprise!

BOULDER DAM WORK IS BEGUN BY WILBUR

Driving of Silver Spike Is First Act in Project to Cost $165,000,000.

TO BEAR HOOVER'S NAME

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, today formally inaugurated work on the $165,000,000 Boulder Dam, and announced the Colorado River project will be known as the Hoover Dam, in honor of the President.

Announcement of a name to be attached to the huge engineering feat was made by Secretary Wilbur after he sledged a spike of Nevada silver into a railroad tie. The railroad will be used to haul material to the dam site.

"I have the honor," he said, "to name this dam after a great engineer, who really started this greatest project of all time—the Hoover Dam."

The ringing blows resounded in the desolate desert 7 miles from here as the Cabinet member expertly pinned down a 90-pound rail upon the 22-mile branch of the Union Pacific Line.

Six States Represented.

Officials from six Colorado River Basin States — Nevada, California, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming—attended the ceremony.

"This is one of man's greatest victories over nature," Secretary Wilbur said in his brief dedicatory address. "It is as if our country suddenly had a new State added to it, for a new and wider use of this controlled water will care for millions of people and create billions of wealth.

"Such great projects of engineering, financial and social skill as the Panama Canal and this dam are the just pride of our people—greater than victories in war or the harvesting of existing natural products hidden in or grown from the soil.

"Floods, like fire, are the enemies of man, but they can be tamed to be his servants. Here we will hold back those floods which could wipe out Imperial Valley and make them give aid instead of concern to its farmers. From here we are to deflect hundreds of millions of gallons of water to the southern California plain, where the water resources of the semiarid region are strained almost to the danger point."

Dam's History Sketched.

The Secretary sketched the history of the dam and said commencement of construction marks "the beginning of a new era in the handling by States working together of those common problems upon the solution of which the continued vitality of our Nation depends."

He expressed belief the project will be paid for by the power it develops, but that of even more importance, the waters of the river will "be brought to the home and the field after the water has earned its way through the whirl of the dynamo."

Like many epochal ceremonies attending the empire building work in the West in the past, the celebration became a reunion of the engineering, political, and financial leaders who have waged a ten-year fight to bring the project to fruition. In Las Vegas it became perhaps one of the last great scenes of its kind in the West with veteran desert rats, gaming tables, and hurdy-gurdies much in evidence. It bloomed with the atmosphere which Mark Twain and Bret Harte wove into descriptions of celebrations in the pioneer silver days of Nevada and California.

Mountaineer Shot In Continued Feud

Martinsburg Officers Say Trouble Is Result of Rum Arrest.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Flick Kees is in a local hospital with shotgun injuries in his leg and foot, and Dean Smith, who confessed the shooting, was released after his arrest when officers accepted his plea of self-defense.

Smith said Kees and others stoned him while he was going to his home, and he fired, after sending his son to get the gun, to protect himself. The trouble occurred in the mountain section near Jones Spring.

The Smith and Kees families, officers said, have been involved in repeated outbreaks, all laid to charges that Charles Smith, brother of Dean, had disclosed hiding places of liquor in the mountains and involved the Kees and other individuals. During the "warfare," buildings belonging to both Dean and Charles Smith have been burned. Charles Smith's sleeping room was entered one night by armed men, and the Smiths have been threatened with expulsion from the mountain valley. Officers laid the most recent outbreak to the general declaration of war between the factions.

FATE OF NINE HANGS ON GUARD'S WOUNDS

Prisoners in Maryland Jail May Be Hanged if Owen Dies of Shots.

ASSAILANT POINTED OUT

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Upon the outcome of the wounds of Arthur F. Owen, a Maryland Penitentiary guard shot late yesterday in a desperate escape attempt, the fate of the nine convicts who took part hung today.

Two years ago two prisoners were hanged for the fatal wounding of another guard, Fred Walker, in a similar attempted flight, and officials stated today that should Owen, critically wounded, die, the hanging of the nine would be demanded.

Physicians gave Owen an even chance to recover, although an operation to remove a bullet in his body was unsuccessful.

Guard Identifies Whittemore.

From his hospital bed Owen today identified the man who shot him as Rawlings V. Whittemore, 26, serving 21 years for robbery. Whittemore and George Bailey, serving fifteen years for robbery, were brought, handcuffed, to face the guard and he unhesitatingly pointed to Whittemore as his assailant.

Under the Maryland law, the others might be as culpable as Whittemore, however. For the murder of Walker, Benjamin F. Spragins and Charles P. Carey were executed, although testimony was that Spragins had fired the fatal shot.

Brother Was Hanged.

Whittemore's brother, Richard Reese Whittemore, was hanged at the prison in 1926 for the slaying of another guard while trying to escape from the downtown prison, called "the worst in the East from a physical standpoint" in a report last December of the Society of Penal Information.

Owen was the only serious casualty of the attempted break, which brought more than 200 city police to the scene. Five of the convicts sustained slight injuries in scaling 25 feet of roof of the prison of the foundry as the guards rushed up firing.

The prison break failed chiefly because iron hooks of a rope ladder failed to catch on the top of the high wall around the penitentiary.

Tractor Driver Killed When Hit by U. S. Plane

Dixon, Ill., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Howard McManus was probably fatally injured today when a Department of Commerce airplane, piloted by Capt. E. W. Haight, struck a tractor with which McManus was rolling the Dixon Airport. A companion on the tractor, Bernard Wolfe, was seriously injured.

In the airplane with Capt. Haight was Commander Giacomino. Neither airman was hurt, but the plane was badly smashed. The Department of Commerce men were here to make a survey for a new air map of Illinois.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

ANOTHER truce of a week, deferring final action in the controversy between the theater owners and the musicians from September 19 to September 26, having just been declared, I am constrained to believe that where there is so much smoke there must be some fire.

I mean to say that if were not reasonably certain that an agreement can eventually be reached—acceptable, even if not wholly satisfactory, to both sides—these recurrent postponements would not take place. If that impasse were actually an impasse, the boys would walk out and that would be that. Or so it seems to me.

At any rate, the logical inference is that progress is being made—possibly more than we suspect—and that some solution less drastic than wholesale walkouts and extensive sympathy strikes, with their concomitants of injunctions, court procedure and the like, will be arrived at. If such is the case, I take it that the experiences of both factions in other cities will have had something to do with it.

The condition that the opposing interests are attempting to prevent in Washington has not been pleasant for the theater owners, musicians, stage hands or electricians in other cities. Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis and other important centers have taught the boys what to avoid as well as what to embrace. Of all the parties concerned, the theater owners have suffered least. Their houses, at worst, have remained open.

It remains my favorite hunch, falling only a little this side of being a conviction, that an amicable settlement will yet be effected. But don't quote me.

And another thing. Because the Fox house in Atlanta was turned over to Loew interests to operate, it was immediately assumed that like procedure was to be followed throughout the country. Such, however, is not the case.

It comes to this desk on what is looked upon as unimpeachable authority that no consolidation of Fox and Loew interests in this city is contemplated at the present time. Strength was lent the contrary rumor not long ago by the premature announcement that in addition to Atlanta, St. Louis had witnessed the passage of Fox management to Loew hands. That is not the fact. There has been no change in Fox management, or Loew either, in the Missouri metropolis. It happened only in Atlanta, where a peculiar and isolated situation existed.

I am informed, as a matter of fact, that no more consolidations are contemplated until the Department of Justice has completely and finally disposed of the Fox-Loew merger case. This is in process of accomplishment, to be sure, but the creation of a new holding company, expected to be required by the ultimate Government pronouncement, and other complicated adjustments place the date when any change in local theater managements might occur, on this account, in the far distant future.

Since Fox purchased Loew, it is the belief in informed circles that Fox, by virtue of ownership, would have the power and the right to dictate management—not Loew, Inc.

This column wishes to extend its thanks to Harlan Randall, a former star of the Crandall Saturday Nighters when we put them on the air through Station WRC every Saturday night for about a year; Helen M. Smith, William H. Davis and "Okay," not only for many kind things said about "Behind the Screens," but also for their promptness in providing the information that George O'Hara was the lad who played Derek, the renegade young brother of Ahab, in the silent version of "Moby Dick," presented years ago as "The Sea Beast."

I am equally grateful, for the same reasons, to E. R. K. Kutz, whom I can assure that it was John Barrymore, and not his brother Lionel, who played Ahab in "The Sea Beast," just as he is doing again now in "Moby Dick," at the Earle.

There was a time, by the way, when George O'Hara was the best young chapter-play actor we had.

Despite the untimely and deeply lamented death of Milton Sills, his latest starring vehicle for Fox, a new dialogue version of Jack London's vivid story of "The Sea Wolf," will be retained as the major screen feature of the third anniversary bill opening at the Fox Theater tomorrow.

In the role of "Wolf" Larsen, Sills had another of the "he-man," fighting parts which, back in the old First National days, came almost to be his trade-mark. It is not impossible that his fatal heart ailment may have been directly traceable to the over-exertion occasioned by these repeated portrayals of physical violence.

Speaking of portrayals of physical violence reminds me that the most famous of all celluloid fights is to be reenacted on a local screen next week. In "The Spoilers," a new dialogue version of the Rex Beach thriller, at the RKO-Keith Theater, Gary Cooper and William Boyd—the stage William Boyd, not the screen—repeat the fisticuffing originally done by William Farnum and Tom Santschi and later by Milton Sills and Noah Beery.

For some reason, in this part and all others, Sills always seemed to me the most fragile of the iron men.

Next week's complete roster will be as follows: Metropolitan, George Arliss in "Old English;" Rialto, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page and Sally Blane in "Little Accident;" Columbia, the Four Marx Brothers in "Animal Crackers;" Palace, Bessie Love, Cliff Edwards and Stanley Smith in "Good News;" RKO-Keith's, Gary Cooper, William Boyd and Betty Compson in "The Spoilers;" Earle, Joan Bennett in "Maybe It's Love," and Fox, Milton Sills and Jane Keith in "The Sea Wolf."

It begins to look as if the Rialto really meant it this time!

Divorce Granted Mrs King Baggot

Charges Cinema Director Is Heavy Drinker and Refused to Quit.

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—King Baggot, motion picture director, was divorced today by his wife, Ruth Considine Baggot, who accused her husband of habitual intemperance. Mrs. Baggot complained the director had been a "heavy drinker" all his life. Four years ago, she said, when her son, Robert King Baggot, reached the age of 13, she forced the issue.

"I told him when the boy came back from summer camp to live with us," she said, "he would have to stop drinking or the boy and I would have to leave him. He did not stop, and we left on August 20, 1926."

Mrs. Baggot won the decree on grounds of desertion. She testified she married the director at Fort Lee, N. J., December 3, 1912. The court approved a property settlement in which Baggot agreed to pay his wife $325 a week from the time of their separation, and in addition one-half of all he earned over $850 a week. Baggot also agreed to pay $100 a month for the support of their son.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte dropped out of the clouds this afternoon for an overnight visit in Detroit, the city founded by their illustrious fellow countryman, Antoine de La Mothe Cadillac.

Escorted by eighteen Army airplanes from Selfridge Field, the transatlantic fliers in their big red sesquiplane, Question Mark, settled to earth at the city airport at 4:18 p. m. (E. S. T.), two hours and 13 minutes after they took off from Indianapolis. The escort had met them at the Michigan line near Toledo.

Thousands of persons who had waited for hours at the airport cheered wildly as the fliers stepped from their ship. There was a brief welcoming ceremony there, then the visitors were transferred to an automobile for a parade to the city hall.

There, after the official welcome had been spoken by William P. Bradley, president pro tem of the city council, in the absence of Mayor Charles Bowles, the guests of honor spoke through amplifiers to a crowd numbering well into the thousands.

Tonight the fliers were guests of honor at a banquet tendered by the Board of Commerce, the France American Society, and associated organizations.

They expect to take off before noon tomorrow for Chicago.

Filipinos Warned To Earn Freedom

Roxas Tells Countrymen Choice of Roosevelt in "Affront."

Manila, Sept. 17. (A.P.).—Asserting that Filipinos must show by action as well as by words their desire for independence, Manuel Roxas, speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives, said tonight that no violence was intended.

Mr. Roxas, who returned recently from an independence mission to Washington, spoke at a banquet in his honor.

Opposition to Nicholas Roosevelt, vice governor general appointee, would be continued, Mr. Roxas asserted, adding:

"The Filipino people can not look upon this appointment except as a ruthless affront to their national honor and dignity. These feelings can not be allayed by belated assurances of sincere sympathy for our welfare."

Week's Rains Help Big Area Baked by Summer Drought

Generous Fall Reported in Most of Mississippi Valley. But Northern Part Is Slighted; Fall Work Progresses Favorably.

(Associated Press.)

Rains of the last week at last brought to an end the parching months which seared wide agricultural areas between the Rockies and the Appalachian Mountains.

Generous rainfall fell throughout most of that territory, comprising States that previously had suffered most from lack of rain. It included virtually all the area from the northern portion of the Ohio Valley, northern Missouri and eastern Kansas southward to the Gulf of Mexico.

The average rainfall ranged from 1.5 inches to 4 inches, with some localities reporting even heavier precipitation.

At the same time, however, it was pointed out by the Weather Bureau, parts of Iowa, northern Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio received only local rains, affording but spotty relief.

The northern Great Plains States and parts of the Southeast had generous rains, but northward from Virginia and West Virginia, and in much of the lake region and west-central great plains, the fall was light.

Pastures were materially revived, and fall work west of the Appalachians progressed seasonably. Considerable seeding has been done, and the soil is now in condition for benefiting late crops and pastures and for seeding winter grains. Live stock is thriving in the Rocky Mountain region with good to excellent range.

"A Significant Example"

"Perhaps the most vital influence in the American business world in recent years has been the tendency of industrial leaders to join hands with science. No more significant example of this trend exists than your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. The great success of your experiments demonstrates the wisdom of this union between business and science."

Samuel Harden Church

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Samuel Harden Church to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Church appears on this page.

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

AVERILL'S 4 HOMERS FEATURE AS INDIANS AND NATS SPLIT BILL

3 Circuit Clouts in Opener Enable Tribe to Win, 13-7.

Nats' Lose Lead of 6 Runs; Win Final Battle, 6-4.

Special to The Washington Post.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 17.—Ad Liska's submarine ball baffled the Cleveland Indians in the second game of a double-header this afternoon and the Nats split a twin bill with the Tribe, with a 6-to-4 victory, after being swamped in the opener, 13 to 7.

Earl Averill's three home runs in consecutive times at bat, tying the record, routed the Nats in the matinee and broke Fred Marberry's string of eleven straight victories.

Liska Effective as Relief Hurler.

Averill also smacked a homer in the first stanza of the second game to give the Indians a four-run lead, but Liska replaced Brown and held the Tribe scoreless during the final seven and a third innings. Liska limited the Tribe to four hits and fanned seven.

After threatening in the first two innings, the Nats shelled Brown off the hill with a barrage of hits in the third session of the opener. Walter Miller went to the mound, but Washington pushed six tallies over the plate before the southpaw quelled the uprising. Hadley, Meyer and Rice singled, Manush doubled, Judge walked and Hargrave doubled to give the Nats a commanding lead.

Averill's first home run, coming with the bases loaded in the Tribe's half of the fourth, gave the Indians four runs.

The Indians took the lead in the fifth, Averill belting his second homer after Porter strolled. Morgan singled and trotted home on Detore's double.

Singles by Rice and Cronin and a sacrifice fly by Harris tied it up for Washington in the sixth, and Manager Johnson rushed Marberry in to hold the Indians.

Averill Clouts Third Homer.

Montague greeted Marberry with a single and Miller sacrificed. Jamieson singled to score Montague, and Averill smashed out his third circuit drive, scoring behind Jamieson.

Cleveland added three more in the seventh to make it a complete rout. Myatt singled, Montague strolled and Jamieson and Porter contributed doubles to give the Tribe its final tallies.

After a double play had pulled Hudlin out of a hole in the first stanza of the second game, Averill smacked his fourth home run of the day, scoring behind Seeds and Porter, who had walked. Hodapp singled, stole second and came home with the Tribe's fourth run on Detore's single.

A single by Hudlin, a pass to Morgan and hit batsman filled the bases for Cleveland in the second and sent Brown to the showers. Liska went to the mound and forced Hodapp to roll out, retiring the Indians scoreless.

Cronin walked in the fourth, raced to third on Kuhel's single and scored

Yankee Rally Short And Browns Win, 9-8

St. Louis, Sept. 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A seven-run rally in the eighth inning carried the New York Yankees to within a run of tie here today, but they failed to put over the biggest marker and lost the second game of the series by a score of 9 to 8. Early pitching indiscretions by Henry Johnson put the game out of human reach long before Yankee bats could get warmed up.

the windward-leeward course to score her third consecutive victory in hollow style.

All Enterprise now needs is one more triumph to clinch the series and keep the America's Cup in the custody of the New York Yacht Club for another indefinite span of time.

The fourth, and possibly deciding race, will be sailed tomorrow if the weather holds favorably, for Shamrock came in for repairs and it was announced she would be ready to go out again, without taking any extra time.

The damage to the halyard required only about two hours to repair late today, after the challenger had been towed back to her anchorage in Brenton Cove.

Shamrock Ready Again For Today's Race.

"It was tough luck," said Col. Duncan Neill, Lipton's racing representative, "but we will be ready to sail again tomorrow."

Today's sail-over was the first since the opening race of the 1920 series, when the American defender, Resolute, parted her throat halyard and gave Shamrock IV an uncontested victory.

The accident to Shamrock V added another chapter to the story of Lipton's yachting misfotunes in pursuit of the "old mug." The first of her line, Shamrock I lost the second race of the series of 1899 with Columbia through her topmast having been carried away in a stiff blow. In 1903 Shamrock III remained intact, but had the ill-luck to get off the course and failed to finish in losing the third and deciding race of the series against Resolute.

For the last of the Shamrocks, today's accident was the climax in her ill-starred venture. Twice she had been out-maneuvered and badly beaten on the start. Twice she had shifted her ballast, before and after the disastrous rout of the second race, in an effort to strike a winning turn.

When she went to the starting line today, with the briskest breeze that has yet blown for the races, the challenger had behind her the memory of her disappointing exhibitions, the stories of dissensions among the afterguard and even the talk of a switch in skippers.

Shamrock Gets "Break" At Start.

Capt. Ernest (Ted) Heard, however, was again at the helm, and Shamrock, out to redeem herself if any means could be found, was off to a brisk start on the dot of time, 10:40 a. m., Eastern standard time. She had skillfully placed herself in starting position so close to the line than Vanderbilt, coming down hard with the Enterprise, was forced to veer off Shamrock, in blocking her rival, got the weather berth for the first time and was several lengths in front as they went off on the starboard tack in a 15-knot breeze. She crossed the line nine seconds after the whistle and had about a 25-second jump on Enterprise.

This was exactly the sort of advantage Vanderbilt had gained over Heard in two previous races and the turning of tables by the British sloop furnished an unexpected thrill, as well as an immediate duel into the wind. Enterprise went on the port tack, but Shamrock alertly followed suit, holding tightly to the advantage gained at the outset.

Soon, however, Enterprise began to shake herself loose and gain in spite of the handicap of being partly blanketed. There was plenty of breeze to go around. The defender footed so fast, spraying her way through choppy sea, that Shamrock decided to come about again, on the starboard tack, rather than wait for Enterprise to make the next move.

Judgment of Shamrock's Skipper Questioned.

This looked like an error in judgement on the part of Shamrock, even though she was somewhat forced into making it, for it enabled Enterprise to gain the weather berth for the first time with a bit of fast work. It was at this juncture, 45 minutes after the star, with little to choose between them that Shamrock's mainsail came down, turning what looked like an exciting race into an empty triumph for Enterprise.

Perhaps the defender would have won the race anyway. She was considered the better boat in today's brand of weather; and Vanderbilt, who had done masterly work in offsetting his reversal at the start, seemed almost certain to take full command of the race with spinnakers set for the homeward run.

Enterprise, as a matter of fact, had perhaps an advantage of two minutes, so far as could be determined at

This is the fifth of a series of articles analyzing the strength of the possible world series rivals.

By AL MUNRO ELIAS (Famous Statistician).

AN age-old baseball axiom states that no team can be weak at shortstop and still be a pennant contender. Hence it is only natural that the six contenders this year should furnish the cream of the major league short fielders. Young Joe Cronin, of the Nats, and Joe Boley, of the Athletics, are the two outstanding shortstops of the American League, and on this season's play the youthful Cronin must be accorded a big edge over his Mackman rival, although the Nats' chances of appearing in the series are virtually nil. And surely Jackson, Wright, English and Gelbert are the class of the older circuit's shortstops.

Of the six, Cronin's record has been outstanding this season. The up-and-doing Joe has been a big factor in the success of Walter Johnson's team, and when it is remembered that 1930 marked but Cronin's second year as a big league regular, his performance has been nothing short of remarkable. He led the stellar sextet of short fielders defensively, handling 633 chances with but 18 errors for an average of .972.

Cronin Brilliant At the Plate.

At the plate Cronin has been even more brilliant. Travis Jackson's mark of .348 tops Joe by 6 points, but Walter Johnson's find has played in 35 more games than the Giant flash. Cronin has driven home 109 runs, the same as his nearest rival, Glenn Wright, of Brooklyn. Only English, with 134 runs to his credit, can top Cronin in the scoring department, and let it be remembered that English is a lead-off man, while Cronin has been batting fourth.

Boley, on the other hand, continues to be the steady, reliable, almost flawless fielder he has always been. At the plate, however, Boley has perked up considerably this year. His average is 25 points higher than a year ago, and he continues to be a dangerous man in a pinch.

There is little to choose among the National League shortstops. Each of them has something to recommend him, while none of them excels in all departments. Jackson and Wright are probably the most brilliant, but at the same time they are more erratic. English and Gelbert are more dependable.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that any one of the four National League contenders will be exceptionally well fortified at shortstop

Macks May Clinch Flag Today; Nats Assured Second-Place Tie

There is a possibility of either the Philadelphia Athletics clinching first place in the American League race, or of the Nationals clinching second, as a result of this afternoon's games. A Philadelphia victory, coupled with a Washington loss, would remove all mathematical chance of the Nationals winning the flag.

Regarding the runner-up berth, the worst the Nationals can draw is a tie, even should they lose all of their remaining nine games, while the New Yorkers are copping all of their eight to be played. Should the Nats win today and the Yankees lose, second place is assured Manager Johnson's team, irrespective of what happens over the balance of the route.

Two Big Frames Allow Pirates to Beat Phils

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Two big innings, the seventh and eighth, in which they scored all their runs, featured the Pittsburgh Pirates' 12 to 5 victory over the Phils today. Four Phillie hurlers were routed by the Pirates, while Erwin Brame limited the Phils to twelve scattered hits.

Besides beating the Quakers with his arm, Brame played an important part in the victory with his bat by collecting four hits. Al Phillips, Roy Hansen, Pat Collard and Rae Benge hurled for the losers. This quartet was assaulted for sixteen hits.

Giants, Pirates to Tour Havana Next Month

New York, Sept. 17 A.P.).—The New York Giants will go to Havana after the National League season to open a series of baseball games with a team composed of players from the Pittsburgh Pirates, October 10. Arrangements for the games were made by John J. McGraw and Julio Blanco Herrera. Eleven games will be played.

Dave Bancroft will be in charge of the Giants, the condition of Manager McGraw's health forcing him to forego the expedition.

Senor Herrera has offered $1,000 to the first player to drive a home run over the fence at Havana.

Tigers Win Slugfest From Red Sox, 9 to 7

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The Tigers and Red Sox put on a slapstick comedy act today, each team collecting fifteen hits as Detroit won by 9 to 7. Earl Whitehill started for the Tigers and was credited with his sixteenth victory, although he allowed thirteen hits in six and one-third innings. George Uhle relieved him and held Boston to two hits for the rest of the game. Durham, Smith and Kline pitched for the Sox. Five doubles and a homer by Bill Akers were the only extra base hits.

Tom Hughes, rookie outfielder from Des Moines, continued his hitting streak, getting three singles and a walk in four times at the plate.

Sally League Title Won by Greenville

Macon, Ga., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Greenville won the play-off series for the 1930 South Atlantic Baseball League championship here today by trouncing Macon, 4 to 2, in the sixth and deciding contest.

Greenville had won three and Macon two prior to the final battle. On Friday Greenville opens another post-season series in Greenville against Selma, Southeastern League champions, for the Southern class "B" title.

Wilson's Two Homers Win For Cubs

Slugger Boosts Mark to 52 in Beating Giants, 5-2.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Led by Hack Wilson's two tremendous clouts, which brought his season's home run total up to 52, and by Pat Malone's fine pitching, the Chicago Cubs evened their series with the Giants today by winning the second game, 5 to 2.

The defeat put the Giants almost hopelessly out of the pennant race, leaving them 5½ games behind the league-leading Cardinals with only nine to play, while the Cubs are only a half game behind the second-place Brooklyn Robins.

Wilson's Two Homers Give Cubs Lead.

Wilson made his two homers off Tiny Jim Chaplin in the first and third innings and gave the Cubs a safe lead. Cliff Heathcote also hit a homer in the third to complete the Cub scoring. Malone granted the Giants only five hits and was in trouble only in two innings, the first, when he escaped, and the sixth, when the Giants scored both their runs.

Bill Morrell, recently of Shreveport, made his Giant debut in the fourth inning and staged a real battle with Malone for the last six frames. He gave the Cubs only two hits and not a run.

The start of the Chicago scoring came in the first inning when Blair was hit by a pitched ball. English forced him at second and Cuyler fanned. Then Wilson sent the ball into the upper tier of the right field stand for his first homer.

Heathcote, Wilson Get Successive Homers.

English walked in the third and again was on base when Wilson clouted another homer into the right field stand. Heathcote followed by sending another drive in the same place to finish the job. By batting in four runs, Wilson set a new major league record, beating by one the mark made by Lou Gehrig of the Yankees in 1927.

Kink in Shoulder Bothers Bobby Jones

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, who came here today to get in some practice prior to the opening of the national amateur golf tournament at Haverford next week, went to a doctor this afternoon to have a kink in his shoulder "ironed out."

"I feel perfectly fit," said the golfing champion as he emerged from the hotel where he took a morning nap after his arrival, "but the shoulder has been bothering me since last night. I played an exhibition match in Washington yesterday and it rained part of the time. That's what caused the kink in the shoulder."

GALLANT FOX BREEZES HOME IN BELMONT FEATURE

1-35 Choice Wins in Romp

"Fox" Makes Final Appearance on New York Tracks.

Yarn Second; Frisius, Coupled With the Winner, Lame.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—In one of the easiest triumphs of his long and brilliant campaign, William Woodward's Gallant Fox, 3-year-old title holder and all-time money-winning champion, sent his total earnings soaring to $328,165 today with a galloping victory in the Jockey Gold Cup—run over two miles as the closing feature of the Belmont Park meeting.

Only three thoroughbreds paraded to the post for the twelfth running of the gruelling classic and one of the trio was Frisus, an added starter, coupled with the Fox as the Woodward entry. The third starter was A. C. Bostwick's 3-year-old Yarn, a speedy maiden, but badly outclassed today.

Victory 10th in 11 Starts For "Fox."

Gallant Fox and Frisus went to the post at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 30—the shortest quotations held against the Fox since he started his parade through the 3-year-old and handicap fields last April in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

The Gold Cup triumph ran the Woodward star's string to ten victories in eleven starts. It was also Gallant Fox's last race on a New York track, as he will be retired to stud after fulfilling his engagement in the Latonia championship in Kentucky.

Riding as per instructions, Jockey Slim Abel sent Frisus to the front at the rise of the barrier and for a mile and one-half of the journey kept him there, with Earl Sande holding the Fox back in second place. A half-mile from home Sande made his move and in a few quick strides the Fox was out in front. At the same time Johnny Maiben shook up Yarn, which went into second place as Frisus appeared to go lame.

Yarn Challenges But Not Seriously.

Rounding the stretch turn, Yarn challenged but could not get within a length of Gallant Fox. Sande just sat still and the Fox galloped under the wire in 3:24 2-5, nearly three seconds slower than the track record, but there was no need for hurry. Yarn was three lengths back and Frisus far back, pulling up lame.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WITH the Lincoln Fields track in first-class condition today for the first time this week, the entries received have reached the limit of eighteen in several of the contests. The Stadium, an overnight event with a purse of $1,600, has attracted six of the older horses in training to be contested over the mile and a sixteenth route. TANNERY, from the Pritchard Stable, with 107 pounds and favored with a fast track, has only to race to his recent effort to capture the major portion of the purse. MISS BESS, a smart filly, who has shown speed in her previous starts, should account for the place. FLECHE D'ARGENT, a recent winner at this track, appears outclassed in this field, but should save the minor share of the purse.

FIRST RACE—In the opening race of the card, eighteen 2-year-old fillies have been named to start. RUNNING GIRL has been working briskly and if she is fortunate enough to get in may flash past the judges' stand to take the contest. ALYSSIUM, a disappointment in her recent races, will improve and should finish in the second spot. WEE DROP raced into condition is favored for show.

SECOND RACE—The second contest has brought together eighteen 3-year-olds and upward, a claiming clause attached, to contest the purse over the six-furlong distance. TOMBEREAU suffered interference in his previous start and with better racing luck should outfoot the field pitted against him. NICHELSON will be benefitted by a long rest and may gain the place honors. BILL LOONEY has turned in several good performances and should hold the others safe.

THIRD RACE—Six fleet juveniles will battle it out in the Petrone, a dash of 6 furlongs, for a purse of $1,300. MARTHA JONES, a clever filly, has been selected to take the measure of the highly regarded OSWEGO. The latter has a 5-pound pull in the weights and may upset the calculations. TWILL has shown stopping qualities, but should outstay the others for the minor share of the prize.

FOURTH RACE—The Morton Grove, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, over the mile course, has attracted six of the best sprinters in training. HONEY LOCUST, who has shown considerable speed in his recent races over the 6-furlong distance, with an energetic ride should account for the purse. ESKIMO has been training well and should furnish the contention, while KARL EITEL, the J. J. Coughlin racer, who finished second in his previous start, appears up against it here.

SIXTH RACE—This is a claiming affair for 3-year-old fillies and has brought out thirteen to decide the issue over the 1⅛-mile route. BETTY BARRETT, a consistent filly, has shown speed in her recent starts and is fancied in an open race. MARY ELOISE should improve and will be a factor. FLO O'NEILL was the victim of interference in her last start and may take down the short end of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE — ROYAL MANAGER, a long-priced winner recently, has only to repeat this effort to take premier honors from the field of 3-year-olds named to start in the 1⅛-mile of the closing contest. HY SCHNEIDER, a consistent sort, should appreciate the added distance and may finish close at hand. CHAIRMAN, the H. G. Bedwell color bearer, should hold the others safe to gain the show award.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOPEFIELD, $15.18, $5.88, $4.88; ROYAL ROGUE, $3.40, $3.00; ROYAL RUFFIN, $12.24.

HOPEFIELD reared with ROYAL ROGUE from the start and, finishing well, earned the decision in the closing strides. ROYAL ROGUE broke quickly and held on well after showing fine early speed. ROYAL RUFFIN was never far from the pace and outfinished BURNING UP. The latter showed a fair effort. BRASS MONKEY made up much ground from a slow beginning. FOOLPROOF acted badly at the barrier, broke well, but soon dropped out of it. BY AN INCH tired.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:58. Off at 3:00½. Winner, W. I. Kohn's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZETA, $14.26, $7.40, $5.44; PERJURY, $8.66, $4.76; MISS ROSEDALE, $2.90.

ZETA got to the front soon after the start and, opening up a good lead, was never in danger. PERJURY made up much ground in the last quarter and was gaining at the end, but did not threaten the winner. MISS ROSEDALE raced very wide at the stretch turn, but was good enough to best the others. FIALA was in close quarters at the far turn and showed a good effort. JEANNE WACHS and AMERICAN THUNDER met with some interference in the stretch. BETTY ANN could not keep up.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:30. Winner, Northway Stable's b. c. (2), by Herodot—Sun Vive. Trained by E. L. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:47 4-5, 1:13 1-5.

* Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN DOT, $6.06, $4.16, $3.32; FLYING CHEROKEE, $8.14, $4.24; UPRIGHT, $3.02.

SUN DOT broke quickly and, taking a good lead soon after the start, was never headed, winning easily. FLYING CHEROKEE was never far from the leaders and, although tiring slightly near the finish, lasted to hold UPRIGHT safely. SUN DOT was in close quarters at the far turn and came gamely in the stretch. ROYAL ROCK was going well at the end. CAMP PRINCE tired.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:26. Off at 5:27½. Winner, F. Scancolas' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PASSALONG, $34.18, $12.22, $5.82; GOVERNOR SETH, $4.30, $3.20. GRAYDALE, $4.62.

PASSALONG went to the front at once and, opening up a good lead in the early stages, held on fairly well, but barely lasted to win. GOVERNOR SETH was always closest to the pace and, coming gamely in the stretch on his own courage, would have won in another stride. GRAYDALE moved up fast approaching the stretch turn, but raced wide on the bend. JOHN CAVANAGH broke slowly and was in close quarters for the first half mile. BONAIRE tired. NAUGHTY EYE was blocked soon after the start.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:27. Winner, R. Gratz's ch. g. SEARINGTON	106	5	8	8	8	8	8	Riley	6.53

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIEUTENANT RUSSELL, $9.30, $7.70, $3.98; CHIP, $9.04, $4.90; MISS MARNIE, $3.36.

LIEUTENANT RUSSELL followed MISS MARNIE during the early stages and, coming to the inside of the latter in the stretch under a good ride, passed her in the last furlong and easily held CHIP. The latter came fast in the stretch and was going strongly at the finish. MISS MARNIE opened up a good lead in the early running and held on fairly well. ROYAL SON weakened after looming up dangerously at the stretch turn. BUDDY BASIL and LONGUS were always outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:56. Off at 4:56. Winner, Mrs. R. L. Rogers' br. g. GEORGETOWN GRIDMEN MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

Team Set Now For Easy Game

Coaches Pleased by Manner in Which Plays Are Made.

'Alenti and King Outstanding in Scrimmage Session.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

POINT LOOKOUT, Md., Sept. 17.—If it were necessary tomorrow, Coach Tommy Mills could send a Georgetown eleven in the field ready to play four hard 15-minute quarters. This was apparent today when the Hoya gridmen returned from a stiff morning workout, followed by an afternoon scrimmage lasting three-quarters of an hour.

Equipped with about 20 plays on which they have been drilled intensively for the past ten days, the Blue and Gray players are physically fit to put into motion what they have absorbed mentally.

Hilltoppers Now Ready For Easy Game.

Of course, Georgetown is not ready now to play a midseason opponent, such as New York University or Detroit, but as far as early season competition is concerned, the Millsmen could give any team, such as Mount St. Marys, more than that opponent would care to receive.

A deep-rooted desire to play football has much to do with the situation. Even those ordered to refrain from scrimmage are straining at the leash, so to speak, to return to the thick of action. If permitted, they would hobble onto the field regardless of sore "dogs" and muscles.

But while the Hilltoppers are in almost prime physical condition as a whole, they have yet to reach the degree of perfection sought by Mills in the intricacies of his system of play—the Notre Dame system, with slight variations. The linemen, in particular, lack smoothness of execution that is so necessary to success with the South Bend style.

Notre Dame System Calls for More Use of Hands.

Playing the Lou Little system of defensive line work, Georgetown's linemen could do all that would be asked of them in mid-season right now. But the system of Mills is more difficult to perform—more detailed—and they still need probably a month of practice before they will suit the Hilltop mentor. Their chief fault is failure to properly use their hands.

In this afternoon's hard scrimmage, in which everything called for in a game except the kick-off figured, the Hilltoppers showed up exceptionally well, especially Joe Alenti and Dick King, two backs whose work was outstanding.

Coach Mills stated tonight that but one more scrimmage session would be staged, this being listed for Saturday, before he takes his charges home next Monday. Starting Thursday, it also has been decided that one hard drill a day will be sufficient.

Dixie Series Opener Lost by Memphis, 4-3

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 17 A.P.).—The Fort Worth Panthers, winners of four Dixie series pennants, renewed the annual baseball argument between the Texas League and the Southern Association today and defeated Memphis, 4 to 3.

The Cats showed 8,644 howling fans how to score three runs on no hits in the wild eighth inning, when they scored on two walks and two errors The teams meet again here tomorrow and then go to Fort Worth for a three-game series. The team winning four games takes the baseball championship of the South.

Apache A. C. Eleven In Meeting Tonight

The apaches A. C. Eleven, District champions, will meet tonight at the Spoft Mart at 7:30 o'clock to name a coach for the coming season. Last year's players and new candidates are requested to report.

With the exception of McCabe, former Georgetown University quarter back, who played an important part in the victory over the Mohawks last year, the entire squad will return to action, Manager Seymour Hall has announced. Among the newcomers will be Dugan, former Gonzaga player; Mat Twoomey, who returns after a year's layoff; Waters and Carroll.

SPECIAL BOUT ADDED.

Matchmaker Goldie Ahern announced last night that he had secured the fistic services of Jack Turner and Rusty Murray as a special added attraction for the boxing bill at Fort Washington next Monday night. Turner was once known as the "Wild Bull of Ninth Street" but has not been active in Queensbury circles of late.

BARBUTI JOINS PROS.

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Ray Barbutt, Olympic 400 meter running champion, and America's only winner of a flat race in the 1928 games at Amsterdam, signed today to play professional football with the Long Island Bulldogs. Havingturned professional, Barbuti will not be able to defend his title in the 1932 games at Los Angeles.

CAGLE NAMED COACH.

Starkville, Miss., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—C. R. Nobile, head football coach and athletic director at Mississippi A. and M. College, today relinquished football coaching duties to devote his entire time to the directorship of athletics, and named Christian Keener ("Red") Cagle, famous star of the Army, to succeed him as head coach.

TITLE TO DURHAM.

Henderson, N. C., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Durham won the Piedmont League championship today by defeating Henderson, 7 to 5, in the final game of the post-season series.

OAKMEN CHALLENGE.

Shady Oak Unlimited Eleven issues a challenge to other squads of their particular avoirdupois to be played Sunday. It is imperative that their opponents have a playing field. Call Bob Bateman at Lincoln 8136.

ALEXANDRIA BOUTS ARE LISTED

Schwartz - Finnazzo in Feature Match Tomorrow.

FRANKIE MANN, matchmaker of the bouts to be served at the Armory in Alexandria Friday night, announced his full card last night. Around the premier piece of leather pushing of the evening, the Billy Schwartz-Joe Finnazzo mix-up, the matchmaking Mann has molded possibly 28 more rounds of guaranteed excitement.

Pat Knup and Johnny Bell, two flyweights from Georgetown and Alexandria, respectively, will get the show under way. Following that Jack Stone, of Gaithersburg, Md., will swing his 140 pounds against Ray Davis, of Washington.

Burke-Murray in "Special."

The ball will be kept rolling by Willie Esinger who tackles Young Sazarous. Both are 130-pounders. Sammy Green takes on Al LaBona in another 130-pound bout. All of these bouts will go four rounds, or less.

The semiwindup will find Dick Richardson, Kenilworth's pride, and Knockout Reilly, of the Mohawk Club, battling in an affair scheduled to go six rounds. A special six-rounder will be put on ahead of the main event featuring Soldier Burke and Rusty Murray. The militiaman's home base is Walter Reed Hospital, while Rusty is one of Roanoke's renowned resin performers.

The Alexandria Rotary Club is sponsoring the bouts and the proceeds will go toward the support of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Six U. S. Golf Women In Canadian Open Play

Montreal, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Six players from the United States and two Canadians remained in running for the Canadian women's open golf championship at the conclusion of the second round played over the Laval-sur-le-Lac course today.

While not lacking brilliant playing, the day's round was void of any upsets, all eight players standing out in reputation over the remainder of the original field of 76. They are: Miss Helen Hicks, Hewlett, N. Y., the defending champion; Mrs. Harvey Higbie, Detroit; Miss Maureen Orcutt, New York; Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, N. Y.; Miss Edith Quier, Reading, Pa.; Miss Marion Bennet, New Britain, Conn. and the two Canadians, Mrs. Elexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa and Miss Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Alexandria, Sept. 17—Plans for a banner bowling season were outlined today by Earl Robey, manager of the Health Center Alleys, which opened on Saturday evening.

Robey plans to call a meeting within ten days to organize the City, Rebekahs, Odd Fellows, Redmen and Fruit Growers Leagues. Handsome prizes will be given to the winner.

An all-star team captained by Cliff Wood will be formed to meet bowling fives from Washington, Fredericksburg and Richmond.

The Virginia Athletic Club will hold an important football meet at King and Lee streets Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Coach Buck Beach expects all players to attend.

Coaches Given and Wilson, of the Alexandria High School eleven, are enthused over the showing of the grid squad in drills and hope to have a team that will win the District title and then advance to the State finals More than sixty boys are trying out for positions.

SHIFTS ADD STRENGTH TO G. W.

Bagranoff Does Well as Back; College Head Pleased.

Special to The Washington Post.

CAMP LETTS, Md., Sept. 17.—Nothing but praise was forthcoming of Head Coach Jim Pixlee and his squad of George Washington University football players from Dr. Clyod Heck Marvin, president of the school, and Dr. Daniel Borden, dean of the George Washington Medical School, who paid an early visit to the camp today.

Well pleased with the sizeand condition of the players, Dr. Marvin expressed himself as confident that George Washington would have a team of big-league caliber this year after seasons of frustration. He was particularly attracted by Otis Krimelmyer, Washington High School star in 1928, and predicted a bright future for the erstwhile Techite.

President Predicts Future For Krimelmyer.

"There's a two-year man," said Dr. Marvin while watching Krimelmyer in action. "He's all right now, but he's going to be a whiz in his last two years of college. He's improving all the time and watch out for him as a national celebrity in 1931 and 1932."

With an abundance of linemen in camp, Coach Pixlee is trying to make backs out of some and today had "Bugs" Bagranoff, freshman guard last year, at a half-back post, making the third flank man to be transferred.

At present, the best looking backfield quartet looms with Carter at quarter, Bagranoff and Sturdevant at halves, and O'Brien at full, all sophomores. Carter is the best forward passer of the lot, Sturdevant the receiver, Bagranoff the ground gainer and O'Brien the line plunger. O'Brien and Sturdevant indulged in some punting for the first time tdday and were getting off some nice boots, several sailing 55 yards or more.

GIANTS VS. HYATTSVILLE.

The Silver Spring Giants will travel to Riverdale Park for the second game of their series with the Hyattsville Club to start at 3 o'clock. Hyattsville won the first game. Manager Hiser wants all players to report at 2 o'clock. A photograph of the team will be made.

BETHESDA ENTERTAINS.

The Bethesda Bowling Team will entertain the George Lang's Bowling Center Five, of Baltimore, Saturday night on the Bethesda alleys when the second block of the intercity macth will be rolled starting at 7:30 o'clock.

SHAMROCK BEATEN AS MAINSAIL FALLS

the time of the disabling of Shamrock. At least this was the estimate of the challenger's designer, Charles E. Nicholson.

Some question arose as to whether Enterprise would accept the victory, the suggestion being made that Vanderbilt would consider requesting that it be sailed over. Precedent was against such a gesture, however, particularly as there was no reason for penalizing Enterprise because of the development of a mechanical defect in her rival. Any doubt as to whether the race was official, as a matter of fact, was eliminated when Enterprise finished her solo run.

Enterprise had whatever satisfaction was to be gained from turning in the fastest race of the three run so far. Her time of 3 hours 54 minutes and 45 seconds was 6 minutes faster than in the second race, over a 30-mile triangular course. She reached the outer mark at 12:54:15, taking 2 hours 14 minutes 15 seconds for the first 15 miles. She sailed the last half of the course in 1 hour 40 minutes 30 seconds, finishing at 2:34:45 p. m.

CAPITAL CITY NINES PLAY SUNDAY

Dixie Pigs-Anacostia, Tigers-Bausermans in Series Frays.

SECTION champions of the Capital City League's unlimited class, will play the second round of their battle for the baseball championship of the circuit Sunday. The Anacostia Eagles, District Section champions, will travel to the Byrd Stadium at the University of Maryland, where they will tackle the Dixie Pigs, champions of Prince Georges County at 3 o'clock.

At Silver Springs, the popular Takoma Tigers, winners of the Montgomery title, will cross bats with the Bauserman Motor Co., winner of the Virginia section pennant, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Games Expected to Be Thrillers.

Both games are expected to be as thrilling as the pair of battles staged in the play-off last Sunday. As the result of their defeats in last Sunday's games, the Dixie Pigs and Bausermans will have their backs to the wall. Under the system of elimination used in the series, another defeat will force these clubs out of the running.

The closeness of last Sunday's games makes no assurance that the race will narrow down to the Eagles and the Tigers today. On the other hand, many sandlot fans are expecting the Dixie Pigs and Bausermans to win and even the race all around.

None of the rivals showed the batting punch last Sunday that had been expected. The Takoma Tigers by winning 7 to 3 over the Pigs displayed the most punch. The Eagles took their game 3 to 2 in a pitching duel between Goodwyn and Hull.

WOLVERINES REPORT.

Coach Rice requests the following Wolverine gridmen to report for practice tonight and Saturday night at 7 o'clock on the Virginia Avenue Playground:

A. Bell, H. Blackman, W. Campbell, R. Davis, J. Criste, J. Dellar, H. Fix, C. Freeman, H. Frye, G. Gerdom, W. Lanham, F. Littlefield, M. Littlefield, W. McPherson, A. Nicholson, R. Parkhurst, C. Pelton, C. Phillips, R. Raum, M. Snellings, B. Williams and J. Winters.

The Wolverines play a practice game Sunday with the Battery B. Team from Fort Myer on the Fairlawn Field No. 1 at 1 o'clock.

V.P.I. COUNTS ON 1929 FROSH

Upcoming State Frosh Champs Hold Grid Fate at Poly.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Upon sturdy Sophomores, State title winners in yearling togs a year ago, rest the gridiron fortunes of Virginia Polytechnic Institute where Orville Neal and Lyal Clark, former western Maryland luminaries, are settling down to their first effort at steering the gobblers through another tough southern conference schedule.

The new coaches are quick to tell all who inquire that the Green Gobbler squad may go places and do things—but not this year. "They need seasoning but they have possibilities" Neal said.

Only Three 1929 Regulars On Squad.

Commencement cut ten veterans from the roster and of the remaining ten lettermen only Capt. Bird Hooper, clever field general, Phil Spear, fleet little half back, and big Jim Swart, tackle, played regularly last year. Into the breach the coaches are pounding youngsters in the teeth of a nine-game card which lists, among others, North Carolina, Vanderbilt, Virginia, Washington and Lee, Maryland and Virginia Military Institute.

Besides the veterans, Spear and Hooper, no one is left to carry on where the "three grenadiers" of yesteryear left off. Hooper, quick thinking pilot of two campaigns, is the central figure of the new team. A runner, passer and kicker of ability, Hooper is regarded as the type the coaches need to lead the unproved eleven.

For the full back position, Neal is grooming Owens, reserve last year, and Howard, stocky line ripper from the freshman ranks. Hardwick, scion of a fine old football family; Ottley, Barnes and Morgan, the latter pair sophomores, are candidates for the half back post beside Spear.

Four-Cornered Battle for Guard Posts.

Jones, only guard veteran, is mixed with Stark, a shift over from tackle, and Dyke and Hite, promising newcomers, in a four-cornered scrap for the guard positions.

Wolfe, another recruit is tightening the tussle at center, already fortified by Brown and Winner, who alternated there a year ago. A veteran tackle trio is composed of Ritter, Green and Swart and is strengthened by Grinus, a big sophomore.

Neal and Clarke are craining their necks for capable ends, for it was on the flanks that graduation wrought the greatest havoc. They are working to turn Chandler, big junior, and McIntyre, Seamon, Palmer and Miles—the latter four sophomores—into players of varsity caliber.

Unlimited Football League To Start Play October 12

Capital City League Elevens Complete Plans for Coming Season; Coaches Are Named on Protest Board.

Special to The Washington Post.

SUNDAY, October 12, will mark the first games of the season in the Capital City League's unlimited football division, it was decided at a meeting of the team representatives held last night at the Howard A. French Co. Sports Store.

The six teams which will compose the league are St. Stephen's, last year's champions; Mercury, Seat Pleasant, Marions, Brookland and the Alpha Delta Omega. The last-named team is from Alexandria. Representatives of these teams made the rules for the season, selected officials and fields and ironed out all problems pertaining to the circuit.

Franchises were left open for two teams. Any teams desiring entrance and those already in line will post their franchise fees of $10 at the next meeting at French's on October 1. The schedule will be drawn at that time.

The rules of the league are virtually the same as governed play last year, when the circuit was known as the "150-pound class." No player who participates in a game as a member of the Apaches, Mohawks, St. Mary's Celtics, Knickerbockers or Northerns this season will be allowed to play. College men who were regulars are also barred.

The clubs will be limited to 25 players, all of whom must participate in either the first or second games to become eligible for the remainder of the season.

A protest board was named to include Max Farrington, assistant coach at George Washington University; Hap Hardell, Tech High coach; Charlie Guyon, Eastern High athletic advisor, and Irving Sanborn, Emerson Prep coach.

Three playing fields where collections may be taken are available for the section. They are Seat Pleasant, Potomac Yards and Silver Spring.

The 150-pound class elevens of the Capital City League will hold their next meeting at French's on September 25. Franchise fees for teams in that class are due at that time.

Hunter, Sr., Ties for 4th In Maryland Open Golf

Spencer Wins Title With 144 Total; Barnett and Beach Tie for Last-Place Prize; Tredor Scores Hole-in-One.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 17.—Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club professional, who has been experiencing a good year in competition this season, led the field of more than 60 golfers from this district in the Maryland State open championship, posting a score of 73—71—144, to win the title at Rolling Road today.

Spencer's victory was insured by a subpar outward nine in the afternoon, his 33 giving him a margin of safety to atone for a lapse on the incoming journey, when he took 38 strokes to get home.

Smith Has Chance to Catch Leader.

George B. Smith, representing the Moorestown (N. J.) Field Club, charged down the incoming nine with a chance of catching Spencer. He had taken only 72 in the morning and had reached the turn in 37, needing a par return nine to tie. He maintained an even pace until the fourteenth, where a 5 made his task more difficult. Again on the sixteenth, a dog leg that gave them all trouble in the double round, he was 1 over. He finished second with a total of 146.

Kenneth J. Allen, local professional, placed third with 147. J. Monroe Hunter, sr., pro from Indian Spring, Washington, and Carroll T. MacMaster, host professional, shared fourth place money with 148 each. Jack Causey Jacksonville Fla. finished next with 150 while one stroke behind were Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, Washington, and Ralph Beach, Suburban Club, tied for the last prizes.

The honor of having the lowest amateur score was shared by Dr. Larry S. Otell, Indian Spring, and Ernie Caldwell, of Clifton Park. Both covered the 36 holes in 158 strokes.

Tredor, Manor Club, Scores Hole-in-One.

Al Tredor, of Manor Club, Washington, scored a hole in one in the first round of play. The ace came at the 167-yard fifteenth hole when Tredor used a No. 4 iron to put the ball on the edge of the green when it rolled directly into the cup.

Scores of Washingtonians follow:

J. Munro Hunter, sr., Indian Spring, 73—75—148; Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, 77—74—151; Frank Cunningham, Burning Tree, 86—81—167; *Dr. Larry S. Otell, Indian Spring, 78—80—158; George Difenbaugh, Indian Spring, 83—78—161; Al Haughton, Washington, 82—76—158; Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, 86—78—164; *J. M. Harvey, Indian Spring, 85—81—166; A. B. Thorn, Woodmont, 80—75—155; Al Tredor, Manor, 81—x; Daniel Burton, Chevy Chase, 93—x.

Wash. & Lee High Grid Prospects Are Rosey

Preparing for another successful year, the football squad of the Washington-Lee High School, numbering 24 players, was on the field yesterday working under the leadership of O. L. Driver, star half-back of the Eureka College, Illinois, as their coach.

The group contains a number of last year's players, with Stanly Mortimore, the school's start quarter, as captain, and there is every indication that they will be well up in the lee of high school teams in the State.

The team will play its opening game with Eastern High School of Washington at Washington on Friday, October 3, and on the following Friday will met Western High at Ballston.

PRO NET KING ENTERS 4TH ROUND

Beats Maguire in Love Sets; Heston Wins in Doubles.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Three lawn tennis stars from across the Atlantic and five Americans went into the quarter-final round of the fourth annual professional championship singles tournament today.

Karel Kozeluh, the defending champion from Czechoslovakia; Roman Najuch, of Germany, and Dan Maskell, the British title holder, carried the banners of the invaders forward and were joined by Vincent Richards, twice holder of the professional crown; Harvey Snodgrass, Pacific Coast champion; Howard O. Kimsey, of San Francisco; Paul L. Heston, of Washington, D. C., and Norval Craig, a young professional from Los Angeles, Calif.

Maguire No Match For Champ.

Kozeluh toyed with J. Basil Maguire, Orange, N. J., to gain his place in the final eight, winning three love sets. Maskell and Najuch had hard battles, however, the Briton being forced to four sets before he defeated Edwin J. Faulkner, Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—1, 6—8, 10—8. Najuch lapsed into a streak of inaccuracy against Charles M. Wood, Elmaford, N. Y., but finally won in the regulation three sets, 6—4, 6—4, 9—7.

Richards, a former Davis Cup player, had little difficulty in disposing of James Burns, sr., Cedarhurst, N. Y., 6—0, 6—3, 6—4. Snodgrass was forced to four sets to eliminate Han Hummel, Denver, Colo., 7—5, 5—7, 6—0, 6—1. While Kimsey took the measure of Peter A. Peterson, of Narragansett Pier, R. I., 6—0, 6—3, 6—2, Heston also swept through his match with James Kenney, Ridgefield, Conn., in straight sets, winning 7—5, 6—2, 6—2.

Craig Beats Johnson In Upset.

Young Craig scored the only real upset of the day, when he mastered Wallace F. Johnson, of the University of Pennsylvania. The Los Angeles youth won, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4.

Skinker Eagles Plan Football and Bowling

Skinker Eagles, just after the baseball season folds up its tent, will leap into the forms of cold-weather exercise—football and bowling. Clif Clifford, Skinker sports adviser, announces that the accessorymen will enter the Boulevard Bowling Alley League.

At a meeting tonight at Manager Clifford's home, 4430 Grant road, plans for a 135-pound eleven will be discussed, as will the topic of seeking a franchise in one of the local leagues. It is thought that many faces familiar to the Janney Club fans will be seen wearing the Skinker colors.

But while wintry sports are being discussed, the Skinker Baseball Nine seeks a game on either Thursday, Friday or Saturday to tune it up for its Sunday contest against a yet unnamed opponent.

Hack Wilson Breaks Runs Batted in Record

New York, Sept 17 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson, slugging center fielder of the Chicago Cubs, added a major league record to his laurels today as he clouted his 51st and 52d home runs of the season against the Giants today. Each homer was made with English on base and the four runs batted in brought Wilson's total for the season to 176, one ahead of the major league record set by Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees in 1927.

The pair of homers also put Wilson six ahead of Babe Ruth in the race for this year's home-run hitting honors and made his new National League record nine above the former mark of 43 homers set last year by Chuck Klein, of the Phillies. He has eight to go to equal Ruth's all-time mark of 60 and nine games left this season.

UTILITIES' PROGRESS MARKS STOCK SALES

Group Makes Best Advances as Trend Continues to Rise Laboriously.

RAIL SHARES ARE HEAVY

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The financial markets made laborious improvement today.

Stock prices averaged less than a point higher in the second smallest turnover of the year, 1,188,580 shares. Grains again rose, but the advances were small. High-grade bonds, especially railroad obligations, showed moderate strength.

Shares worked upward in extremely quiet trading until the late dealings, when some profit taking cut into the advances of a point or more in the market leaders. Utilities received the bulk of what buying activity there was and the day's best gains developed in that group. Railroad and motion-pictures shares were heavy. Industrials listlessly followed the upward trend, although U. S. Steel yielded all but an eighth of its extreme gain of more than point.

One of the most encouraging developments was the appearance of evidence that prices for two of the basic commodities, steel and copper, had reached such low levels that important consumers were changing, or were about to change, their hand-to-mouth buying policies.

Western Electric Data.

Western Electric, American Telephone's manufacturing subsidiary, announced it had been buying copper for six weeks and had accumulated enough to carry the Bell System through the remainder of the year. The company, which is also an important customer of the silk, lead and rubber markets, is understood to have saved about 15 per cent as a result of the weakness of commodities this year.

The iron and steel reviews, although putting operations about on a parity with recent ratios, reported that large users of Steel apparently believed prices had reached bottom, and, in the words of Iron Age, were now willing to "contract ahead." This publication said several consumers had covered their requirements for the balance of 1930, and that a few had purchased for the first half of 1931. In this connection Steel stated: "Many discern in the price situation, which is spotty and somewhat contradictory, a slow accretion of strength."

Routine business indices disclosed a reduction of 127,867 cars in freight loadings for the week ended September 6 over the preceding week, a decrease that was somewhat more than seasonal even in view of the fact that the period covered by the report included Labor Day.

Oil Production Dropping.

The petroleum industry, on the other hand, continued to report progress, showing drops in both reserve stocks of gasoline and crude-oil production. General Motors August deliveries to consumers was about 6,000 units larger than the July total, but sharply below those for the same month a year ago.

Money was in abundant supply, and the call rate renewed at 2 per cent for the first time in a fortnight. The Treasury's large overdraft at the Federal Reserve Banks was understood to have been virtually liquidated.

Neither of the professional factions in the stock market appeared to be much interested in the movement of prices. There were reports that the shorts, who did little or no covering, were awaiting the reaction to third-quarter earnings statements before testing quotations further, while the bull crowd seemed satisfied with the general firmness and tried only half-heartedly to attract a following. The move in the utilities brought net gains of about a point to American Telephone, Electric Power & Light, Public Service of New Jersey, American Power & Light and North American. Stone & Webster rose 3. Consolidated Gas closed unchanged.

Anaconda Shares Drop.

Paramount carried most of a 2-point loss through to the finish, while Warner Bros. Pictures yielded a point and Radio-Keith-Orpheum ½. There were small net declines in General Electric, Radio, Vanadium, Johns-Manville, Anaconda, American Tobacco B, Dupont and Case. Gillette and Autostrop were heavy, yielding a couple of points. National Biscuit, whose directors authorized an extra dividend of 50 cents, closed ¾ higher.

In the rail group Louisville & Nashville, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway and Atchison sold off around a point, although scattering recoveries were made from the lows. Baltimore & Ohio firmed on the declaration of the regular dividend. Atlantic Coast Line, off 2 points, sold at the lowest price since 1924.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅞ cent higher in response to larger exports and Eastern buying. Corn rallied ⅝ to 1⅛, reflecting a firm cash market. Cotton finished 1 point lower to 5 higher.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Far Eastern rates improved with a rise in the price of silver.

RAIL BONDS' CLIMB FEATURES TRADING

Several Utilities Share in Day's Advance; Sales Total $8,939,000.

OIL ISSUES ARE ACTIVE

New York, Sept. 17 A.P.).—With a large volume of funds seeking employment, demand for railroad bond issues broadened today and carried many to the best prices of the year. Buying was brisk in the final hour, and the volume of business for the session approximated $8,939,000.

Some of the utilities, particularly communications, felt the impetus of the vigorous buying and United States Governments made some headway on a large turnover. Changes in the foreign list were mixed. Argentine issues rallied more than a point each on announcement that the provisional government had been recognized by the United States. German issues with the exception of the Dawes 7s lost ground, reflecting uncertainty over the outcome of the recent election.

Both the highest grade railroad obligations and those that rank slightly below the legal class participated in the advance, as buyers were encouraged by the reduction of the call money renewal rate to 2 per cent.

Pennsylvania 4s Climb.

Missouri Pacific 5s F 77, a legal issue, and the 5s H reached new highs for the year, and the general 4s duplicated its peak price. Pennsylvania debenture 4s climbed to the year's best price and Union Pacific 1st 4s gained ⅜ and Boston & Maine 5s of 1955 ¾ to reach new highs.

Less active issues to reach new high ground included Ann Arbor 4s, Atlanta, Knoxville and Cincinnati 4s, Erie general lien 4s, Grand Trunk of Canada 7s, Great Northern 4½s E, Illinois Central extension 3½s, Lehigh Valley of New York 4½s, Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington 4s and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 4½s.

Central Pacific 1st 4s, Illionis Central 6½s and Mobile & Ohio 4½s were sharply depressed.

American Telephone Rises.

A broad demand developed for American and foreign power 5s, and American Telephone 5s of 1965, the latter climbing to 107½, a new 1930 high price. New Orleans Public Service 5s A and B, New England Telephone and Telegraph 5s, Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s, and Utility Power and Light 5½s were other strong utility issues to register new highs. Federal Light and Traction debenture 6s slumped more than 2 points.

In the industrial section oil issues were well bought. Texas Corporation 5s were very active. Shell Union Pipe Line 5s reached a new high. Lackawanna Steel 5s made a new peak. Cespedes Sugar 7½s dropped 10 points, and with Container Corporation 5s, were among the industrials at new lows.

Stock privilege issues were firm, and Philadelphia Coal and Iron 6s and Warner Brothers 6s made good gains.

A half dozen Argentine obligations, which sank to new low ground for the year at the time of the revolution, gained a point or more. German municipal and industrials were fractionally lower. Standard European governments were firm.

FEW CHANGES SEEN IN MERGER OF BANKS

Poole Says No Employe of Either Institution Will Lose His Position.

NEW FLOTATION ON SALE

President John Poole, of the Federal American National Bank & Trust Co., representing the consolidated Federal American National Bank and the Merchants Bank & Trust Co., made two significant statements yesterday morning regarding the recent merger. He made clear that no employe of either bank or its branches, from the highest officers to the most humble janitor, is going to lose his job. The second important statement by the president was that there is utterly no foundation for the report that the acquisition of a third local bank is planned.

"Of course we will welcome expansion if the chance is given us," said Mr. Poole with a genial smile, "but at this time I know of no bank that is contemplating absorption by us."

Rolfe E. Boling, president of the Merchants Bank & Trust Co., is to become a vice president of the consolidated bank and will remain in charge of the branch at Fifteenth and H streets northwest, Mr. Poole announced.

In the official line up of the two banks there are a few duplications. These will be rearranged but without injury to any individual; in fact some may benefit, Mr. Poole intimated.

Stockholders Meet October 20.

Mr. Poole described the merger as one in every sense of the word, not only a pooling of financial resources of the two banks, but also one of the personnel and all human elements. A meeting of stockholders of the two banks is to be called for October 20, at 2 o'clock. A two-thirds vote at this time will be sufficient to ratify the merger. The merger will probably go into effect formally on November 1, eight years to a day from the date of the merger of the Federal National and the American, Mr. Poole announced. Until the merger is ratified by the stockholders, stock of the two banks will be listed separately on the local exchange.

A banking group, comprised of E. H. Rollins & Sons, E. Lowber Stokes & Co., and R. M. Snyder & Co., will offer a new issue of $1,000,000 Delaware County, Pa., 4 per cent bonds dated October 1, 1930, and maturing in annual installments from 1931 to 1960, it was announced yesterday. Maturities of 1931 are priced to yield 3.25 per cent and those of 1932, 3.75 per cent. Prices on maturities from 1933 to 1960 range from 100¼ to 101. The bonds are exempt from all Federal income taxes, are tax free in Pennsylvania and are legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York, Pennsylvania and other States, it was announced.

The Continental Trust Co. announced yesterday that the new quarterly dividend is 1½ per cent and not 1 per cent, as announced in this column yesterday.

Beane Gets New Position.

John M. Beane has been elected a member of the advisory board of the branches of the American Security and Trust Co., and of the advisory committee of the Northeast branch, it was announced yesterday. The board of directors of the American Security and Trust Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, payable October 10 to stockholders on record at the close of business September 30, 1930.

The volume of freight handled by class 1 railroads of the country in July this year amounted to 35,579,981,000 net ton miles, reports just received from the railroads by the Bureau of Railway Economics show. This, compared to July, 1929, was a reduction of 6,429,418,000 net ton miles, or 15.3 per cent, and a reduction of 3,372,947,000 net ton miles, or 9.1 per cent, under July, 1928.

Education of the public concerning the ethics of the insurance business will be undertaken by the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association and the Better Business Bureau, it was decided at a joint meeting of the two yesterday at the National Press Club.

In the education campaign, particular reference will be given to twisting of policies and rebating. The Better Business Bureau will work with the field practices committee of the underwriters association in investigating complaints in the insurance field of unethical or misleading practice, it was decided.

Bank Acceptances At $1,339,383,765

Decline of $10,311,541 in August Is Reported by American Council.

New York, Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Bankers' acceptances declined $10,311,541 during August to a total of $1,339,383,765 as of August 31, the American Acceptance Council reported today. The August 31 total, however, was $138,847,619 greater than the amount reported August 31 last year, notwithstanding the effects of the business depression of the current year.

The acceptance council's survey said the change in the amount outstanding at the end of August compared with that of July 31, "is without any serious importance except as indicating that the normal financing of commodities has not yet tapped the acceptance facilities of the great accepting banks." In the like period last year the volume of bills increased $73,000,000.

The only gains shown in the report were those covering acceptances against domestic warehouse credits which increased $8,000,000; dollar exchange credits, which increased $5,400,000 and those based on goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries, which showed a further advance of $6,500,000, and which now have passed $500,000,000.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau.
Washington, Wednesday, Sept. 17—8 p. m.
Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Fair Thursday and Friday; slightly cooler Thursday; gentle northwest winds, becoming variable.

For Maryland—Fair Thursday and Friday; slightly cooler Thursday; gentle to moderate west and northwest winds, becoming variable.

For Virginia—Generally fair Thursday and Friday; slightly cooler Thursday; gentle to moderate westerly winds, becoming variable.

Pressure is relatively high from the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys southeastward to the South Atlantic Coast and thence eastward over the ocean. Hamilton, Bermuda, 30.14 inches, and Louisville, Ky., 30.10 inches, and it is low over the remainder of North America and Greenland, with centers as follows: Edmonton, Alberta, 29.38 inches; Cochrane, Ont., 29.60 inches; Julianehaab, Greenland, 29.30 inches, and Port Eads, La., 29.86 inches. Showers have occurred within the last 24 hours in the lower Lake region, the Appalachian region, the Atlantic States, and along the East Gulf Coast, while fair weather has prevailed in practically all other sections. The temperature has risen in most sections west of the Mississippi River, and it has fallen slightly in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, but the weather is still unseasonably warm in the latter sections.

The indications are for showers in the South Atlantic States and for generally fair weather elsewhere in the Washington forecast district during the next two days. The temperature will be slightly lower in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States Thursday and will rise during Friday as far east as the Appalachian region.

$5,000 Damages Sought For Dearth of Car Seats

Action of traction companies in letting people board street cars when theer are no seats, straps or other supports for them is described as negligence in a suit for $5,000 filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court against the Capital Traction Co.

William Smith, of 1813 Fifth street northwest, the plaintiff, through Attorney James D. Cunningham, states that last June 3 he boarded one of the defendant's cars at Seventh and T streets northwest. He describes the car is being "filled to capacity" and asserts that although the conductor accepted his fare there was no place for him to sit or anything to hold to. As a result, he states he was forced to stand in the center of the aisle. One block later, he declares, the trolley was brought to a sudden stop and, having no support, he was hurled violently to the floor causing painful and serious injuries.

Capital Woman Left Sum.

Mrs. Louis M. Merrick, of Bolling Field, receives one-fifth of the residuary estate of her father, John Albert Leighton, under terms of a will filed for probate in surrogate's court in New York yesterday. The estate is valued at "less than $5,000."

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY

1,325 Enrolled for Winter Term at Washington Lee High.

BUILDING CODE PLANNED

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the exception of the James Monroe Elementary School at Aurora Heights, all public schools in the county will open for the Fall term Monday, according to an announcement from the office of County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp yesterday. Postponement of the opening of the James Monroe School is caused in the delay in completing the addition. It is hoped to have this school open within another week, it was stated.

The Washington and Lee High School will open with an enrollment of 1,325 pupils.

Pupils entering grades from ninth to twelfth will report Monday morning at 9 o'clock for registration. Those in the seventh and eighth grades will report Tuesday morning at the same hour. Classes will begin Wednesday morning.

Pupils residing in Jefferson district and who will attend grades from ninth to twelfth at Washington and Lee will register at the Nellie Custis school Monday morning at 9 o'clock. They will not be required to report at Washington Lee until Wednesday morning from classes. Those from Jefferson district, who will be in either the seventh or eighth grades will attend school at the Nellie Custis school and will report at that school Monday morning at 9 o'clock for registration and classes.

The schedule at the Washington-Lee High School will be as follows: Grades from ninth to twelfth will attend classes from 8 to 12:20 o'clock, those in grades from seventh to eighth will attend classes from 12:25 to 4:25 o'clock.

It was indicated that this schedule will be in force until about December 15, at which time it is hoped the additions will have been completed.

With the completion of the building, which will give a total of 57 classrooms and adequate room for shop practice, the junior high school classes will have an average of less than 30 pupils, while the senior classes will have an average of 25 pupils. With this condition prevailing, S. P. Vanderslice, principal, stated that every pupil will be in better condition to take care of his studies, and the teachers will be likewise in a better position to give their classes the attention that they are entitled to.

Announcement is made that Maj. C. S. McNeill, U. S. A., who is in charge of the cadet corps and professor of military science and tactics, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Lieut. Col. McNeill will meet with the cadet corps Wednesday morning for the purpose of organization and mapping out plans for the school year.

The athletic committee at Washington-Lee will be composed of Mr. Driver, W. A. Richardson and Miss Nina Trevvett. Mr. Richardson will be in charge of the athletic classes for boys, Miss Trevvett will have charge of the girls, and Mr. Driver will be coach of the football team and other field events.

Steps looking to the adoption of a building code for Arlington County were taken by the Arlington County Civic Federation at its meeting last night when it adopted a resolution presented by Arthur Orr, of Lyon Park, directing the committee on legislation and legal action of that body to proceed forthwith with the draft of such a code.

The resolution provides that the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association be invited to appoint similar committees to cooperate with the federation committee in the drafting of the building code.

The firm belief that the county board of supervisors has the power to adopt such a code is indicated by the citation in the resolution of section 2743 of the code of Virginia, which provides "that the board of supervisors of every county shall have power to adopt such measures as they may deem expedient to secure and promote the health, safety and general welfare of the inhabitants of their respective counties not inconsistent with the general laws of this State." The resolution declares that "the health, safety and general welfare of the people of Arlington County will be promoted by the adoption of a building code."

It was revealed from the office of the county health department yesterday that as a result of the recent inspection made by inspectors from the food and dairy division of the State Health Department it was found that there are certain dairies within the county which are not complying with either the State or county health laws which govern the handling of milk.

According to County Inspector Dr. Norbert Melnick, the operators of the dairies which were questioned during the inspection by the State will be given a period of 30 days in which to comply with the law or face an order to close their business. The names of the owners are being withheld by the county health department.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet today at 12 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. All members are asked to attend as final plans will be made for the joint meeting with clubs from Richmond, Baltimore and Washington at Ashton Heights next week.

Allen J. Saville, consulting engineer, of Richmond, is announced as the principal speaker at the fall membership meeting of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce to be held at Clarendon tonight at 8 o'clock.

In addition to the membership, members of the county board of supervisors, the county engineer and presidents of all civic organizations, together with their committees on sanitation, have been invited to attend.

President Ashton C. Jones will preside.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly meeting today at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 12:30 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

Mrs. J. Foster Hagan, of Ballston, wife of one of Arlington County's prominent attorneys, was taken to the Emergency Hospital in Washington yesterday where she will undergo an operation today.

Meeting last night at the home of Mrs. Edith Corder, at Clarendon, the executive committee of the Business and Professional Woman's Club, of Arlington County, completed a program for the club's activity during the coming fall and winter months.

Mrs. Helen Collins was elected as the club's secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Norine Kloss.

Tonight the club will hold its monthly dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. Collins, at Livingstone Heights. Miss Bertha Bennett, Miss Ann Hedrick and Miss Edith Jackson will be received as new members at tonight's meeting.

The club will discuss plans for the holding of a rummage sale, and a bridge and dance party during October.

The committee on legislation and legal action of the Arlington County Civic Federation, of which Robert N. Anderson is chairman, will meet at the home of the chairman tomorrow night to prepare the petition to the Circuit Court requesting the calling of an election on the question of a change in the present form of county government and to formulate plans for its circulation.

It was stated that this petition will have to be presented to Judge Walter T. McCarthy on or before October 4 inasmuch as the law requires the judge to set the date of the election not less than 30 days from the date of the order calling for such an election.

Man Kills His Wife As Children Sleep

Slayer Then Turns Gun on Himself and Dies Instantly.

Gate City, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—While two children slept undisturbed, Gnat Camper, resident near here, shot his wife to death in their home late last night, walked a short distance from the house and killed himself with a bullet through the heart.

A coroner's verdict today said that Camper killed his wife and then committed suicide. Camper's body was found near the roadside, and an investigation resulted in the discovery of Mrs. Camper lying dead in a downstairs room while her two children of a former marriage were sleeping upstairs.

Neighbors said that they had quarreled frequently.

LEGIONNAIRES MAKE CONVENTION PLANS

Virginia Delegation Will Go to Boston From Norfolk on October 6.

ENVOYS ARE SELECTED

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The official delegation of the Virginia Department, American Legion, and other legionnaires now are planning the Virginia activities at the national American Legion convention in Boston October 6.

Headed by the championship drum and bugle corps of the Braxton-Perkins Post, Newport News, Va., the delegation will leave Norfolk on the official Legion steamer at 7 p. m. Friday, October 3. Virginia headquarters is to be established at Hotel Brunswick.

Brief visits to New York have been arranged en route, and the New Haven Post 47 has offered to obtain tickets to the Yale-Georgia football game on October 11. Special railroad rates have been offered from points in Virginia to and from Norfolk for the legionnaire delegation, and W. Glenn Elliott, the department adjutant, is being kept busy making steamer and hotel reservations.

Delegates announced today by Department Commander Roby C. Thompson and Adjutant W. Glenn Elliott follow: G. M. Harrison, Fredericksburg, Va.; Sam R. Heller, Norfolk; Henry M. Taylor, Washington; Earl M. Gregory, Mount Alto, Md.; C. B. Thompson, Chatham; Dennis B. Welch, Salem; R. B. English, Washington, D. C.; W. Glenn Elliott, Richmond; Col. H. L. Opie, Staunton; John J. Wicker, jr., Richmond; Col. B. M. Roszel, Winchester; Roby C. Thompson, Abingdon, and F. Wilmer Coffman, Harrisonburg.

Alternates are Miss Emily Thornhill, National Soldiers Home, Va.; Bertha L. Frischorn, Norfolk; H. Norman Cole, Richmond; H. Gerald Seal, Petersburg; A. T. Davis, Chatham; Col. F. B. Vaney, Lynchburg; J. Fred Harlan, Charlottesville; C. E. Reams, jr., Culpeper; N. O. Akers, Abingdon; Col. R. A. Ware, Hot Springs; S. A. Williams, Quantico; Dennis Oliver, Chatham, and C. B. Persinger, Clifton Forge.

Man, 60, and Girl, 22, Marry in Clarksburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Age makes no difference where true love is concerned, according to May Williams, 22 years old, and Lewis Peyton Lunceford, 60, both of Nutter Fort.

They came to the courthouse here, obtained a license and were married in the county clerk's office by the Rev. Winfield S. Patterson, Methodist Episcopal minister.

ANNUAL FAIR OPENS IN LOUDOUN COUNTY

Largest First-Day Throng Attend Exhibition at Purcellville.

BABY SHOW IS FEATURE

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Sept. 17.—With clear skies and the atmosphere cooled by showers yesterday, the twelfth annual Loudoun County Fair and Horse Show got under way here this morning with a good start. As this was children's day and all school children were admitted free, hundreds from various parts of the county thronged the grounds to enjoy the program aranged especially for their entertainment. A pony show, athletic events, band music and a baby show were outstanding features of the day.

The crowd was unusually large for the first day and the management declared this was the best first day the show had ever had. Judging of the exhibits in the main hall has been in progress all day. In the handwork department the quality and quantity of exhibits is better than ever before. Outstanding in this department are hooked rugs and bed spreads. Exhibits of fruits, farm crops and vegetables are amazing, despite the drought, and although the quantity is less, the quality of these products surpass those of former years.

Children Enjoy Events.

A number of children participated in the athletic events and their performances were excellent.

Unusually good performances marked the exhibition of ponies and their youthful riders. Meade and Robert Palmer, of Alexandria, were the largest winners, taking six first prizes with their ponies, Beauty and Diplomat. Stanley Green, jr., won several prizes with Queen of Sheba. Elmon A. Miller, of Leesburg, won first in bareback jumping with his pony, Herbert.

The following were winners in athletic events held under direction of William L. Litchs, assistant executive, Boy Scouts of America, Virginia area: District of Columbia Council foot race, girls, 6 to 10—First, Evelyn Emerick; second, Ellen Lauck; third, Margaret Darr.

Foot race, boys, 6 to 10—First, Charles Darr; second, Walter Lauck; third, Raymond Welsh.

Foot race, boys, 11 to 15—First, Carl Tavenner; second, Stanley Reed; third, Dalton Paxson.

Oswald Downs Winner.

100-yard race, 15 and over—First, Oswald Downs; second, Jack Caviness; third, Ed Throckmorton.

Running high jump, girls, 6 to 10—First, E. Emerick; second, Emma Budd; third, Margaret Phillips.

Running high jump, boys, 6 to 10—First, Asa Rusk; second, Raynolds Welsh; third, Fred Keyes.

Running high jump, boys, 11 to 15—First, Stanley Tyler; second, Bob Bowman; third, Marion Oliver.

Three-legged race—First, Tavenner and Gheen; second, Case and Vaughan; third, Oliver and Kincaid.

Roll in barrel—First, Tom Simpson; second, Ed Larrick; third, Sam Edmondson.

Tug of war—Won by team headed by Ed Throckmorton.

Sack race—First, Henry Larrick; second, Gilbert Trussell; third, Jack Pancoast.

Miss Noland Gives Prizes.

Miss Charlotte H. Noland, Middleburg, Va., gave prizes in the above events, which were medals for first prizes and rides on the merry-go-round and ferris wheel for second and third prizes.

The baby show attracted much attention this morning. There were 38 entries in both groups and the babies were judged on their general physical condition. The show was under direction of Miss Helen Pittman, county nurse, and the winners in the class from 6 month to 1 year were: First, Doris Lee Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bell, of Roundhill; second, Earle Virts, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Virts, of Bluemont; third, Leon Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hamilton, of Purcellville.

In the class 1 year to 3, first, James William Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomas, of Lincoln; second, John Norman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Norman, of Purcellville, and Myrtle Budd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Budd, of Middleburg.

Silver Cups Awarded.

Sterling silver cups were given as first prizes in the baby show, and sterling silver spoons as second prizes. These were donated by the Peoples' National Bank and the Loudoun National Bank of Leesburg.

The following were the winners in the pony show which began at 1 o'clock this afternoon, with Winston Frost, of Middleburg, as judge:

Saddle ponies—First, Queen of Sheba, owned by Mrs. Stanley Green, of Leesburg; second, Song Bird, Edith Huntington, Bluemont.

Ponies, 11 hands and under—First, Beauty, Meade and Robert Palmer, Alexandria, Va.; second, Dot, Ball Stables, Purcellville; third, Sigmund, Joanne Huntington, Bluemont, Va.

Ponies over 11 hands and under 14.2—First, Diplomat, Meade and Robert Palmer; second, Punchinello, Miss Bettina Belmont, Middleburg; third, Busy Bee, Meade and Robert Palmer.

'PRIZE FIGHT' CRITIC SCORES JUDGE SNOW

Methodist Official Protests Alexandria Boxing Matches Which Club Will Sponsor.

JURIST HEAD OF ROTARY

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Judge William S. Snow, of Alexandria, is taken to task because of an alleged connection between the Alexandria Rotary Club and "prize fighting" in a letter from Deets Pickett, secretary of the Department of Research of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals. A copy of the letter was sent to Gov. Pollard and made public here today.

Mr. Pickett, an associate of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board, expressed the opinion that "prize fighting" exhibition would "probably bring to the town a very disreputable class with an increase in the number of burglaries, holdups and disorderly conduct."

"I take it," Mr. Pickett said, "that those with whom you are associated have entered into this thing with the best of motives, but casually without examination of the law."

"Prize fighting" is forbidden by Virginia law, and an attempt at repeal in the last General Assembly met with failure. It was charged at that time by proponents of repeal that the law was openly violated in many cities of the State.

Pickett's letter apparently refers to an amateur athletic exhibition to be held in the near future in the Alexandria Armory by the Alexandria Rotary Club, of which Judge Snow is president, to raise funds for the Alexandria Day Nursery and Children's Home. Judge Snow was out of town last night and could not be reached.

Reds in U. S. Scored By Judge W. E. Baker

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Paid propagandists who are spreading the Communistic doctrine of Soviet Russia in the United States were the subject of a portion of the charge delivered in United States Court here yesterday to the grand jury by Federal Judge William E. Baker.

Judge Baker excoriated the Communists within the boundary of the United States and said that aliens not intending to keep the laws of this country should leave its shores. He said this country was one of ordered liberty and that its citizens should uphold its laws.

$200 FINE IMPOSED ON DRUNKEN DRIVER

Man Pleads Guilty in Fairfax to Taking Drink 19 Hours Before Arrest.

ATTACKER IS CONVICTED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, imposed a fine of $200 and costs and a 30-days' suspended jail sentence or $100 fine and 30 days in jail upon Fisher M. Grove, of Philadelphia, Pa., yesterday afternoon, when he pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Grove stated to the court that the only liquor he had drank was one drink about midnight Saturday in Atlantic City, N. J. He was arrested for driving while drunk in Falls Church, Va., at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. He had been driving a car all the time since taking the drink.

In connection with this case, Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr stated to the judge that approximately 75 per cent of the driving-while-drunk cases tried in the Fairfax court were against persons living outside of the State of Virginia, and it did not appear to him to be right to impose the same sentence as was imposed on persons living in the county who, upon conviction, have their driving permits revoked. The State law requires the court to impose a minimum fine of $100 and 30 days in jail, but in the discretion of the court the jail sentence may be suspended. Judge McCarthy replied that he realized that the residents of the State were more heavily penalized than nonresidents, but he saw no reason why the jails of the State should be filled with nonresidents and he accordingly imposed a heavier fine than is usually meted out and suspended the jail sentence. "The purpose of the law is to punish a person for a wrongdoing, not to compel him to stay in jail when the fine will suffice," he stated.

Taylor Scott Edwards, of Clifton, indicted at the last term of the Fairfax Circuit Court, on charges of feloniously wounding his brother and attempting to wound both brother and nephew, using knife and gun, plead guilty and was sentence by the court to serve two and one-half years in the State Penitentiary on each of the three counts, the three terms to run concurrently. Edwards was one of the four men to break jail this summer.

Nicholas Breeden, a 22-year-old musician of Washington, was found guilty of a criminal assault on a 20-year-old Washington girl on the night of May 30 this year by a jury of twelve men yesterday in the Fairfax County circuit court. The jury, which was composed of O. B. Campbell, foreman; Harry Florence, M. T. Morris, E. E. Beard, R. H. Niswander, Harry R. Parver, D. F. Hanna, M. W. Fox, B. H. Swart, H. A. Cupp, G. H. Powell and W. E. Keister, fixed the sentence of seven years in the State Penitentiary.

This was the climax of one of the hardest fought legal battles in the Fairfax court for several years. The prosecution was led by Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr, assisted by Hugh Marsh, and the defense was represented by Judge Robinson Moncure, of Alexandria. The case was started Tuesday morning, with great difficulty in finding a jury. On failure to complete the hearing of witnesses, the jury was locked up in the sheriff's residence at the jail. The trial resumed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and continued until 4:30 in the afternoon. The jury then retired to its room, and at 6:50 p. m. returned the verdict. The defense counsel moved the court to set aside the verdict as contrary to the law and evidence and for several errors it was alleged had been made during the trial. All testimony heard in the case was behind closed doors and no other persons except officers of the court and the jury were permitted in the courtroom.

Railroad Appeals Tax Levy.

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 17 (Special).—An appellate court of nine circuit judges will be set up here October 25 to hear appeals of the Western Maryland Railroad Co. from tax assessments made on its properties by the State Board of Public Works. The company claims that the taxes are unduly high.

VETERANS DEDICATE KEMPER MONUMENT

Fredericksburg Man Talks at Confederate Reunion at Orange.

UNION SURVIVORS MEET

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., Sept. 17.—The unveiling of a monument to Gen. James Lawson Kemper, Civil War hero and Governor of Virginia from 1874 to 1878, featured the second day of the annual joint reunion of Confederate Veterans and Sons of Confederate Veterans which began here yesterday. C. O'Connor Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, delivered the unveiling address. The convention closes after a parade and barbecue here tomorrow.

The second day began this morning with a call to order by Col. Edgar Warfield, of Alexandria, commander of the Virginia Department, Grand Camp Confederate Veterans, after which reports were given by the committees of the organization. This meeting was followed by a general business session of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

At noon the entire convention moved to Walnut Hills, Gen. Kemper's old home near Orange. Exercises there began with the introduction of Judge Alexander T. Browning, judge of the Ninth District of Virginia, by George L. Browning, State Supreme Court Justice. After a short address, Judge Browning introduced the main speaker of the day, Mr. Goolrick.

Goolrick Is Speaker.

In his talk, Mr. Goolrick brought out Gen. Kemper's experiences during the Civil War, including the battle of Gettysburg in which he was wounded. After the war, he related, the general returned to his home to aid in reconstruction. His efforts during this work of rebuilding the South led to his election to the governorship.

The main address was followed by a short recess, during which a basket picnic lunch was served the assembly on the grounds of the estate. A crowd of 2,000 persons attended the picnic.

The unveiling held immediately after the recess began with a prayer by the Rev. J. C. Reed, grand camp chaplain general. Then Dr. C. R. Stribling, pastor of the Orange Presbyterian Church, gave a short address, which was followed by the unveiling of the monument by great-grandchildren of Gen. Kemper.

Shortly after the unveiling, the veterans were taken on a trip to nearby historic points, including Montpelier, the home of James Madison, and Montebello, the birthplace of Zachary Taylor. During the evening a ball was given the old soldiers at the dance pavilion at the fair grounds. Twelve old-time fiddlers furnished the music for the square dance. At 10 o'clock the floor was turned over to younger members of the convention.

"The glory of the Confederate charge at Gettysburg is imperishable," Mr. Goolrick said in his address, "but in claiming this glory for the Southern soldiers, let us not overlook the splendid gallantry of the men who repulsed this charge Let no one, least of all the South, deny them the honor which is rightly theirs. To disparage the sublime bravery of these men is to detract from the glory of those who marched and fell with Pickett."

"Show me the man you honor," he concluded, "and I know better the man you are. Kemper had a proud record in an army whose esteem will never be paled. Let us always remember that when the flags of the Confederacy were furled, its members returned to their homes on the frontier, for the South was then a destroyed South."

Celebration in Maryland.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 17 (Special)—Confederate veterans joined with those of the Union Army today in the big celebration which marked the 68th anniversary of the Battle of Antietam, often called the bloodiest conflict of the Civil War, which was fought near Sharpsburg, Md., on September 17, 1862.

The Los Angeles, Navy dirigible, was to have taken part in the celebration, but because of the storms in this section, did not leave its hangar.

Among the oldest veterans attending were two from Rochester, N. Y., Erwin C. Payne, aged 92, who was a member of the 108th New York volunteer infantry during the engagement, and Charles T. Peck, aged 90, a lieutenant with the first New York dragoons.

The afternoon's impressive exercises were held at Sharpsburg, with many prominent in military and civil life participating. Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commandant of the Army War College, Washington, was the principal speaker. Among others who made addresses were James E. Fewel, commander in chief, Grand Army of Republic, Fort Morgan, Col.; Theodore C. Cazeau, commander in chief, Sons of Union Veterans, Rochester, N. Y.; Charles T. Norman, commander in chief, Sons of Confederate Veterans, Richmond; E. H. Pitcher, past department commander, and Representative Fred N. Zihlman.

The reunion continued tonight with a mass meeting in the square at Sharpsburg, with E. H. Pitcher as speaker, with the Daughters of the Confederacy and Sons of Confederate Veterans of Shepherdstown, W. Va., in costumes of the war period conducting a program.

An ox roast Saturday will bring the veterans celebration to a close.

Worker on Hoover Camp Road Killed

Carter Gibbs, 20, Crushed; No One Sees Accident at Power Shovel.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—Carter Gibbs, 20 years old, a worker on the road being built by the United States Bureau of Public Roads between Culpeper and President Hoover's Rapidan Camp, was fatally injured by a power shovel today. He died on the way to a Culpeper hospital.

Gibbs was working about the shovel and was caught in some manner by the dipper as it swung around. His body was crushed. Nobody saw the accident or knew it had occurred until a truck moved away and Gibbs was seen to fall away from the side.

Gibbs was unmarried and lived at Criglersville.

VIRGINIA COMPANIES' VALUES ANNOUNCED

Public Service Firms Are Worth $204,000,000, Commission Says.

NORFOLK LEADS IN CITIES

Richmond, Va., Sept. 17 (A.P.).—The State corporation commission, in its annual report today, fixes the aggregate assessed value of public service corporations in the counties and cities of Virginia at $204,363,250.

Of the aggregate total the assessed value of corporations serving counties was $130,689,974, and the corporations serving cities was $73,673,276, the report shows.

Norfolk led Virginia cities with the total value aggregating $19,726,013. There the total was swelled by the assessed valuation of steam railroads totaling $9,748,735. Electric light and power companies were second in Norfolk with $3,283, and steamboat and steamship corporations were third with $2,009,858. Electric railway corporation valuation was $1,566,862; telephone companies was $1,557,996; gas and water companies, $1,388,724, and telegraph companies, $71,180.

Richmond Second of Cities.

Richmond was second among the cities with a total assessed valuation of $17,190,978, falling below Norfolk in steam railroad and steamboat and steamship corporation assessments, but holding a substantial lead in electric railway corporations, electric light and power corporation and telegraph corporations.

Giles led all the 100 counties, with a total assessed valuation of $6,791,754. The greatest estimates in the county were on steam railroads with a total assessed valuation of $3,839,425, followed by $2,897,338 for electric light and power corporations.

The report included the assed value of steam railroad, electric railroad, electric light and power, gas and water, express (including fruit growers' express), steamboat and steamship, telephone and telegraph corporations.

Valuation of Corporations.

The total assessed valuation of corporations in the cities follow: Alexandria, $1,579,122; Bristol, $638,473; Buena Vista, $228,558; Charlottesville, $731,908; Clifton Forge, $1,143,100; Danville, $883,908; Fredericksburg, $545,986; Hampton, $855,921; Harrisonburg, $124,751; Hopewell, $699,192; Lynchburg, $3,823,111; Martinsville, $107,825; Newport News, $4,055,199; Norfolk, $19,726,013; Petersburg, $2,007,354; Portsmouth, $5,177,567; Radford, $1,555,567; Richmond, $17,190,978; Roanoke, $10,367,216; South Norfolk, $419,572; Staunton, $419,572; Suffolk, $615,787; Williamsburg, $106,568, and Winchester, $400,137.

The aggregate total for steam railroad companies in the State was $148,573,402; electric railway companies, $9,615,777; lumber and mining railroads, $70,994; canal companies, $85,824; electric light and power companies, $24,513,736; gas and water companies, $6,343,229; express companies (including fruit growers' express), $404,461; steamboat and steamship companies, $2,253,698; telephone companies, $10,741,615, and telegraph companies, $1,760,534.

EXHAUST WHISTLE USE IS FORBIDDEN

Alexandria Police Ordered to Stop Practice by Private Autoists.

CITY COUNCIL TO MEET

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The use of exhaust whistles on motor vehicles of all kinds, with the exception of the city fire apparatus, the police patrol, the fire chief's car and ambulances was definitely banned yesterday in an order issued by Police Capt. W. W. Campbell to members of the police department to arrest all persons using such whistles.

The use of exhaust whistle by members of the volunteer fire department has been either approved or not banned for a number of years, but of late this has been found to cause confusion, as well as accidents and traffic snarls, since motorists hearing the noise of approaching whistles either draw up to the curb, as required by police regulations, or disregard the whistles.

Each of the four fire companies of the city has only a small number of paid firemen, who form a nucleus for the company. When an alarm is received, fire bells are rung and the volunteer firemen drop whatever they may be engaged in doing at the time and, if they have their own cars, start driving to the fire at a terrific pace. Those not owning cars commandeer the first passing automobile and the rushing of automobiles to the scene of the fire, many of them with exhaust whistles in use, has caused confusion.

Traffic regulations forbid automobiles other than those engaged in transporting firemen to follow the appratus, but police are practically helpless to enforce this regulation, since the driver or occupant of an automobile has only to inform the policeman who attempts to stop him that he is a fireman, or transporting a fireman, and he is permitted to ignore speed limits, thereby becoming a menace to other traffic. This is said to be particularly confusing to strangers not familiar with the local custom.

That Policeman W. W. Lipscomb, who lost his life in an accident which wrecked the apparatus of Engine Company, No. 2, of Potomac, and injured three firemen, came to his death through unavoidable accident, was the verdict of Coroner T. Marshall Jones, after hearing testimony of fifteen witnesses in an inquest held at Police Headquarters Tuesday night. The accident occurred the afternoon of September 4, at Four Mile Run, when the apparatus, driven by Thomas Cockrell, left the road and turned over, instantly killing Policeman Lipscomb, who was riding on the truck for the purpose of directing traffic at the fire.

Cockrell testified that there was considerable traffic on the road as he was driving to the fire which proved to be a burning automobile; that he sounded his siren and was traveling at the rate of 35 or 40 miles an hour, and that when he arrived at the point where the accident occurred there was an automobile in the road in front of him, going north, and a truck going south. He said he pulled behind the car and the truck drew off to the right side of the road, and then turned back into the road. He attempted to pass, but apparently lost control of the heavy fire apparatus, which left the road and overturned. Policeman Lipscomb, who was riding on the rear of the fire truck, was struck by the full load of hose carried by the machine, and was thrown off. His neck was broken.

Aubrey Brown, captain of No. 2 company, leaped from the fire truck as it started to overturn, but was caught under the apparatus, as was Cockrell. Both were painfully, but not seriously injured. Charles Duncan, the other fireman hurt, suffered less serious injuries and was able to go home after treatment at the Alexandria Hospital. Brown and Cockrell have practically recovered from their injuries.

Acceptance of the bid of $750,000 for sale of the city gas plant to the Seaboard Investment Trust of Boston will be the principal business before the city council at its meeting this afternoon. Other matters of routine nature will be considered, and it is not thought probable that the council will act on the proposition of the Alexandria Water Co. in which it seeks to have the city pay for water to fight fires.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will hold its third annual emblem breakfast on Sunday, September 28, at 8 a. m. in the George Mason Hotel, with Miss Rietta Butler emblem chairman, in charge of the program, and Miss Alice H. Whitton in charge of reservations.

The speaker will be Miss Elizabeth Foster, of Norfolk, past State president of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Prof. Robert A. Maurer, professor of constitutional law at Georgetown University, will address the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club today, at 12:30, at the George Mason Hotel. Irvin Diener is chairman for the day. Delegates to the Capital District convention will be elected next Thursday.

Cadet Sergt. Maj. Charles M. Stump, jr., has been appointed second lieutenant and adjutant of the Alexandria High School section of the Alexandria High Schoop Corps of Cadets, and the appointment has been approved and confirmed by Principal Henry T. Moncure.

Alexandria Council, No. 5, Order Fraternal Americans, will hold a special meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in Odd Fellows Hall, in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of its organization. Speakers will be Col. John H. Trimyer, State treasurer, and Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Permission having been obtained from the Hume estate, the work of moving Hume spring from its present location in the center of the roadway in Mount Vernon avenue, will be completed this week. The water will be piped from the spring to a point on the east side of the road and the house and concrete work moved.

Benwood Pastor Resigns.

Benwood, W. Va., Sept. 17 (Special).—The Rev. Paul F. C. Schnizler has resigned as pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church here to become pastor of a church at Oceanside, N. Y. The local church was his first charge, being taken by him on his graduation from Capitol University, Columbus, Ohio, two and a half years ago.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

WHILE Luella was on her way to police headquarters, the head of the automobile squad telephoned they'd found the stolen car.

It took three hours to locate Luella, sashaying from one office to another, and finally we stood before the tribunal.

"Whose car is this?" the clerk asked.

"Mine," we both answered.

The ownership finally settled, it became necessary to give data on the make, style, year and general all-around condition of the old boat.

"Where did you find the car?" asked Luella, anxious to hear all the details.

"Out in the country."

"Is it in good condition?"

"Couldn't tell you, madam; you'll have to see for yourself."

* * * *

SHE turned to me: "Could you make this man stop calling me 'madam?'" she complained. "I don't like the title. Sounds so affected."

No place to have an argument. I got Luella out of police headquarters, armed with a letter to some county constable who would turn over our property as soon as we identified it.

"How're we gon-a get out in the country?" asked Luella, outside on the sidewalk.

'Twas growing late. "There are several methods of transportation—the airplane, choo-choo cars, buses and——"

"And what?" she snapped.

"Shanks' Mare. You can walk, can't you?"

"Not to the country. If we only had the car."

"We'll get the car, when we get to the country."

* * * *

"I KNOW, but it's so much trouble getting to the country," she complained. Which explains the failure of the Back to the Farm movement.

Eventually we chartered an automobile and started over the hills for the missing car. We had about 30 miles ahead of us.

"Isn't it grand to have a chauffeur?" she smiled, and, seeing what was on the way, I told her that chauffeurs were unreliable, undependable and not to be trusted out of sight.

"In that case," she sighed, "we'll have to do without a chauffeur."

In any case, we'll have to do without a chauffeur.
